Germans Attack London in Day and Night Raids

Daytime Attack Is Biggest in Nearly 2 Weeks

Nazis Fly Higher and Faster To Combat New British Defense

APARTMENT BLOCK IS NEARLY HIT BY BOMB

Many Other Places Outside London Attacked by Invaders

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 26 (Thursday) — German night raiders, resorting to new tactics of speed and higher flying in efforts to elude searchlights which raised a brilliant roof over London, loosed fresh cargoes of destruction on the city last night and early today.

The prolonged, persistant attacks were less intense over central London than on previous nights, but they followed a day of raids in which the Germans sent over the biggest daytime formations seen in nearly two weeks.

Practically every one of the night raiders had incendiary bombs in his cargo. Busy Britons smothered out the frequent fires.

One fire bomb landed in a bedroom. The aroused householder doused it and chucked it out the window.

Forced to Change Tactics

The Germans darted about the outskirts until they found an opening in London's defenses, then sped across the metropolis, tossing off their bombs. Their changed tactics apparently resulted from a new device the British themselves tried for the first time—a searchlight defense featuring bright beams thrown at right angles to cover every foot in the skies in the assault area.

As this nineteenth successive night of air siege wore on, activity in central London slackened but in the western section the anti-aircraft guns sent up a heavy barrage against Germans whose bombs barely missed a big apartment block. Windows in the entire block were shattered by the concussion.

Berlin Attacked For Five Hours

Many Germans Spend Night in Chilly Cellars; Damage Unknown

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (Thursday) (AP) —British bombers lashed at Berlin's outskirts last night and today for five hours in the city's longest air raid, which started before bedtime and forced many a home-bound Berliner to spend the night in a strange, chilly cellar.

Most of the raiders appeared to stay over Berlin's industrial suburbs, but two waves of them passed over the city, and central Berlin anti-aircraft cannon blazed away on both occasions.

No bombs were heard bursting in

FACES INDICTMENT FOR THE KIDNAPING OF DE TRISTAN BOY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 25 (AP)—First steps toward prosecution of Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich (above) for his "perfect kidnaping" of three-year-old Marc de Tristan, Jr., were taken today by San Maeto county authorities as the FBI promised to turn the prisoner over to the state. The county grand jury was called to meet Friday morning to consider an indictment under the California "little Lindberg" law, providing life imprisonment for kidnaping. The child was recovered uninjured and no ransom was paid.

Willkie Pleased With Reception By Great Crowds

Republican Candidate Estimates He Has Seen 2,000,000 Persons

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

Aboard Willkie Train Enroute Through North Dakota, Sept. 25—Wendell L. Willkie estimated today that he had seen more than 2,000,000 persons since he started his western campaign tour two weeks ago and told reporters he was "completely satisfied" with his reception.

The Republican presidential nominee had a relatively light day, making all his talks from the rear platform of his special train. While traveling eastward, he worked on details of an October trip through Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New England.

Wife Nearly Misses Train

Today's schedule almost was upset when Mrs. Willkie failed to get aboard at Glendive, Montana, when the train started. Chatting with several women on the station platform, she did not notice that the train was moving until it was well under way. Then she started running toward one of the few open doors and was pulled aboard by friends.

During an early morning stop at Miles City, Montana, Willkie told a station crowd that about thirty years ago, "I blew into this town in a box car and almost got pinched."

Says FDR Harms Business

In his Miles City talk, Willkie renewed his contention that President Roosevelt had stalled a business upswing both in the United States and Europe in 1937 by asserting that commodity prices were too high.

Spain's Entrance Into War Sought By Axis Powers

Both Rome and Berlin Ministers Called into Conferences

Gibraltar Said To Have Been Definitely Promised Franco

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP) — Japan and Spain were uppermost in discussions among political circles here today and it was learned unofficially the Japanese are being urged by Germany and Italy to form a counterweight to possible closer British-American collaboration.

(Trustworthy advices received by the Associated Press in New York said Japan is on the verge of telling the world whether she will enter ar alliance with Germany and Italy. Whether such a pact would plunge Japanese immediately into war with Britain was not made clear.)

Spain Entrance Forecast

That Spain already is about to form closer ties with the Axis powers has been foreshadowed for days by the German press. Adolf Hitler's audiences last night and again today with Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish minister of government, threw the spotlight anew on Generalissimo Francisco Franco's brother-in-law emissary.

In this connection, a usually well-informed source said Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano, who conferred in Rome with Foreign Minister Joashim von Ribbentrop last week, would arrive in Berlin Friday for further talks.

This led political sources to the conclusion that Ciano, Premier Mussolini's son-in-law, would participate in some solemn ceremony of signature. Whether Serrano Suner would participate could not be learned.

Gibraltar Promised Spain

So far as it could be learned from unofficial sources, Gibraltar has been definitely promised to Spain by the Axis powers and it is assumed Axis military aid for its seizure has been envisaged.

Spain apparently also is to obtain at least a part of French Morocco and Madasgascar in return for active siding with Germany and Italy, if and when that seems the most desirable.

Official information regarding Spain's role was meager; even more so regarding Japan.

The increasing interest of the far eastern co-signer of the anti-comintern pact has been demonstrated, among other ways, by at least a three-fold increase in the number of Japanese correspondents accredited to Berlin as compared to the pre-war total.

High Winds and Heavy Rains Hit Nearly All of Md.

Considerable Damage to Property and Bay Ships

By The Associated Press

Damaging winds in southern Maryland and heavy rain in nearly every other section plummeted temperatures yesterday (Wednesday) and brought Maryland an advance notice that winter was on the way.

At Crisfield a heavy gale accompanied by a torrential rain blew down street signs, uprooted trees and lifted roofs off a number of small buildings. Several small boats in the harbor broke loose from their moorings and blew ashore.

Winds estimated at sixty miles an hour struck sections of Calvert and Prince Georges county, causing severe damage to corn and tobacco crops.

Rainfall in Washington county in a fourteen-hour period ending at noon totaled 3.98 inches, and J. A. Miller, government weather observer at Keedysville, said streams were running bankfull. There was no fear of floods, however.

Frederick reported 3.76 inches of rain, and Cumberland had an all-night downpour.

The storm apparently moved eastward across the state, for rain and high winds struck Annapolis during the morning, and Salisbury reported a deluge in mid-afternoon.

London Bureau of Associated Press Wrecked by Bomb

But Newsmen Establish a New Office in "10 Minutes Flat"

Soon Have To Move Again; Later Return to Old Office

By EDWIN STOUT

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP)—It took only ten minutes and a telephone number today to establish a new "office" when the London bureau of the Associated Press was temporarily bombed out of its home in Tudor street, just off Fleet street's famous "newspaper row."

Then, through London's blacked-out streets, the office was moved a quarter mile under fire to more advantageous quarters.

As night editor, I was filing dispatches on the second floor of our Tudor street building when a German bomb exploded directly before the front door, blasting a 33-foot crater, shattering windows and setting a big fire.

Even before the fire-fighters arrived, we were rushing to a newspaper office up the street to re-establish contact by telephone with the censorship bureau, the cable company and the Ministry of information.

Operating in 10 Minutes

In ten minutes flat, "AP London" was operating again. The cable company arranged to receive all our copy by 'phone and transmit it across the Atlantic immediately at almost the same speed as if our teleprinter system in Tudor street were still operating.

Similarly, the censorship office was given the telephone and extension number where we could be reached—an important item in getting dispatches moved quickly.

The new office proved unsuitable for mechanical reasons, so the cable company and the censorship were notified that "The Associated Press is now heading for a more advantageous building," and they were told to call us there.

It took the office—which then consisted of myself, a girl teleprinter operator, the night editor of The Associated Press of Great Britain and an office boy—another ten minutes to reach the second refuge.

Firing Continues

We heard firing as we went, and the noise quickened just as we reached the new office.

Two calls were waiting—one from the censor, one from the cable company. Arrangements were rapidly made to have both outgoing and incoming telephones, with The Associated Press of Great Britain using the incoming line to take foreign cables, which were very important to the British at that hour because Berlin was being bombed.

The "APGB," incidentally, was the first to distribute the news of the Berlin bombing to Britain despite our own bomb-forced march and counter-march.

Drew Middleton, one of our staff writers, twice went back to our Tudor street office during a heavy bombardment. He toured the bombed area while the raid was thickest and then came back to our new headquarters with a full story of the attack on central London—the fiercest of the war.

SCENE OF BRITISH-FRENCH BATTLE IN DAKAR

Here is a view of Dakar, which was stormed by units of the British fleet after the French West African colony rejected an ultimatum of surrender. O'Conor Proclaims Oct. 16 National Draft Day in Md.

Asks Employers To Allow All Workers Time To Register

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25 (AP)—Gov. O'Conor today formally proclaimed Wednesday, Oct. 16 as registration day under selective training and service act of 1940.

O'Conor called upon all men between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-five to register between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m.

His proclamation said in part:

"I call upon all officials and employes of the state of Maryland and its political subdivisions, as well as our citizenry generally, to perform all acts and services necessary to assist in the accomplishment of such registration, and I specifically urge the generous and unselfish cooperation of all local election officials and others whose services may be required.

Urges Cooperation

"In keeping with the patriotic nature of this registration, I furthermore urge all individuals and public bodies having control thereof to make available to the respective boards the usual voting places within the various registration areas of the state.

"I particularly urge that all employers and governmental agencies grant those under their charge and in their employ sufficient time from work on that day to permit them to fulfill the obligation of registration laid upon them by said act.

"America faces a real emergency. The necessities of the times make it imperative that our nation train and equip military forces in such numbers, and on such a basis, as shall insure protection to our country and its free institutions against the serious threats now being directed against them.

French Air Attacks on Gibraltar Anger State Department Officials

Vichy Government Severely Criticized for Aiding Axis Powers against Great Britain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—French air attacks on Gibraltar and stubborn resistence to the De Gaulle forces at Dakar angered Washington officials today and put a heavier strain on Franco-American relations.

Formal comment was lacking at the state department but some administration officials were heated in their criticism of the Vichy government for aiding the Axis powers actively against a former Ally, Great Britain.

While recognizing France's difficulties as a captured nation, the official view here was that the Petain regime was displaying an unusual amount of willingness to cooperate with Germany and Italy.

This was the reaction particularly to the bombing of Gibraltar by French planes, while officials made no attempt to conceal their disappointment at the failure of the "free France" forces, aided by the British, to take control of the strategic West African port of Dakar.

Senators Oppose Sending Big U. S. Planes to London

Lodge Says We Cannot Afford To Get Rid of Bombers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Several senators expressed opposition today to any plan to make available to England the giant four-motored bombing planes produced for the U. S. army.

Senator Lodge (R-Mass) opened the subject with the comment that there had been proposals in the press to send England thirty-two of the big bombers. He told the Senate that only forty-six were immediately available.

"I can't undrstand how we can afford to get rid of these ships unless we are prepared to have our pilot training program suffer materially," Lodge declared. He added that experts had told him the United States should have 1,000 of the four motored ships on hand.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) attributed sentiment for sending the bombers to Britain to a "propoganda organization which is apparently dominating the foreign policy of the United States at the present time."

Senator Holt (D-WVa) joined the discussion to call attention to reports that Gibraltar had been bombed by "American planes we sent to France to stop the German dictator."

Employment, Payrolls Higher in August

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP) — Employment and payrolls in Maryland last month gained over July and were well above August of last year, John M. Pohlhaus, commissioner of labor and statistics, announced today.

Employment increased 1.7 per cent from July to August and combined weekly payrolls rose 1.9 per cent.

The factory employment index was 22.4 percent above August last year, and the payrolls' index 21.5 per cent higher.

The gains were seasonal, but larger than average, Pohlhaus said.

Two French Senegal Submarines Sunk during Engagement

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 25 — The British navy and the "free" French forces of General Charles de Gaulle abruptly withdrew tonight from Dakar, and the British announced officially that they had given up a costly three-day naval and air battle for that key port of French West Africa.

The British ministry of information, in a communique, said it never had been Britain's intention to "enter into serious warlike operations" against the French, and that de Gaulle himself was "most anxious that he should not be the cause of bloodshed to his fellow countrymen."

(The French government at Vichy, before it heard the news, reported the fighting continued full-scale today, with its force of 6,000 Colonials staving off the British landing attempts.)

The British acknowledged that the Dakar shore batteries scored hits on British ships, said that the port suffered bombardment, and that two French Senegal submarines were sunk.

Casualties were acknowledged on both sides.

Even the newest of French battleships, the Richelieu, which the British had reported they put out of action in a special expedition to Dakar last July 8, joined in the fray.

German Newspaper Charges U. S. Attempting "Brutal Imperialism"

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP) — The Hamburger Fremdenblatt, usually well-versed in German foreign office trends, pictured the United States today as embarking upon "brutal imperialism," with England's crisis regarded as a "welcome occasion" for pushing the British away from the American coast.

Recent transactions whereby the United States got vital western hemisphere defenses bases for fifty-over-age destroyers have shown, the newspaper asserted, that the United States is determined to "profit from the great new order which has been set in motion by the living crisis of the British empire."

The newspaper said President Roosevelt "is doing his utmost to recommend himself to future histories as an augmenter of his land."

Canada in the future, it went on, "will be increasingly controlled by the United States" and "the Stars and Stripes will wave over the oldest colonial possession of the empire in the West Indies."

On the Atlantic side of the Panama canal the United States fleet is to take over the functions formerly performed by the British fleet, Fremdenblatt declared.

Harking back to President Roosevelt, the newspaper called him "the champion of world political reaction" during the Italian-Ethiopion war, in far eastern affairs, and has occupied the same role in connection with "the German fight for freedom."

The United States, it asserted, is pursuing "a policy with a false bottom by which moral maxims play a great role in Washington."

The United States was described as "an intelligent pupil of England's in that it takes the example "of a poor small island" to describe itself as "a threatened continent" and thus acquire fleet bases and "a cover for its economic imperialism."

Rear Engines in Passenger Cars Looms as a Strong Probability

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 25, (AP)—The present use of rear engines in passenger buses foreshadows possible adoption of the principle in private automobiles, E. S. Pardoe of Washington, D. C., told the American Transit association today.

He said the heavy buses have served as "most efficient proving grounds" for new developments in automobiles, on the theory that what is practical for heavy loads can be made effective for lighter vehicles.

He mentioned "fluid drive" as one of many new automotive principles pre-tested in buses.

Discuss Use of Radio

Three operators told of the values of two-way radio communication between a central dispatch office and mobile street supervisory units, in speedy handling of breakdowns and accidents in urban transportation.

The paper was prepared jointly by K. M. Hoover of New York City, J. A. Riner of Spokane, Wash., and C. S. Richmond of Detroit, Mich. Hoover stressed that the systems are for emergency use only and are licensed with that restriction.

Ready for Defense

President Samuel W. Greenland of St. Louis, Mo., said in an interview that a recent canvass of the nation's transit companies showed adequate facilities to handle public transportation in cities where defense activities are being expanded most.

"So far as moving the general public in their every day work, the extra press of armament workers to and from new and enlarged plants, and military personnel in its speeded-up work is concerned," he declared, "the transit industry will be ready.

"It has and will continue to have adequate facilities on hand. That is our solemn pledge to the nation."

Sales Executive Ends Life in Belief He Was Cause of 3 Deaths

NEW YORK, Sept. 25, (AP)—Believing an act he performed in the line of duty had caused a subordinate to kill his two children and take his own life, Robert Fletcher Sadler, a sales executive, plunged 180 feet to his death today from the Manhattan bridge over the East River.

Detectives who identified the body after it was recovered by a police tug said executives and employees of the International Business Machines Co., told them Sadler had brooded for hours over the suicide of Donal O'Reilly who had slain his sons Donal, Jr., eight, and Jimmy, seven.

Discharged by the company a week ago, O'Reilly had concealed the fact from his wife and family and, unable to get another job, took his boys' lives and his own on a willow-lined lane along the Bronx river, where the three bullet-pierced bodies were found yesterday.

Sadler, a West Point graduate, charged with the inspection of the work O'Reilly and other demonstrators did, fellow workers told police, had made an installation report on a job O'Reilly had performed.

Charles S. Scott, company branch manager said he and other employes had assured Sadler, the father of two children, that his report had nothing to do with the man's subsequent discharge and his later acts, but that Sadler had been inconsolable.

On his way to the company's Brooklyn office, Sadler stopped his automobile near the Manhattan bridge's Brooklyn tower, removed his coat and vest and, in full view of passing motorists, plunged to the

LONDON, Sept. 25 — The British navy and the "free" French forces of General Charles de Gaulle abruptly withdrew tonight from Dakar, and the British announced officially that they had given up a costly three-day naval and air battle for that key port of French West Africa.

The British ministry of information, in a communique, said it never had been Britain's intention to "enter into serious warlike operations" against the French, and that de Gaulle himself was "most anxious that he should not be the cause of bloodshed to his fellow countrymen."

(The French government at Vichy, before it heard the news, reported the fighting continued full-scale today, with its force of 6,000 Colonials staving off the British landing attempts.)

The British acknowledged that the Dakar shore batteries scored hits on British ships, said that the port suffered bombardment, and that two French Senegal submarines were sunk.

Casualties were acknowledged on both sides.

Even the newest of French battleships, the Richelieu, which the British had reported they put out of action in a special expedition to Dakar last July 8, joined in the fray.

Berlin Attacked For Five Hours

Many Germans Spend Night in Chilly Cellars; Damage Unknown

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (Thursday) (AP)—British bombers lashed at Berlin's outskirts last night and today for five hours in the city's longest air raid, which started before bedtime and forced many a home-bound Berliner to spend the night in a strange, chilly cellar.

Most of the raiders appeared to stay over Berlin's industrial suburbs, but two waves of them passed over the city, and central Berlin anti-aircraft cannon blazed away on both occasions.

No bombs were heard bursting in

High Winds and Heavy Rains Hit Nearly All of Md.

Considerable Damage to Property and Bay Ships

By The Associated Press

Damaging winds in southern Maryland and heavy rain in nearly every other section plummeted temperatures yesterday (Wednesday) and brought Maryland an advance notice that winter was on the way.

At Crisfield a heavy gale accompanied by a torrential rain blew down street signs, uprooted trees and lifted roofs off a number of small buildings. Several small boats in the harbor broke loose from their moorings and blew ashore.

Winds estimated at sixty miles an hour struck sections of Calvert and Prince Georges county, causing severe damage to corn and tobacco crops.

Rainfall in Washington county in a fourteen-hour period ending at noon totaled 3.98 inches, and J. A. Miller, government weather observer at Keedysville, said streams were running bankfull. There was no fear of floods, however.

Frederick reported 3.76 inches of rain, and Cumberland had an all-night downpour.

The storm apparently moved eastward across the state, for rain and high winds struck Annapolis during the morning, and Salisbury reported a deluge in mid-afternoon.

Senators Oppose Sending Big U. S. Planes to London

Lodge Says We Cannot Afford To Get Rid of Bombers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Several senators expressed opposition today to any plan to make available to England the giant four-motored bombing planes produced for the U. S. army.

Senator Lodge (R-Mass) opened the subject with the comment that there had been proposals in the press to send England thirty-two of the big bombers. He told the Senate that only forty-six were immediately available.

"I can't undrstand how we can afford to get rid of these ships unless we are prepared to have our pilot training program suffer materially," Lodge declared. He added that experts had told him the United States should have 1,000 of the four motored ships on hand.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) attributed sentiment for sending the bombers to Britain to a "propoganda organization which is apparently dominating the foreign policy of the United States at the present time."

Senator Holt (D-WVa) joined the discussion to call attention to reports that Gibraltar had been bombed by "American planes we sent to France to stop the German

Employment, Payrolls Higher in August

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP) — Employment and payrolls in Maryland last month gained over July and were well above August of last year, John M. Pohlhaus, commissioner of labor and statistics, announced today.

Employment increased 1.7 per cent from July to August and combined weekly payrolls rose 1.9 per cent.

The factory employment index was 22.4 percent above August last year, and the payrolls' index 21.5 per cent higher.

Roosevelt Calls 35,700 Guardsmen

All Will Report Oct. 15 for Training in Various Camps

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP) — Another contingent of civilian soldiers — 35,700 in all — was called to active duty by President Roosevelt today, bringing to almost 100,000 the number of officers and men summoned for a year of intensive military training since congress made such training possible.

Today's order covered national guardsmen and officers from New York, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Mississippi, Puerto Rico and Hawaii.

German Newspaper Charges U. S. Attempting "Brutal Imperialism"

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP) — The Hamburger Fremdenblatt, usually well-versed in German foreign office trends, pictured the United States today as embarking upon "brutal imperialism," with England's crisis regarded as a "welcome occasion" for pushing the British away from the American coast.

Recent transactions whereby the United States got vital western hemisphere defenses bases for fifty-over-age destroyers have shown, the newspaper asserted, that the United States is determined to "profit from the great new order which has been set in motion by the living crisis of the British empire."

The newspaper said President Roosevelt "is doing his utmost to recommend himself to future histories as an augmenter of his land."

Canada in the future, it went on, "will be increasingly controlled by the United States" and "the Stars and Stripes will wave over the oldest colonial possession of the empire in the West Indies."

On the Atlantic side of the Panama canal the United States fleet is to take over the functions formerly performed by the British fleet, Fremdenblatt declared.

Harking back to President Roosevelt, the newspaper called him "the champion of world political reaction" during the Italian-Ethiopion war, in far eastern affairs, and has occupied the same role in connection with "the German fight for freedom."

The United States, it asserted, is pursuing "a policy with a false bottom by which moral maxims play a great role in Washington."

The United States was described as "an intelligent pupil of England's in that it takes the example "of a poor small island" to describe itself as "a threatened continent" and thus acquire fleet bases and "a coyer for its economic imperialism."

Rear Engines in Passenger Cars Looms as a Strong Probability

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W Va., Sept. 25, (AP)—The present use of rear engines in passenger buses foreshadows possible adoption of the principle in private automobiles, E. S. Pardoe of Washington, D. C., told the American Transit association today.

He said the heavy buses have served as "most efficient proving grounds" for new developments in automobiles, on the theory that what is practical for heavy loads can be made effective for lighter vehicles.

He mentioned "fluid drive" as one of many new automotive principles pre-tested in buses.

Discuss Use of Radio

Three operators told of the values of two-way radio communication, between a central dispatch office and mobile street supervisory units, in speedy handling of breakdowns and accidents in urban transportation.

The paper was prepared jointly by K. M. Hoover of New York City, J. A. Riner of Spokane, Wash., and C. S. Richmond of Detroit, Mich. Hoover stressed that the systems are for emergency use only and are licensed with that restriction.

Ready for Defense

President Samuel W. Greenland of St. Louis, Mo., said in an interview that a recent canvass of the nation's transit companies showed adequate facilities to handle public transportation in cities where defense activities are being expanded most.

"So far as moving the general public in their every day work, the extra press of armament workers to and from new and enlarged plants, and military personnel in its speeded-up work is concerned," he declared, "the transit industry will be ready.

"It has and will continue to have adequate facilities on hand. That is our solemn pledge to the nation."

Sales Executive Ends Life in Belief He Was Cause of 3 Deaths

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP)—Believing an act he performed in the line of duty had caused a subordinate to kill his two children and take his own life, Robert Fletcher Sadler, a sales executive, plunged 180 feet to his death today from the Manhattan bridge over the East River.

Detectives who identified the body after it was recovered by a police tug said executives and employees of the International Business Machines Co., told them Sadler had brooded for hours over the suicide of Donal O'Reilly who had slain his sons Donal, Jr., eight, and Jimmy, seven.

Discharged by the company a week ago, O'Reilly had concealed the fact from his wife and family and unable to get another job, took his boys' lives and his own on a willow-lined lane along the Bronx river, where the three bullet-pierced podies were found yesterday.

Sadler, a West Point graduate, charged with the inspection of the work O'Reilly and other demonstrators did, fellow workers told police, had made an installation report on a job O'Reilly had performed.

Charles S. Scott, company branch manager said he and other employes had assured Sadler, the father of two children, that his report had nothing to do with the man's subsequent discharge and his later acts, but that Sadler had been inconsolable.

On his way to the company's Brooklyn office, Sadler stopped his automobile near the Manhattan bridge's Brooklyn tower, removed his coat and vest and, in full view of passing motorists, plunged to the

Legion in Favor Of Giving Help To Great Britain

Also Advocates Defense Program To Safeguard America

By ALEX SINGLETON

BOSTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—The American Legion voted overwhelmingly today in favor of giving "all practicable aid to Great Britain" in conjunction with a defense program designed to make America "strong enough to meet and turn back any possible invasion before it arrives."

Warren Atherton of California, chairman of the twenty-second convention's committee on national defense, termed the pro-British resolution "a new step in the direction of closer support" for that country. The legion advocated strict neutrality at its convention last year.

Would Control Aliens

The veterans' recommendations for strengthening the United States armed forces went far beyond the nation's present expansion program, greatest in its history, and at the same time called for legislation to provide for strict supervision over aliens and for elimination of "subversive" activities.

The 1,400-odd delegates, representing more than a million former service men, urged creation of a permanent system of universal military training, and increases in the personnel of the army, navy, air corps and merchant marine, the national guard and the R. O. T. C.

In a long range program growing out of the war abroad and preparedness plans at home, the soldiers of two decades ago urged acquisition of additional bases for naval expansion, and endorsed "the principle of exchanging obsolete equipment for needed air and naval bases."

Would Deport Bridges

Universal fingerprinting of all citizens was recommended, along with legislation to prevent members of the communist party, the German-American bund and "other foreign subversive groups" from holding either elective or appointive public office.

One resolution urged immediate deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader.

While Boston returned to normalcy after entertaining the biggest parade crowd in its history yesterday, the delegates picked Milwaukee as the scene for their national convention in 1941 after receiving assurances that a purse of $120,000 had been raised for expenses. Kansas City also bid for the convention.

LEGION STAGES ITS OWN BOSTON TEA PARTY

Alleged Slayer Granted Parole By Commissioner

Arlie Lewis Freed when Improper Trial Is Charged

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25 (AP) — A Wicomico county resident sentenced in 1935 to fifteen years on a second degree murder charge won a parole recommendation today after a hearing established that the judge, prosecuting attorney and defense counsel committed an error in handling his case.

Arlie Lewis, the defendant, was convicted in the death of Howard Kelly, whose body was found in a mill pond, near Powellsville, Wicomico county.

His attorney informed Judge Benjamin A. Johnson that he believed Lewis was insane, and that he could obtain no information from him about Kelly's death.

A petition was filed under Chap- "436 of the Acts of 1931, asking 'y ruling on Lewis's sanity. A as held and Lewis was found Another trial, on charges of s.. id degree murder, was held and Lewis sentenced after his counsel entered a guilty plea.

But Chapter 436 of the Acts of 1931, it was brought out today, was repealed by Chapter eighty-one of the Acts of 1933. The latter law provided that a defendant's sanity and guilt should be established at one trial.

Judge Concerned

"This case is one that has since the date of trial given me considerable concern x x x" Judge Johnson wrote Parole Director Herman Moser.

"I have always been of the opinion that the trial of the separate issue of sanity prejudiced Lewis, because at its conclusion his counsel simply gave up and saw nothing to do but compel him to plead guilty. "He never has, even to this day, had a trial on the merits of his case."

Moser recommended twelve of 120 convicts who comprised the largest parole docket to be reviewed at a single hearing by a Maryland parole director.

Ten cases, including those of three life-termers, Thomas Foran, Claude Dobbs and Frank Smith, were continued and the other ninety-eight were reported unfavorably. The Foran and Dobbs cases will be heard Dec. 11 and Smith's Oct. 23.

Those recommended for parole included:

William T. Cooper, serving three years on a manslaughter charge preferred in Garrett county last year.

Edward W. Case sentenced to one year on an embezzlement charge brought in Carroll county last May.

Clarence Rohrer, serving eighteen months on a non-support charge lodged in Washington county this spring.

Moser said Case, now 60, was a Frederick real estate broker. Case accepted $100 from a Baltimore woman but was unable to produce the title to property sought by the woman, the parole director asserted.

Daytime Attack

Drop Fire Bombs

Much of their attack was concentrated in a northwestern area, where flaming incendiary bombs were dropped. (The great Hendon military airdrome is in that general area.)

Summing up tonight the heavy action of the day, the Air Ministry said really large bomber formations had appeared over England for the first time "since the luftwaffe's defeat of Sept. 15" — the day when 185 German raiders were declared shot down—and added that again this time a high proportion of bombers were destroyed. To illustrate the claim, the ministry said that on the twenty three German planes knocked down in the day's action, eighteen were bombers.

During the day the great struggle spread over a long and irregular battle line extending from London to the French and Belgian coasts.

London — where the bursting shrapnel of the anti-aircraft batteries had driven off one heavy daylight attack by Nazi raiders — was no longer the one great objective, but merely one localized area of a mighty struggle.

Attack Coastal Points

German planes attacked nearly all of coastal England, coming over in irregular waves like infantrymen at the charge, and the alarms shrieked and died and rose again. One single group, which swept over the southwest coast and fell then into three separate squadrons, numbered nearly 100 planes.

Across the strait of Dover, British bombers went on with their bombardment of the German coastal bases and gun emplacements, and the vast rolling explosions which arose indicated it was the heaviest of all the almost endless British attacks there.

Other British pilots reported they had set the infantry barracks ablaze, damaged the docks and started a great fire on and about the railroad sidings at the German-held French naval base of Brest.

A single airplane of the coastal command loosed a diving attack upon three convoyed German supply ships near the Frisian islands, in the North Sea off the northern Netherlands coast, and was declared to have sunk the largest.

Navy and French

wrought great havoc in Dakar and inflicted heavy casualties.

(The battleships Barham and Resolution and the heavy cruiser Kent were hit, the French asserted, the latter reeling away from the fight with a sharp list and trailing oil.

(In addition, the French said their heavy reprisal bombings of Gibraltar had damaged the British battle cruiser renown and caused severe damage to the Gibraltar works.)

The genesis of the Dakar venture was laid by the ministry of information to de Gaulle, who, it said, had reason to believe that the French colony of Senegal would welcome his arrival, and establish an anti-German situation such as already existed in French equatorial Africa.

The British naval squadron went along, the ministry said, to support de Gaulle if he needed aid, and because of growing German influence in the colony.

De Gaulle Not Welcome

Instead of the welcome he expected, de Gaulle and his white-flagged emissaries, sent ashore from his force of about 7,000 men on six transports, ran into fierce gun fire.

The British admiral ordered the French ashore to desist. When they continued shooting, the British guns returned the fire.

Then, after three days, the ministry said, the decision to stop fighting was reached "when it became plain that only a major operation of war" could win control of the strategic capital of West Africa.

(The withdrawal after a bloody fight, recalled similar British adversities in this war: the withdrawals from Norway, from the low countries and from British Somaliland.)

But the ministry asserted "it had never been the intention of his majesty's government to enter into serious warlike operations against those Frenchmen who felt it their duty to obey the command of the Vichy government."

De Gaulle, British Scored

(The Vichy government, which late tonight had reported that it believed the battle still in progress, was bitter in denunciation of both the British and de Gaulle.

(It said six British landing attempts had failed and the violent attacks had killed at least 250 Frenchmen and wounded 588.)

The ministry reiterated the British contention that the expedition against Dakar was decided upon by De Gaulle and endorsed and supported by the British, because:

(1) De Gaulle believed a large proposition of the Senegalese population favored his cause and would welcome his arrival;

(2) The British had received information that the Germans were taking over in Dakar, strategic naval port less than 1,900 miles from South America, and controlling South Atlantic air channels as well as being a rail-head for interior Africa.

In its account of the give and take between British warships and Dakar shore batteries, the ministry said the French battleship Richelieu, although previously damaged, alesо joined the battle "and consequently her fire had to be returned."

Three Submarines Attack

Three submarines then came out to attack the attackers, the account went on, "and active measures had to be taken against them with the result that two were sunk." The crew of one was saved and will be repatriated, the announcement added.

Then, the ministry acknowledged De Gaulle attempted to land some of his troops—(estimated in some quarters as totalling 7,000, aboard six troopships)—but "was not successful."

The announcement concluded:

"General De Gaulle himself was most anxious that he should not be the cause of bloodshed to his fellow-countrymen. The forces therefore now are being withdrawn from the region of Dakar."

Willkie Pleased

in his hands, prices began to fall," the candidate added.

"If you elect him for a third term, there will be no limit to the imagination of what he has a mandate to do."

The nominee said he had observed that Thomas G. Corcoran, a White House advisory, was seeking to build an organization for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt "that ought to elect me," Willkie commented.

Berlin Attacked

the center of the city, and from that point no fires could be seen.

Authorities issued a statement charging the British with "aimless" bombing of residential sections, destroying a number of houses.

(As an example of the stringency of German air raid precautions, another story from the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press was five hours and fifty-four minutes in transit to New York, as facilities shut down tight. London communication facilities have been operating regularly throughout the continual raids on the British capital.)

Roosevelt Calls

called out 60,500 militia men from other states.

The units affected by today's order were designated by the war department on Sept. 16 to report for duty by Oct. 15. The president's order constituted the legal call.

During the day, Mr. Roosevelt also signed into law an army housing bill appropriating $338,263,902 for barracks and other facilities for men drafted into the service.

Selective service officials said it was possible, however, that volunteers rather than draftees would use a large part of these facilities during the first phase of the conscription program. At the rate that men were volunteering for their year's service, they said, a considerable portion of the first compulsory service quota might be filled without a draft.

Many Enlisting

Many men, they added, have shown a desire to get their year of training out of the way in a hurry, so that they might go into business or attend college without fear of interruption.

Meanwhile, Secretary Knox said that the navy would be able to get all the men it needed from voluntary applicants, of which there are more than 8,000 on the waiting list.

The creation of a new post — undersecretary of war — to facilitate the national defense program was recommended by the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

South Shivers in Early Cold Wave

By The Associated Press

Sections of the south shivered last (Wednesday) night as a huge mass of cold air sweeping down from Canada sent the mercury tumbling and gave an early wintry touch to a widespread area from West Virginia southward across the Carolinas and Tennessee into Georgia.

At Atlanta, the mercury plummeted in six hours from 80 to the middle 50's. It was 48 at Louisville, Ky. A high of 87 at Raleigh, N. C., was counterbalanced by a low reading of 58. It was eight degrees colder at Richmond, Va.

A brisk northwesterly breeze aided in forcing the mercury down.

The central part of the nation reported light to heavy frost, and below-freezing temperatures chilled states along the Canadian border.

In the west, Phoenix, Ariz., baked in 101-degree weather.

Mrs. Ethel A. Atkins Clubbed to Death in Penna. Farmhouse

HORSHAM, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP) — A one-time waitress who was clubbed to death in a dusty, unoccupied farmhouse near this southeastern Pennsylvania hamlet was identified today as the former wife of a young scion of the wealthy Duke family.

She was Mrs. Ethel M. Atkins, 35. Investigators said they had learned she first was married in 1921 when only sixteen to John Cicero Angier, of Durham, N. C.

Angier is a nephew of Mrs. B. N. Duke, whose late husband helped found the family's tobacco fortune. Angier, married a second time, is now living in Baltimore, Md.

District Attorney Frederick B. Smillie said he traced the relationship through telephone calls to Durham and Baltimore.

Leaves Twin Sons

The slain woman, whose maiden name was Ethel Craft, came from an humble Philadelphia family. Three children, two boys and a girl, of her first marriage are now living in Durham. Philadelphia relatives are caring for twin sons of her second marriage, three-year old Johnny and Jimmy.

Her second husband, James F. Atkins, 32-year old Philadelphia bricklayer, first linked her to Angier in a statement to police.

Atkins identified the body after it had lain for fourteen hours in an Abington, Pa., hospital.

Presence Unexplained

District Attorney Smillie said Atkins told him he was at a loss to explain the young woman's presence in the isolated farmhouse, nearly twenty miles from the Atkins home in Philadelphia. Atkins said he had not seen his wife since she left home last Saturday.

The body was found crumpled on a stairway last night by the farmhouse owner while showing the House to prospective tenants.

The victim was clad only in stockings and one slipper. A dress lay in a heap in the bare living room downstairs. In two rooms on the second floor of the two and one-half story house were evidences of a struggle — blood on the walls and the floor and a wooden club, three feet long.

Shipbuilders Strike In Bethlehem Plant Filling U. S. Orders

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP) — The Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO) struck today at the Sparrows Point shipbuilding division of the Bethlehem Steel Company, currently engaged in filling large national defense orders.

The strike followed a breakdown in negotiations over wages and union recognition.

Philip H. Vangelder, national secretary-treasurer for the union, said approximately 4,000 men had joined the strike. The plant employes 4,000 and 5,000 persons.

Francis G. Wrightson, assistant to the general manager, said operations were "something better than seventy-five per cent of normal" generally, and in the welding department, where the strike centered, were about seventy per cent of normal.

Vangelder said "the Sparrows Point shipyard workers are ready and anxious to do their part in the national defense program, but we do not believe anything in law or justice requires us to work for substandard wages and conditions."

There were no disorders at the plant. Non-striking employes entered and left without interference.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The abandonment of the attempt by British and "free French" forces to secure control of Dakar may prove almost as damaging to British prestige as was the retreat from Norway.

The announcement from London that hostilities had been discontinued at Dakar and the British-French forces withdrawn was a distinct surprise to many observers, who had figured that Britain was in good position to make diplomatic and psychological gains which might far exceed the military and economic value of the west African port.

Exactly what considerations underlay the official explanation of the withdrawal it is difficult to see. It may be that De Gaulle, leader of the "free French" forces, believed he had so many potential adherents in Dakar that the city would fall into his hands like a ripe plum, without hostilities. When this failed to happen, he may have been reluctant to engage in a prolonged death-struggle with his own countrymen.

London's Explanation

The London announcement of the withdrawal stated that "it had never been the intention of his majesty's government to enter into serious warlike operations against those Frenchmen who felt it their duty to obey the command of the Vichy government." However, the world had been led to believe that a serious effort to take the port was in progress, and the Axis undoubtedly will make the most of the withdrawal, playing it up as another serious reverse for Britain.

This could conceivably have its effect on Spain and on other French colonial possessions which are uncertain whether to follow the Petain government or De Gaulle.

The attack on Dakar came just at a time when rumors were current that many citizens of Continental France were increasingly dissatisfied with the Petain government. If De Gaulle had become master of an important segment of Colonial France, the political repercussions on French public opinion might have upset old Marshal Petain and made De Gaulle the hero of the French nation.

Spain's Course in Doubt

Whether Spain will throw her lot with Germany and Italy in hopes of gaining possession of Gibraltar still remains to be seen. It is undoubtedly true, however, that if Dakar had fallen to the British and their French allies, Spain might have been more hesitant to enter the Nazi-Fascist fold completely. Gibraltar's value to Spain would then have been dubious, all the more so since Spain cannot hope to be more than an axis puppet in the "new order" European world envisioned by Hitler and Mussolini.

The effect of the Dakar episode on the Churchill ministry is another thing to be considered. It is recalled that Britain's abandonment of the Trondheim counter-offensive against the Germans in Norway aroused a storm of protest in England. This and other things led to the shelving of Prime Minister Chamberlain.

There is no thought, of course, that anything like that is apt to happen to the Churchill ministry as a result of the Dakar episode, but the event is hardly likely to add anything to the ministry's prestige.

Republicans and Democrats Hurl Charges as Campaign Grows Hot

By The Associated Press

Democratic assaults on Wendell L. Willkie's campaign statements and Republican charges of improper campaign practices by the Democrats featured yesterday's (Wednesday's) political news.

Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential candidate, speaking at Shenandoah, Ia., asserted that Willkie would be unable to keep his pledge to retain agricultural benefits if elected because "the dominant elements in the Republican party have been against the farmer for the last twenty years and are against him today."

Ridicules Willkie

In New York, Edward J. Flynn, Democratic National Chairman, ridiculed Willkie's statements that "he came up the hard way." Flynn said that Willkie "took a few vacation jobs like pretty much every other college boy, more for fun and experience than from necessity," but that soon after leaving college he joined his father's law firm and "from that time on he was a corporation lawyer and lobbyist."

The Republican National Committee charged in a statement that the Democratic committee "has ignored the spirit of the law" by "shaking down" postmasters for contributions. It said that the Democratic committee's report to Congress on receipts from June 1 to Aug. 31 "reveals that of sixty-five individuals who made contributions of $100 or more, more than half were postmasters."

The Republican committee also issued a statement by Rep. Barton (R-NY) saying that a poll of Democrats in his New York City district showed that three times as many planned to vote for Willkie as voted for Alf Landon in 1936.

The information of a group of independents supporting President Roosevelt brought from Oren Root, Jr., chairman of Associated Willkie Clubs of America, the comment in New York that the committee was "largely made up of office holders, or former office holders under the New Deal."

Marguerite Clark Dies at Age of 53

Former Stage and Screen Star Played with Mary Pickford

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Marguerite Clark, doll-like actress who ranked with Mary Pickford in the boom days of silent films, died today.

Stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage five days ago, the golden-haired beauty, plumper than in the days when her dresden China figure won a generation of male movie admirers, succumbed of pneumonia.

Although she was fifty-three and had been retired for twenty years, the tiny veteran of the "road," Broadway stage and Hollywood film lots retained her unflagging interest in stage and screen affairs.

From an Ursuline convent in Cincinnati, her birthplace, she emerged to make her stage debut at thirteen as a child singer with the Aborn Opera Company in Baltimore in 1900.

A year later she came to New York as an understudy and after a rigorous apprenticeship became associated with De Wolf Hopper.

With Hopper she toured the United States playing many roles. She met Mary Pickford when she joined Famous Players in Hollywood and their careers paralleled from then on. Both possessed a piquant charm, and Elfin beauty, and they played romantic leads in similar roles.

They were the most popular actresses of the day.

She renounced the glamor of Kleig lights to marry Harry Palmerston Williams at Greenwich, Conn., on Aug. 15, 1938. In 1935 Williams was killed in a plane crash near Baton Rouge.

Of late she had been living here with her sister, Cora, who is the sole survivor.

End of Monarchy Voted in Norway

OSLO, Norway, (via Berlin) Sept. 25. (AP)—The end of monarchy and Parliament in Norway was announced today by Joseph Terboven, the Nazi high commissioner for this conquered country.

He disclosed that the exiled King Haakon had been removed as chief of state, that the succession had been broken and the king's family deprived of the privileges and powers of royalty.

All political parties were abolished; Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian Nazi, was named the sole political leader and in temporary charge of the government was placed a council of fifteen selected by Terboven himself.

It was stated that Norway henceforth would be neither a monarchy nor a German protectorate. Thus, no precise definition of the new state was given. The indefinite occupation of German troops was provided and a legality was given to that occupation.

Hitler Believed To Have Secured Promise of Military Support

By GLENN BABB

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP)—Japan, with a navy that dominates far eastern waters and one of the world's mightiest armies, soon may abandon her role of non-belligerent friend of the axis powers to proclaim herself their ally.

Trustworthy advices received by the Associated Press in New York say that a special mission sent by Adolf Hitler to Tokyo has been successful and that an announcement of Japan's new role in the rapidly spreading conflict is expected soon.

Accumulating evidence of closer cooperation between the United States and Britain has spurred action on the project for a Japanese-German-Italian alliance, these advices say.

Japanese advocates of such a pact have had their hands strengthened by reports, widely current but unconfirmed, that Britain soon may place her great Singapore base, dominating the cross roads between Occident and Orient, at the disposition of the United States navy.

Nazis Seek Jap Aid

Action to forestall such a contingency has been urged by military men in Japan. In Berlin it is admitted that efforts have been made to draw Japan into the Axis alliance as a counterbalance to growing United States-British cooperation.

The Associated Press' information gives this picture of recent Tokyo developments:

A German envoy, Max Sthamer, specialist on Far Eastern affairs, confidential aide of foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and a relatives of the late Dr. Friedrich Sthamer, one-time ambassador to London, reached Tokyo early this month.

The close secrecy which wraps diplomacy in the Japanese capital and rigid censorship prevented correspondents there from cabling accounts of his mission but it is known that he was well received and made rapid progress.

A Japanese-German-Italian alliance undoubtedly would include the terms for a redrawn map of Asia and its island fringe similar to the new map of Europe and Africa which the Italians and Germans, with the Spaniards waiting in the anteroom for their share, have been drawing in Rome and Berlin.

May Not Enter War

Whether Japan's adherence to the Axis alliance would mean her immediate entry into the war against Britain, already embattled on three continents and the seven seas against the totalitarian powers, has not been disclosed.

If it did she could deal mighty blows to the far-extended British empire of which the United States would feel the repercussions.

Britain has no navy east of Suez that could challenge Japan's mighty and expanding fleet. The Japanese could seize Hong Kong, lay siege to Singapore and make its base useless, cut the lifeline by which Australia and New Zealand are sending formidable forces to the near east for the war which will determine the fate of Africa and the sea highways through the Mediterranean.

British Malaya, Burma, India and the Dominions in the antipodes would be endangered.

Perhaps even Canada's Pacific coast, included in the United States Canadian joint defense agreement, would be threatened by Japanese raiders.

Elliott Roosevelt's Enlistment Called "Damnable' 'by Hornbeck

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP)—Donald Hornbeck chairman of the Young Republican National Federation, asserted today that Elliott Roosevelt's acceptance of a captaincy in the air corps reserve was "nothing short of damnable."

Calling upon him to resign his commission, Hornbeck said at a press conference that young men of the nation were "grumbling" over the appointment.

"They feel that honest selective service is the major need for the country," he added, "but to start it off in this fashion will do their morale no good whatever."

Describing the president's son as "one of the heirs to the throne in the coming dictatorship in the event of Roosevelt's re-election," Hornbeck said:

"It would take him probably five years if he strated from the ground like any other draftee at $30 a month. Now he receives $200, wears no uniform and is assigned by some general in the army to Wright field at Dayton. If that is the manner in which the draft is to be administered by the present federal authorities, I don't believe it will strike a very responsive chord among those who have to serve in their regular turn."

Legion in Favor Of Giving Help To Great Britain

By ALEX SINGLETON

BOSTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—The American Legion voted overwhelmingly today in favor of giving "all practicable aid to Great Britain" in conjunction with a defense program designed to make America "strong enough to meet and turn back any possible invasion before it arrives."

Warren Atherton of California, chairman of the twenty-second convention's committee on national defense, termed the pro-British resolution "a new step in the direction of closer support" for that country. The legion advocated strict neutrality at its convention last year.

Would Control Aliens

The veterans' recommendations for strengthening the United States armed forces went far beyond the nation's present expansion program, greatest in its history, and at the same time called for legislation to provide for strict supervision over aliens and for elimination of "subversive" activities.

The 1,400-odd delegates, representing more than a million former service men, urged creation of a permanent system of universal military training, and increases in the personnel of the army, navy, air corps and merchant marine, the national guard and the R. O. T. C.

In a long range program growing out of the war abroad and preparedness plans at home, the soldiers of two decades ago urged acquisition of additional bases for naval expansion, and endorsed "the principle of exchanging obsolete equipment for needed air and naval bases."

Would Deport Bridges

Universal fingerprinting of all citizens was recommended, along with legislation to prevent members of the communist party, the German-American bund and "other foreign subversive groups" from holding either elective or appointive public office.

One resolution urged immediate deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader.

While Boston returned to normalcy after entertaining the biggest parade crowd in its history yesterday, the delegates picked Milwaukee as the scene for their national convention in 1941 after receiving assurances that a purse of $120,000 had been raised for expenses. Kansas City also bid for the convention.

LEGION STAGES ITS OWN BOSTON TEA PARTY

wrought great havoc in Dakar and inflicted heavy casualties.

(The battleships Barham and Resolution and the heavy cruiser Kent were hit, the French asserted, the latter reeling away from the fight with a sharp list and trailing oil.)

(In addition, the French said their heavy reprisal bombings of Gibraltar had damaged the British battle cruiser renown and caused severe damage to the Gibraltar works.)

The genesis of the Dakar venture was laid by the ministry of information to de Gaulle, who, it said, had reason to believe that the French colony of Senegal would welcome his arrival, and establish an anti-German situation such as already existed in French equatorial Africa.

The British naval squadron went along, the ministry said, to support de Gaulle if he needed aid, and because of growing German influence in the colony.

De Gaulle Not Welcome

Instead of the welcome he expected, de Gaulle and his white-flagged emissaries, sent ashore from his force of about 7,000 men on six transports, ran into fierce gun fire.

The British admiral ordered the French ashore to desist. When they continued shooting, the British guns returned the fire.

Then, after three days, the ministry said, the decision to stop fighting was reached "when it became plain that only a major operation of war" could win control of the strategic capital of West Africa.

(The withdrawal after a bloody fight, recalled similar British adversities in this war: the withdrawals from Norway, from the low countries and from British Somaliland.)

But the ministry asserted "it had never been the intention of his majesty's government to enter into serious warlike operations against those Frenchmen who felt it their duty to obey the command of the Vichy government."

De Gaulle, British Scored

(The Vichy government, which late tonight had reported that it believed the battle still in progress, was bitter in denunciation of both the British and de Gaulle.

It said six British landing attempts had failed and the violent attacks had killed at least 250 Frenchmen and wounded 588.)

The ministry reiterated the British contention that the expedition against Dakar was decided upon by De Gaulle and endorsed and supported by the British, because:

(1) De Gaulle believed a large proportion of the Senegalese population favored his cause and would welcome his arrival;

(2) The British had received information that the Germans were taking over in Dakar, strategic naval port less than 1,900 miles from South America, and controlling South Atlantic air channels as well as being a rail-head for interior Africa.

In its account of the give and take between British warships and Dakar shore batteries, the ministry said the French battleship Richelieu, although previously damaged, alesо joined the battle "and consequently her fire had to be returned."

Three Submarines Attack

Three submarines then came out to attack the attackers, the account went on, "and active measures had to be taken against them with the result that two were sunk." The crew of one was saved and will be repatriated, the announcement added.

Then, the ministry acknowledged De Gaulle attempted to land some of his troops—(estimated in some quarters as totalling 7,000, aboard six troopships)—but "was not successful."

The announcement concluded:

"General De Gaulle himself was most anxious that he should not be the cause of bloodshed to his fellow-countrymen. The forces therefore now are being withdrawn from the region of Dakar."

Daytime Attack

Drop Fire Bombs

Much of their attack was concentrated in a northwestern area, where flaming incendiary bombs were dropped. (The great Hendon military airdrome is in that general area.)

Summing up tonight the heavy action of the day, the Air Ministry said really large bomber formations had appeared over England for the first time "since the luftwaffe's defeat of Sept. 15" — the day when 185 German raiders were declared shot down—and added that again this time a high proportion of bombers were destroyed. To illustrate the claim, the ministry said that on the twenty three German planes knocked down in the day's action eighteen were bombers.

During the day the great struggle spread over a long and irregular battle line extending from London to the French and Belgian coasts.

London — where the bursting shrapnel of the anti-aircraft batteries had driven off one heavy daylight attack by Nazi raiders — was no longer the one great objective, but merely one localized area of a mighty struggle.

Attack Coastal Points

German planes attacked nearly all of coastal England, coming over in irregular waves like infantrymen at the charge, and the alarms shrieked and died and rose again. One single group, which swept over the southwest coast and fell then into three separate squadrons, numbered nearly 100 planes.

Across the strait of Dover, British bombers went on with their bombardment of the German coastal bases and gun emplacements, and the vast rolling explosions which arose indicated it was the heaviest of all the almost endless British attacks there.

Other British pilots reported they had set the infantry barracks ablaze, damaged the docks and started a great fire on and about the railroad sidings at the German-held French naval base of Brest.

A single airplane of the coastal command loosed a diving attack upon three convoyed German supply ships near the Frisian islands, in the North Sea off the northern Netherlands coast, and was declared to have sunk the largest.

in his hands, prices began to fall," the candidate added.

"If you elect him for a third term, there will be no limit to the imagination of what he has a mandate to do."

The nominee said he had observed that Thomas G. Corcoran, a White House advisory, was seeking to build an organization for the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt. "That ought to elect me," Willkie commented.

Alleged Slayer Granted Parole By Commissioner

Arlie Lewis Freed when Improper Trial Is Charged

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25 (AP) — A Wicomico county resident sentenced in 1935 to fifteen years on a second degree murder charge won a parole recommendation today after a hearing established that the judge, prosecuting attorney and defense counsel committed an error in handling his case.

Arlie Lewis, the defendant, was convicted in the death of Howard Kelly, whose body was found in a mill pond, near Powellsville, Wicomico county.

His attorney informed Judge Benjamin A. Johnson that he believed Lewis was insane, and that he could obtain no information from him about Kelly's death.

A petition was filed under Chap- ...436 of the Acts of 1931, asking ...y ruling on Lewis's sanity. A ...as held and Lewis was found ...

Another trial, on charges of ...ond degree murder, was held and Lewis sentenced after his counsel entered a guilty plea.

But Chapter 436 of the Acts of 1931, it was brought out today, was repealed by Chapter eighty-one of the Acts of 1933. The latter law provided that a defendant's sanity and guilt should be established at one trial.

Judge Concerned

"This case is one that has since the date of trial given me considerable concern x x x" Judge Johnson wrote Parole Director Herman Moser.

"I have always been of the opinion that the trial of the separate issue of sanity prejudiced Lewis, because at its conclusion his counsel simply gave up and saw nothing to do but compel him to plead guilty.

"He never has, even to this day, had a trial on the merits of his case."

Ten cases, including those of three life-termers, Thomas Foran, Claude Dobbs and Frank Smith, were continued and the other ninety-eight were reported unfavorably. The Foran and Dobbs cases will be heard Dec. 11 and Smith's Oct. 23.

Those recommended for parole included:

William T. Cooper, serving three years on a manslaughter charge preferred in Garrett county last year.

Edward W. Case sentenced to one year on an embezzlement charge brought in Carroll county last May.

Clarence Rohrer, serving eighteen months on a non-support charge lodged in Washington county this spring.

Moser said Case, now 60, was a Frederick real estate broker. Case accepted $100 from a Baltimore woman but was unable to produce the title to property sought by the woman, the parole director asserted.

Roosevelt Calls

called out 60,500 militia men from other states.

The units affected by today's order were designated by the war department on Sept. 16 to report for duty by Oct. 15. The president's order constituted the legal call.

During the day, Mr. Roosevelt also signed into law an army housing bill appropriating $338,263,902 for barracks and other facilities for men drafted into the service.

Selective service officials said it was possible, however, that volunteers rather than draftees would use a large part of these facilities during the first phase of the conscription program. At the rate that men were volunteering for their year's service, they said, a considerable portion of the first compulsory service quota might be filled without a draft.

Many Enlisting

Many men, they added, have shown a desire to get their year of training out of the way in a hurry, so that they might go into business or attend college without fear of interruption.

Meanwhile, Secretary Knox said that the navy would be able to get all the men it needed from voluntary applicants, of which there are more than 8,000 on the waiting list.

The creation of a new post — undersecretary of war — to facilitate the national defense program was recommended by the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

South Shivers in Early Cold Wave

By The Associated Press

Sections of the south shivered last (Wednesday) night as a huge mass of cold air sweeping down from Canada sent the mercury tumbling and gave an early wintry touch to a widespread area from West Virginia southward across the Carolinas and Tennessee into Georgia.

At Atlanta, the mercury plummeted in six hours from 80 to the middle 50's. It was 48 at Louisville, Ky. A high of 87 at Raleigh, N. C., was counterbalanced by a low reading of 58. It was eight degrees colder at Richmond, Va.

A brisk northwesterly breeze aided in forcing the mercury down.

The central part of the nation reported light to heavy frost, and below-freezing temperatures chilled states along the Canadian border.

In the west, Phoenix, Ariz., baked in 101-degree weather.

Berlin Attacked

the center of the city, and from that point no fires could be seen.

Authorities issued a statement charging the British with "aimless" bombing of residential sections, destroying a number of houses.

(As an example of the stringency of German air raid precautions, another story from the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press was five hours and fifty-four minutes in transit to New York, as facilities shut down tight. London communication facilities have been operating regularly throughout the continual raids on the British capital.)

Wife of Former Scion of Duke Family Slain

Mrs. Ethel A. Atkins Clubbed to Death in Penna. Farmhouse

HORSHAM, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP) — A one-time waitress who was clubbed to death in a dusty, unoccupied farmhouse near this southeastern Pennsylvania hamlet was identified today as the former wife of a young scion of the wealthy Duke family.

She was Mrs. Ethel M. Atkins, 35. Investigators said they had learned she first was married in 1921 when only sixteen to John Cicero Angier, of Durham, N. C.

Angier is a nephew of Mrs. B. N. Duke, whose late husband helped found the family's tobacco fortune. Angier, married a second time, is now living in Baltimore, Md.

District Attorney Frederick B. Smillie said he traced the relationship through telephone calls to Durham and Baltimore.

Leaves Twin Sons

The slain woman, whose maiden name was Ethel Craft, came from an humble Philadelphia family. Three children, two boys and a girl, of her first marriage are now living in Durham. Philadelphia relatives are caring for twin sons of her second marriage, three-year old Johnny and Jimmy.

Her second husband, James F. Atkins, 32-year old Philadelphia bricklayer, first linked her to Angier in a statement to police.

Atkins identified the body after it had lain for fourteen hours in an Abington, Pa., hospital.

Presence Unexplained

District Attorney Smillie said Atkins told him he was at a loss to explain the young woman's presence in the isolated farmhouse, nearly twenty miles from the Atkins home in Philadelphia. Atkins said he had not seen his wife since she left home last Saturday.

The body was found crumpled on a stairway last night by the farmhouse owner while showing the House to prospective tenants.

The victim was clad only in stockings and one slipper. A dress lay in a heap in the bare living room downstairs. In two rooms on the second floor of the two and one-half story house were evidences of a struggle — blood on the walls and the floor and a wooden club, three feet long.

Shipbuilders Strike In Bethlehem Plant Filling U. S. Orders

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP) — The Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America (CIO) struck today at the Sparrows Point shipbuilding division of the Bethlehem Steel Company, currently engaged in filling large national defense orders.

The strike followed a breakdown in negotiations over wages and union recognition.

Philip H. Vangelder, national secretary-treasurer for the union said approximately 4,000 men had joined the strike. The plant employes 4,000 and 5,000 persons.

Francis G. Wrightson, assistant to the general manager, said operations were "something better than seventy-five per cent of normal" generally, and in the welding department, where the strike centered, were about seventy per cent of normal.

Vangelder said "the Sparrows Point shipyard workers are ready and anxious to do their part in the national defense program, but we do not believe anything in law or justice requires us to work for substandard wages and conditions."

There were no disorders at the plant. Non-striking employes entered and left without interference.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The abandonment of the attempt by British and "free French" forces to secure control of Dakar may prove almost as damaging to British prestige as was the retreat from Norway.

The announcement from London that hostilities had been discontinued at Dakar and the British-French forces withdrawn was a distinct surprise to many observers, who had figured that Britain was in good position to make diplomatic and psychological gains which might far exceed the military and economic value of the west African port.

Exactly what considerations underlay the official explanation of the withdrawal it is difficult to see. It may be that De Gaulle, leader of the "free French" forces, believed he had so many potential adherents in Dakar that the city would fall into his hands like a ripe plum, without hostilities. When this failed to happen, he may have been reluctant to engage in a prolonged death-struggle with his own countrymen.

London's Explanation

The London announcement of the withdrawal stated that "it had never been the intention of his majesty's government to enter into serious warlike operations against those Frenchmen who felt it their duty to obey the command of the Vichy government." However, the world had been led to believe that a serious effort to take the port was in progress, and the Axis undoubtedly will make the most of the withdrawal, playing it up as another serious reverse for Britain.

This could conceivably have its effect on Spain and on other French colonial possessions which are uncertain whether to follow the Petain government or De Gaulle.

The attack on Dakar came just at a time when rumors were current that many citizens of Continental France were increasingly dissatisfied with the Petain government. If De Gaulle had become master of an important segment of Colonial France, the political repercussions on French public opinion might have upset old Marshal Petain and made De Gaulle the hero of the French nation.

Spain's Course in Doubt

Whether Spain will throw her lot with Germany and Italy in hopes of gaining possession of Gibraltar still remains to be seen. It is undoubtedly true, however, that if Dakar had fallen to the British and their French allies, Spain might have been more hesitant to enter the Nazi-Fascist fold completely. Gibraltar's value to Spain would then have been dubious, all the more so since Spain cannot hope to be more than an axis puppet in the "new order" European world envisioned by Hitler and Mussolini.

The effect of the Dakar episode on the Churchill ministry is another thing to be considered. It is recalled that Britain's abandonment of the Trondheim counter-offensive against the Germans in Norway aroused a storm of protest in England. This and other things led to the shelving of Prime Minister Chamberlain.

There is no thought, of course, that anything like that is apt to happen to the Churchill ministry as a result of the Dakar episode, but the event is hardly likely to add anything to the ministry's prestige.

ELLIOTT IS IN THE ARMY NOW

Republicans and Democrats Hurl Charges as Campaign Grows Hot

By The Associated Press

Democratic assaults on Wendell L. Willkie's campaign statements and Republican charges of improper campaign practices by the Democrats featured yesterday's (Wednesday's) political news.

Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential candidate, speaking at Shenandoah, Ia., asserted that Willkie would be unable to keep his pledge to retain agricultural benefits if elected because "the dominant elements in the Republican party have been against the farmer for the last twenty years and are against him today."

Ridicules Willkie

In New York, Edward J. Flynn, Democratic National Chairman, ridiculed Willkie's statements that "he came up the hard way." Flynn said that Willkie "took a few vacation jobs like pretty much every other college boy, more for fun and experience than from necessity," but that soon after leaving college he joined his father's law firm and "from that time on he was a corporation lawyer and lobbyist."

The Republican National Committee charged in a statement that the Democratic committee "has ignored the spirit of the law" by "shaking down" postmasters for contributions. It said that the Democratic committee's report to Congress on receipts from June 1 to Aug. 31 "reveals that of sixty-five individuals who made contributions of $100 or more, more than half were postmasters."

The Republican committee also issued a statement by Rep. Barton (R-NY) saying that a poll of Democrats in his New York City district showed that three times as many planned to vote for Willkie as voted for Alf Landon in 1936.

The information of a group of independents supporting President Roosevelt brought from Oren Root, Jr., chairman of Associated Willkie Clubs of America, the comment in New York that the committee was "largely made up of office holders, or former office holders under the New Deal."

Besides studying French actions in Europe and Africa, Washington officials continued to display a lively interest in events in Indo-China, where French forces have clashed with Japanese troops.

The officials, however, have been reserved in discussing the possibility of American aid to the resisting Indo-Chinese forces both because of the physical difficulties involved and the attitude generally of the Vichy government.

Marguerite Clark Dies at Age of 53

Former Stage and Screen Star Played with Mary Pickford

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Marguerite Clark, doll-like actress who ranked with Mary Pickford in the boom days of silent films, died today.

Stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage five days ago, the golden-haired beauty, plumper than in the days when her dresden China figure won a generation of male movie admirers, succumbed of pneumonia.

Although she was fifty-three and had been retired for twenty years, the tiny veteran of the "road," Broadway stage and Hollywood film lots retained her unflagging interest in stage and screen affairs.

From an Ursuline convent in Cincinnati, her birthplace, she emerged to make her stage debut at thirteen as a child singer with the Aborn Opera Company in Baltimore in 1900.

A year later she came to New York as an understudy and after a rigorous apprenticeship became associated with De Wolf Hopper.

With Hopper she toured the United States playing many roles. She met Mary Pickford when she joined Famous Players in Hollywood and their careers paralleled from then on. Both possessed a piquant charm, and Elfin beauty, and they played romantic leads in similar roles.

They were the most popular actresses of the day.

She renounced the glamor of Kleig lights to marry Harry Palmerston Williams at Greenwich, Conn., on Aug. 15, 1938. In 1935 Williams was killed in a plane crash near Baton Rouge.

Of late she had been living here with her sister, Cora, who is the sole survivor.

End of Monarchy Voted in Norway

OSLO, Norway, (via Berlin) Sept. 25, (AP)—The end of monarchy and Parliament in Norway was announced today by Joseph Terboven, the Nazi high commissioner for this conquered country.

He disclosed that the exiled King Haakon had been removed as chief of state, that the succession had been broken and the king's family deprived of the privileges and powers of royalty.

All political parties were abolished; Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian Nazi, was named the sole political leader and in temporary charge of the government was placed a council of fifteen selected by Terboven himself.

It was stated that Norway henceforth would be neither a monarchy nor a German protectorate. Thus no precise definition of the new state was given. The indefinite occupation of German troops was provided and a legality was given to that occupation.

Japan May Join Axis Powers as Fighting Nation

Hitler Believed To Have Secured Promise of Military Support

Finding Relief From Neuralgia Is Discussed

Trichlorethylene Gas Treatment Is Recommended

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We have already discussed sciatic neuralgia and shoulder neuralgia in articles this week. To complete the series we should take up intercostal and occipital neuralgia, and the disease known as shingles, which is a form of neuralgia or rather neuritis, but since these are no different in general aspects for treatment purposes than the others discussed, we will consider a unique form of neuralgia, nearly as common as sciatica or shoulder neuralgia, that which affects the facial nerve. It is more severe and painful than any of the others with the possible exception of shingles. It affects the middle-aged and seems to be connected with hardening of the arteries, possibly in the thalamus of the central nervous system.

A nerve can pain either from stimulation or injury at its tip or from irritation of its central origin deep in the nervous system. An injury of the visual center in the brain will cause flashes of light. An injury of the nerve center for sensation in the face will cause pain in the face.

About Shingles

The neuralgia of shingles is of this central character, and certainly facial neuralgia, which often causes excruciating toothache with the result that these people often lose many perfectly good teeth with no alleviation of the pain.

Many remedies have been suggested for facial neuralgia. As a last resort, when the pain becomes too exhausting, the Gasserian ganglion can be removed by surgery. This results in cure in practically all cases, but it should be reserved until other methods have been tried. The condition often subsides and goes away for years spontaneously without reference to treatment.

A valuable method of treatment is the use of trichlorethylene gas. We must add "when it works" because this is not always the case. Its value was discovered by accident—in airplane factories it was used to dissolve the shellac that goes on the wings and body, and workers in these factories often got a temporary numbness of the face. When this observation was applied to facial neuralgia, it was found that inhalation of the gas relieved the pain. It must be used cautiously, under a physician's care, trying it out as a trial at first. If it works, the patient may be promised complete and grateful relief.

Look for Trouble

Facial neuralgia is dependent on many general bodily conditions and a complete examination of blood, nutrition, blood pressure and teeth is in order. But especially with teeth, it is possible to be too thorough and the caution to the effect that real disease should be present before removal is advised is again repeated.

We are all familiar with that dreadful rite—"spring house cleaning." Then not only the obvious dust is roved, but forays into obscure bur drawers and long undisturbed ooks is instituted. It's all right do this to the body, but not the extent of tearing up the prs in the attic to uncover a rely theoretical rat's nest.

Turkey and Greece Fear Invasion

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 25 (AP)—Turkey and Greece exchanged diplomatic confidences tonight in the face of an Axis threat to sweep them clear of "nests of intriguing Englishmen."

Turkish Premier Refik Saydam received the Greek minister after the Turkish minister to Athens had conferred with Greece's Premier John Metaxas.

Although official comment was lacking, the people of both countries were said to fear that an Italian-German thrust might come at any moment in the guise of prosecuting the war against Britain.

Allied with Turkey and Greece in the old Balkan entente, Yugoslavia is authoritatively reported to have "reaffirmed loyalty to the Rome-Berlin Axis."

Finding Relief From Neuralgia Is Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We have already discussed sciatic neuralgia and shoulder neuralgia in articles this week. To complete the series we should take up intercostal and occipital neuralgia, and the disease known as shingles, which is a form of neuralgia or rather neuritis, but since these are no different in general aspects for treatment purposes than the others discussed, we will consider a unique form of neuralgia, nearly as common as sciatica or shoulder neuralgia, that which affects the facial nerve. It is more severe and painful than any of the others with the possible exception of shingles. It affects the middle-aged and seems to be connected with hardening of the arteries, possibly in the thalamus of the central nervous system.

A nerve can pain either from stimulation or injury at its tip or from irritation of its central origin deep in the nervous system. An injury of the visual center in the brain will cause flashes of light. An injury of the nerve center for sensation in the face will cause pain in the face.

About Shingles

The neuralgia of shingles is of this central character, and certainly facial neuralgia, which often causes excruciating toothache with the result that these people often lose many perfectly good teeth with no alleviation of the pain.

Many remedies have been suggested for facial neuralgia. As a last resort, when the pain becomes too exhausting, the Gasserian ganglion can be removed by surgery. This results in cure in practically all cases, but it should be reserved until other methods have been tried. The condition often subsides and goes away for years spontaneously without reference to treatment.

A valuable method of treatment is the use of trichlorethylene gas. We must add "when it works" because this is not always the case. Its value was discovered by accident—in airplane factories it was used to dissolve the shellac that goes on the wings and body, and workers in these factories often got a temporary numbness of the face. When this observation was applied to facial neuralgia, it was found that inhalation of the gas relieved the pain. It must be used cautiously, under a physician's care, trying it out as a trial at first. If it works, the patient may be promised complete and grateful relief.

But especially with teeth, it is possible to be too thorough and the caution to the effect that real disease should be present before removal is advised is again repeated.

Poor In Peace, Poor In War

THE CHIEF CLAIM that is being set forth by President Roosevelt and his supporters for his third-term re-election is based on the proximity of war and the theory that to re-elect him for a third term would bring discomfort to the enemy. The implication is that Mr. Roosevelt may have to take the country into war.

It is pertinent, therefore, to measure the fitness of Mr. Roosevelt to be a war president by the record he has made in conducting the office during time of peace. The New York Herald Tribune notes that sufficient testimony is to be found in the quotation from Winston Churchill's speech that Mr. Willkie introduced into his San Francisco speech, which was a damning indictment of incompetence. But, the Herald Tribune points out that there is no end of domestic testimony to the same effect.

This is, in brief, it says, the evidence that "President Roosevelt has been particularly weak in administration and that his policies, far from unifying and strengthening the nation through restoring economic activities to normal levels, have left the country torn by bitterness, divided by government-fomented class hatred and weakened by deliberate paralyzation of business efforts of all kinds."

"The president has appointed to offices of grave responsibility," the Herald Tribune continues, "men who were untrained, irresponsible and ungrounded in American governmental theories and practices. His cabinet, until a few months ago, was notorious for its misfits and incompetents. His appointments to the supreme court have, with two exceptions, shown a frivolous reaction to the responsibility of finding fit men for such important posts.

"And yet, this is the man who now tells the country that he is indispensable, and that, unless the people re-elect him, disaster lies ahead. This is the man who offers to lead the nation to success in the event of a war, and the world, later, into a new peace. Surely, such delusions of grandeur will be taken at their proper value by the American people. If the crisis is as great as the New Dealers insist, and if war is as imminent, it is far better to swap horses on this side of the stream—especially when it is so apparent that the horse to be left behind has more than run his day."

In view of all this, the idea of indispensability does not appear to click very well.

Down to the Last Billion

IT had to come sooner or later. The United States Treasury is down to its last billion. It's not quite as bad as it sounds, however, and it doesn't imperil the financing of the defense program in any way.

Here is how the Treasury got down to its last billion: The public debt passed $44,000,000,000 ten days ago. That means the Treasury can borrow only $1,000,000,000 more for purposes other than national defense. Last summer Congress authorized the Treasury to borrow $4,000,000,000 above the statutory $45,000,000,000 limit on the national debt—but for defense purposes only.

None of that $4,000,000,000 has yet been spent, as the bonds have not been issued. When they are sold, the general fund can be repaid the $500,000,000 which already has been spent for defense since the start of the fiscal year. From then on, apparently, the nation is to operate under a "two-budget" system such as rearmament brought about in European countries.

Inevitably, of course, the next Congress will raise the existing $49,000,000,000 ceiling on combined ordinary and defense public debts. The nation will spend much more than $4,000,000,000 in its national defense program. Whether the limit on the ordinary public debt must be raised materially will depend on federal fiscal policies henceforth.

It Makes a Difference Whose Book Is Marked

WHENEVER "Susie loves Joe" is discovered scrawled in chalk on a sidewalk it is permissible to smile with nostalgic reminiscence, even though school-day enthusiasm is mildly pilloryed the sentimental objects of its regard. For Susie will blushingly submit to teasing, and Joe swagger a bit because at the advanced age of 10 he has a girl. It is otherwise with some inscriptions that could be mentioned, notably in books by those who do not happen to own them.

Marking one's own books is something different again, particularly lining down in the margins favorite passages for the purpose of reading them anew after some lapse of time. Many possessors of private libraries do so habitually, though it is doubtless the fate of a great many such notations never again to meet the eye of the marker. Some book lovers have the habit of indicating in pencil or ink the emotions aroused by what at the moment appears to be inspired writing.

But it is sometimes, after a lapse of years, a little surprising to come across such abbreviated comments. Did we really think that passage in Tennyson was "super-fine?" Were Hubbard's "Little Journeys" worthy of gushing encomiums? Or have our standards changed? The blush subsides, and our pencil is for a time less active.

But marking books belonging to circulating libraries, public or commercial, is at least venial sin. It damages property not one's own. That is the first count of the indictment. Then, too, it offends, if it does not bemuse and lead astray from the author's reasoning, the subsequent reader. And too character revealing are some of these markings.

There are the wrong passages underlined by the young and inexperienced student, who borrows (and profanes) a library copy to save the cost of a textbook. There is the book eagerly taken up by the adult tyro in letters, or philosophy or literary criticism, eagerly marked for a hundred pages or so—then left clean as a hound's tooth when interest or the ability to focus attention lags.

All tell their story, and not a nice one. The moral is, "Don't!"

Something To Consider About a Third Term

BEFORE any citizen falls for the third-term pretensions, it would be well for him to consider seriously whether, in another four-year term, President Roosevelt could, or would, do the following needful things:

Balance the budget.
Solve the problem of unemployment.
Restore confidence to capital and industry.
Reduce burdensome tax handicaps.
Restrict bureaucratic controls.
Reconcile labor factions.
Regain his respect for the constitution.
Secure parity prices for farm products.
Renounce demands for executive power.
Restore confidence in the supreme court.
Desist his business baiting.
Dismiss young radical counsellors.
Stop playing politics with relief.
Stay in Washington half the time.
Permit Congress a hand in foreign treaties.
Renounce support of Tammanyized machines.
Resist fourth-term temptation.

The fact that the president has done none of these things, and gives no indication of doing them, is sufficient reason for replacing him with a man of vigor, competence and understanding of the American way of life at the November election.

Apprenticeship and The Defense Job

WHILE plans are going forward to increase the manpower of the nation's military establishment, the National Defense Commission is giving earnest attention to the need of a great industrial army with a sufficient quota of skilled labor.

In an emergency there is no time to develop the usual four-year apprentice training program. Therefore it is proposed to set up a system which has already been adopted by General Electric and other large firms. It is based on the "assembly line" division of labor. Under this plan the supply of top-notch skilled craftsmen would be conserved by assigning them to highly specialized operations and apprentices could be trained in a comparatively short time.

It is gratifying to note that the National Defense Commission is aware of the immensity of the task and will continue to make it clear that the man behind the gun is of tremendous importance in any program of preparedness.

It is an apt commentary on the seven years of Roosevelt that the spectacle of Wendell Willkie campaigning for the presidency without using catch-phrases or issuing bogus promises strikes some voters as a novelty.

There are 48,000 auto agencies in the United States, statistics show. To anyone who has let it be known he is in the market this seems to be a gross understatement.

Never has the United States Army had as tough a task as trying to make minute men out of softies who have been taking two hours for lunch.

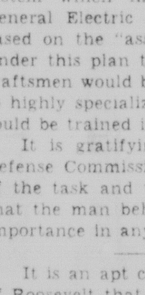
What about that New Deal "more abundant life?" Look about at labor, business, farmers, and what we see is more abundant strife.

Can You Do the Trick?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I've been reading a book on secrets of magic—and now I know how everything's done.

When the magician asks me to select a card from a deck and then tells me what card it is, I know how he did it.



Marshall Maslin

I know how he changes the spots on cards, produces rabbits from hats, makes cigarets vanish in the air.

When he saws a woman in two, makes a pretty girl disappear from a cabinet or the man go through a mirror—I know exactly how he does it and if I want to be smart I can stand right up in the audience and explain to everybody.

He's fooling me, but I know his secrets. He has trick slates, trick tubes, trick containers and trick decks of cards. I can't see how he does, but I know he isn't doing what he says he is. His hand is quicker than my eye, but just the same "it's a trick."

When he puts a girl in a box and sticks swords through it in all directions, apparently, then opens the front of the box and shows us she isn't there, I know how that's done, too. She IS there, in a little section at the back of the box, but trick mirrors make you think she's absent.

I've read the book that tells all about it—and I know HOW he does the tricks but I could never do those tricks by myself. My fingers aren't clever enough, my mind isn't fast enough, and I lack the experience. And furthermore, I haven't any desire to be a magician.

And that's the way it is with many, many things. We know how a lot of things are done, but WE can't do them.

There's magic everywhere in this world but few of us know how to make it. We see poor people getting happiness out of common things, we see fine women loving most ordinary men, we see deaf lads like the young Edison become great inventors, we see average fellows being incredibly brave, we see wonders happening all around us—and we can tell you HOW they happen perhaps, but we can't tell you anything more than that.

We have all read somewhere a book of magic and received a hint about the mystery in it—but that's all we know about it.

Life is "just a trick," but what a trick it is!

Elliott's Commission Smirches the Draft, Gen. Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—"Fairly and without fear or favor." That is how the president told the governors that the selective service law must be administered. Right. It must be done that way or the scheme won't work. Nobody must be allowed to put over any "clever little schemes" to get one boy out of the draft while another, with no more reason not to serve, is taken. That is unfair. It is doubly despicable because, for every boy who escapes his proper turn another mother's son is pushed up before his turn to serve and perhaps to die.

Can Become Oppressive

It is a deadly serious business. Our draft law if properly and honestly and justly administered, is the best system for service ever invented. If unfairly administered and used for politics or any other kind of "fear or favor", it can become one of the most hateful and un-American systems of oppression and injustice ever invented.

Not only must its fairness be an unimpeachable fact — the whole country must be convinced of it. It must be above suspicion. The poorest mother of the least favored son must be serene in her confidence that he will be treated on exactly the same footing as the son of the most powerful man in the nation, or of men in all lower grades down to her own.

Bird without Wings

On the very day the president was making all this clear, his own son Elliott was commissioned and called to service as a captain in the air corps. As a flyer? Oh, deah, no. A young man has to work and train for that. Elliott goes in as what airmen call derisively a keewee—a bird without wings.

He didn't apply to any recruiting office. The head of the army air corps, Gen. Arnold, himself, assigned him from the "specialists reserve" to a job in "procurement"—which means something to do with buying supplies. When asked what kind of a specialist Elliott claimed to be, the officials said that was "confidential." As a captain, he will draw $200 a month, plus allowances that may be as high as $116.00 a month.

In the Draft Pool

At his age of 30, he would have been in the selective draft pool. There he would have been subject to serve, as Woodrow Wilson said, "not in that place that will most pleasure him but where it shall best serve the common good to call him." He might have served in some "speciality"—but that would have been decided not by him but by his qualifications in fair competition with all other boys—as also would the place and condition of his service. His compensation would have been $30 and not $200 a month. He would have been honored by having to wear the uniform and not "privileged" as is reported in the press of this new captain to wear civilian clothes.

Nice Work—if

"No matter what the sacrifices," Capt. Roosevelt is quoted as saying, "it is important for all young people to join up and take part in the defense program." O. K., but could your boy "join up" in this soft fashion? "Try and do it" or "It's nice work if you can get it."

Now the president's second son won't even have to register for the draft and take his place on a footing of equality with all other young Americans of his age. Without any discernible military training, preparation or qualification, and without any known preparation for "procurement," he is made a "captain by the scratch of a pen and an officer and a gentleman by act of Congress."

Like Hateful Nepotism

There might be a worse way to start off this great democratic and equalitarian crusade in decency called the draft, but I can't for the moment think what it is. It looks like hateful nepotism, favoritism and unfairness at the very head of the system.

It is so raw that I am very sure of one thing—the president either didn't know about it, or else didn't give a thought to the implications. I doubt if Elliott did either. The only real trouble with that boy is that he has no inferiority complexes. Guiltless as I believe this act was at heart, it ought to be undone just as quickly as it was performed. Otherwise it will remain a stench to Heaven.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

AND NOW, THE SADDLE

Wallace's Appeasement Smoke Screen Is Stultified by Facts, Waltman Says

By FRANKLYN WALTMAN

In an effort to throw a smoke screen over the failure of the New Deal to restore to this country either agricultural or industrial recovery, Henry A. Wallace, New Deal vice presidential candidate, has been going about the Middle West calling members of the Republican party "appeasers." Thus he is seeking to attach, in his own words, "something sinister" to every Republican criticism of the New Deal.

Franklyn Waltman

All this is reminiscent of Woodrow Wilson's effort in 1918 to brand his opposition as unpatriotic. This was when he called for the election of Democrats to Congress—an appeal which was rejected by the voters, just as the voters this year will repudiate an administration that seeks to sow the seeds of disunity through the type of speeches Henry Wallace has been making.

Of course, one could fight the Wallace type of mud-slinging with similar buckets of mud. When Henry Wallace undertakes to characterize Republicans as "appeasers" of Hitler and Nazism, one could ask: "Where was Wallace in the last war?"

War Record Missing

If Henry Wallace has a record of active military service when German autocracy once before was menacing the world, we have been unable to find it after diligent search. The only record of Mr. Wallace's activities in 1917-18 that we have been able to find is contained in a recent edition of the Des Moines (Ia.) Sunday Register.

"Under the tutelage of his father" (secretary of agriculture in the administrations of Presidents Harding and Coolidge), stated the Register, speaking of the 1918 period, "he was made secretary of the hog producers' committee, which cooperated with Herbert Hoover in the fixing of prices during the war."

Thus, in 1918, when Wendell Willkie was fighting on the battlefronts in France against German autocracy, Henry Wallace, then 30 years old, was devoting his time to a study of the hog market, as a later result of which, under the Roosevelt regime, came the slaughter of little pigs while millions in the Nation were hungry.

But the case of who are "appeasers" of Hitler should not be permitted to rest on Henry Wallace's lack of a war record or on the fact that Wendell Willkie enlisted in the United States army the day this country declared war on Germany in 1917.

Inspired Munich Settlement

More to the point is the fact that it was Franklin D. Roosevelt who was responsible for the Munich settlement of appeasement. At least testimony to this effect was given to the nation by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles on October 3, 1938, a few days after the Munich settlement when that disgraceful proceeding stood bare for all to see.

Mr. Welles in a specially arranged radio address seemed fearful lest President Roosevelt might not receive full credit for the part he played in bringing about the Munich appeasement which resulted in Czecho-Slovakia being sold down the river. So Mr. Welles described the steps, day by day and hour by hour, taken by the presnt to bring about the Munich sement.

The undersecretary explai that at 1 a. m., on September 1938, Mr. Roosevelt addressed a ssage, urging a settlement, to the ident of Czecho-Slovakia, to rman Chancellor Hitler, and to the prime ministers of Great Brital and France. Mr. Welles assert that early in the afternoon of Stember 27, Mr. Roosevelt sent rgent instructions to our representatives throughout the world" urgin them to leave no stone unturned bring about a settlement at Munich On that afternoon also, accord to Mr. Welles, the president bugh the American ambassador atome sent "a personal and confitial appeal to the chief of the lian government" seeking Mussini's help in forcing a settlem at Munich.

Mr. Welles explained tha Mr. Roosevelt again addressed a le to Hitler, this time at 10 p. m., the night of September 27, again ing a settlement and asserting hat "should you agree to a solut in this peaceful manner I amon vinced that hundreds of mons throughout the world would ognize your action as an outnding historic service to all humy."

Roosevelt Moved Hitler To t

Mr. Welles indicated thathis message apparently did the ork for he went on to point out hat subsequently Hitler requested he prime ministers of Great Bain and France and the chief of the Italian government "to meet ith him at Munich." And, Mr. lles added, "as you likewise know he conference there held has prnted the outbreak of war."

"All of us must surely sympaze with the distress and sufferi of the many human beings who, the result of the readjustments now under way, are forced to leave ir homes and seek their fortun in alien surroundings and under new auspices," continued Mr. Wes. "But upon the merits of the cisions reached in Munich, to se the president's words, we do not need, nor do we intend, to ss. Every man and woman in the Uted States, however, shares in the i- versal feeling of relief that wars been averted."

Mr. Welles painted Franklin Roosevelt as the moving spirit bringing about the settlement Munich, which marked the h peak of appeasement of Hi Czecho-Slovakia was sacrificed Hitler's greed for power, but on merit of that, we shall not g said both Mr. Roosevelt and Welles, because war was aver Mr. Roosevelt, unwittingly perh but nevertheless surely, played n into Hitler's hands. Such has b the manner in which our for policy has been conducted.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Don't forget the NEPPCO exposition, which will be held in Atlantic City from October 1 to 4.

The most recent report of the Maryland Crop Reporting Service showed that the apple crop in the state was sixty-two percent of normal as compared with sixty-seven percent of normal for the same date one year ago and an average of fifty-three percent for the five-year average (1934-38). The indicated production for this year is 2,015,000 bushels or about ten percent below the outlook for the same period last year. The production of apples in Maryland last year was 2,362,000 bushels and the five-year average is 1,922,000 bushels.

Two-thirds of the farms in Southern Maryland are tobacco farms with most of the remainder being general or self sufficing farms.

Dr. Roger B. Corbett, the new director of the University of Maryland Experiment Station is a graduate of Cornell university and was dean and director of the College of Agriculture at the University of Connecticut prior to joining the staff at College Park.

The Seekers For Power

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune.

Who are the "selfish seekers for power" referred to by the president? The impression he sought to convey, of course, was that they were men high in the councils of the Republican party who were endeavoring to thwart his efforts to defy the third-term tradition and take permanent possession of the White House. Except for the reference to business ability, no better description of the president himself can be found in the utterances of any of the Republican campaign orators.

Of all the "seekers for power," none has ever matched either in selfishness or greed the president and the coterie of self-seekers who have mismanaged the affairs of the federal government for eight years and now ask the people of the United States to retain them in office for another four-year period, or perhaps indefinitely.

Schurz Memorial Stresses Loyalty Of German Stock

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

In July 1849, Germany's revolution of 1848, its most courageous drive for freedom, was overwhelmed. Carl Schurz, 19-year-old student of the University of Bonn who had been one of the leaders, escaped to Switzerland with a price on his head. He was safe but after a few days learned that his companion in the fight for liberty, Professor Gottfried Kinkel, had been captured and was awaiting execution.

Young Schurz went back to Berlin and contrived the escape of Professor Kinkel. After two years in London and Paris he abandoned hope for all democratic aspirations in Europe and came to America in 1852. The story of his half century of humane liberal, cultural achievement in his adopted country is known to every school child.

Denounces Brutality

Currently the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation, established ten years ago in his memory, and in furtherance of his ideals, repudiates and denounces in behalf of Americans of German descent the brutality of Nazi Germany and declares its abhorrence of totalitarianism. They quote from an address by Carl Schurz of 1899 in which he said:

> "It may well be said of American citizens of German blood that however warm their affection for their native land, they have never permitted that affection to interfere with their duties as American citizens, and, least of all, to seduce them into any design or desire to use their power in American politics for foreign ends."

Ideals Affirmed

Beginning with gifts and endowments of more than $1,500,000 to carry on the work of Carl Schurz, the foundation has been and is a vigorous affirmation of the Germanic ideals of Goethe and Schiller and an equally vigorous challenge to Heinrich von Treitschke, Friedrich von Bernhardi and Adolph Hitler. Its statement by the executive committee of the foundation at Philadelphia is more than a repudiation of totalitarian Germany. It is an alliance of loyal and enlightened Americans of German descent against subversion from Germany and a declaration of new fealty to American democracy.

The autobiography of Carl Schurz which was appearing in McClure's in 1906 was interrupted by his death. It seems to this writer that, considering the urgency of our problem of national unity and understanding, there could be no more valuable book than a biograph of this great democrat—a book which would be well placed in the public schools.

Leader of Fight

Carl Schurz remained in Philadelphia three years after his arrival in this country and then removed to Watertown, Wisconsin. At this time the Republican party was just taking form. In the Republican convention of 1860 he led the fight for decency and justice for the foreign-born. He was an ardent supporter of Abhaham Lincoln, who later made him Minister to Spain. In 1861 he resigned this post to return to America and serve in the Union Army. He became a Brigadier General in 1862 and a Major General in 1863. After the war President Johnson sent him on a tour of study and investigation of reconstruction problems.

He returned with a broad liberal and generous program for rebuilding reintegrading the shattered south with the union. Later commentators have described this study as a formulation of policy which unquestionably would have prevented the hatred and futility of the carpet-bagging decades. But his plan was smothered by pettifogging congressmen.

Aggressive Foe

Disheartened with politics, he became editor of the Detroit Post in 1866 but in 1869 returned to the political arena as United States senator from Missouri. For years he was a bold and aggressive foe of corruption in our national life and in 1872 led the liberal party supporting Horace Greely for president. An independent in politics he fought for high principle, justice and decency in public life until the day of his death.

Carl Schurz Memorial park in New York is a testimonial to multitudes of his vivid faith in the democratic way of life. Here one sees the children of every race and nationality mingling without discrimination or stigma. Carl Schurz and the park named for him are truly American. Poor In Peace, Poor In War

THE CHIEF CLAIM that is being set forth by President Roosevelt and his supporters for his third-term re-election is based on the proximity of war and the theory that to re-elect him for a third term would bring discomfort to the enemy. The implication is that Mr. Roosevelt may have to take the country into war.

It is pertinent, therefore, to measure the fitness of Mr. Roosevelt to be a war president by the record he has made in conducting the office during time of peace. The New York Herald Tribune notes that sufficient testimony is to be found in the quotation from Winston Churchill's speech that Mr. Willkie introduced into his San Francisco speech, which was a damning indictment of incompetence. But, the Herald Tribune points out that there is no end of domestic testimony to the same effect.

This is, in brief, it says, the evidence that "President Roosevelt has been particularly weak in administration and that his policies, far from unifying and strengthening the nation through restoring economic activities to normal levels, have left the country torn by bitterness, divided by government-fomented class hatred and weakened by deliberate paralyzation of business efforts of all kinds."

"The president has appointed to offices of grave responsibility," the Herald Tribune continues, "men who were untrained, irresponsible and ungrounded in American governmental theories and practices. His cabinet, until a few months ago, was notorious for its misfits and incompetents. His appointments to the supreme court have, with two exceptions, shown a frivolous reaction to the responsibility of finding fit men for such important posts.

"And yet, this is the man who now tells the country that he is indispensable, and that, unless the people re-elect him, disaster lies ahead. This is the man who offers to lead the nation to success in the event of a war, and the world, later, into a new peace. Surely, such delusions of grandeur will be taken at their proper value by the American people. If the crisis is as great as the New Dealers insist, and if war is as imminent, it is far better to swap horses on this side of the stream—especially when it is so apparent that the horse to be left behind has more than run his day."

In view of all this, the idea of indispensability does not appear to click very well.

Down to the Last Billion

IT had to come sooner or later. The United States Treasury is down to its last billion. It's not quite as bad as it sounds, however, and it doesn't imperil the financing of the defense program in any way.

Here is how the Treasury got down to its last billion: The public debt passed $44,000,000,000 ten days ago. That means the Treasury can borrow only $1,000,000,000 more for purposes other than national defense. Last summer Congress authorized the Treasury to borrow $4,000,000,000 above the statutory $45,000,000,000 limit on the national debt—but for defense purposes only.

None of that $4,000,000,000 has yet been spent, as the bonds have not been issued. When they are sold, the general fund can be repaid the $500,000,000 which already has been spent for defense since the start of the fiscal year. From then on, apparently, the nation is to operate under a "two-budget" system such as rearmament brought about in European countries.

Inevitably, of course, the next Congress will raise the existing $49,000,000,000 ceiling on combined ordinary and defense public debts. The nation will spend much more than $4,000,000,000 in its national defense program. Whether the limit on the ordinary public debt must be raised materially will depend on federal fiscal policies henceforth.

It Makes a Difference Whose Book Is Marked

WHENEVER "Susie loves Joe" is discovered scrawled in chalk on a sidewalk it is permissible to smile with nostalgic reminiscence, even though school-day enthusiasm is mildly pilloryed the sentimental objects of its regard. For Susie will blushingly submit to teasing, and Joe swagger a bit because at the advanced age of 10 he has a girl. It is otherwise with some inscriptions that could be mentioned, notably in books by those who do not happen to own them.

Marking one's own books is something different again, particularly lining down in the margins favorite passages for the purpose of reading them anew after some lapse of time. Many possessors of private libraries do so habitually, though it is doubtless the fate of a great many such notations never again to meet the eye of the marker. Some book lovers have the habit of indicating in pencil or ink the emotions aroused by what at the moment appears to be inspired writing.

But it is sometimes, after a lapse of years, a little surprising to come across such abbreviated comments. Did we really think that passage in Tennyson was "super-fine?" Were Hubbard's "Little Journeys" worthy of gushing encomiums? Or have our standards changed? The blush subsides, and our pencil is for a time less active.

But marking books belonging to circulating libraries, public or commercial, is at least venial sin. It damages property not one's own. That is the first count of the indictment. Then, too, it offends, if it does not bemuse and lead astray from the author's reasoning, the subsequent reader. And too character revealing are some of these markings.

There are the wrong passages underlined by the young and inexperienced student, who borrows (and profanes) a library copy to save the cost of a textbook. There is the book eagerly taken up by the adult tyro in letters, or philosophy or literary criticism, eagerly marked for a hundred pages or so—then left clean as a hound's tooth when interest or the ability to focus attention lags.

All tell their story, and not a nice one. The moral is, "Don't!"

Something To Consider About a Third Term

BEFORE any citizen falls for the third-term pretensions, it would be well for him to consider seriously whether, in another four-year term, President Roosevelt could, or would, do the following needful things:

Balance the budget.
Solve the problem of unemployment.
Restore confidence to capital and industry.
Reduce burdensome tax handicaps.
Restrict bureaucratic controls.
Reconcile labor factions.
Regain his respect for the constitution.
Secure parity prices for farm products.
Renounce demands for executive power.
Restore confidence in the supreme court.
Desist his business baiting.
Dismiss young radical counsellors.
Stop playing politics with relief.
Stay in Washington half the time.
Permit Congress a hand in foreign treaties.
Renounce support of Tammanyized machines.
Resist fourth-term temptation.

The fact that the president has done none of these things, and gives no indication of doing them, is sufficient reason for replacing him with a man of vigor, competence and understanding of the American way of life at the November election.

Apprenticeship and The Defense Job

WHILE plans are going forward to increase the manpower of the nation's military establishment, the National Defense Commission is giving earnest attention to the need of a great industrial army with a sufficient quota of skilled labor.

In an emergency there is no time to develop the usual four-year apprentice training program. Therefore it is proposed to set up a system which has already been adopted by General Electric and other large firms. It is based on the "assembly line" division of labor. Under this plan the supply of top-notch skilled craftsmen would be conserved by assigning them to highly specialized operations and apprentices could be trained in a comparatively short time.

It is gratifying to note that the National Defense Commission is aware of the immensity of the task and will continue to make it clear that the man behind the gun is of tremendous importance in any program of preparedness.

It is an apt commentary on the seven years of Roosevelt that the spectacle of Wendell Willkie campaigning for the presidency without using catch-phrases or issuing bogus promises strikes some voters as a novelty.

There are 48,000 auto agencies in the United States, statistics show. To anyone who has let it be known he is in the market this seems to be a gross understatement.

Never has the United States Army had as tough a task as trying to make minute men out of softies who have been taking two hours for lunch.

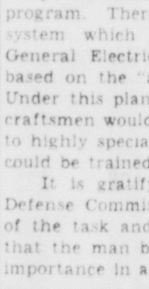
What about that New Deal "more abundant life?" Look about at labor, business, farmers, and what we see is more abundant strife.

Can You Do the Trick?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I've been reading a book on secrets of magic—and now I know how everything's done.

When the magician asks me to select a card from a deck and then tells me what card it is, I know how he did it.



Marshall Maslin

I know how he changes the spots on cards, produces rabbits from hats, makes cigarets vanish in the air.

When he saws a woman in two, makes a pretty girl disappear from a cabinet or the man go through a mirror—I know exactly how he does it and if I want to be smart I can stand right up in the audience and explain to everybody.

He's fooling me, but I know his secrets. He has trick slates, trick tubes, trick containers and trick decks of cards. I can't see how he does, but I know he isn't doing what he says he is. His hand is quicker than my eye, but just the same "it's a trick."

When he puts a girl in a box and sticks swords through it in all directions, apparently, then opens the front of the box and shows us she isn't there, I know how that's done, too. She IS there, in a little section at the back of the box, but trick mirrors make you think she's absent.

I've read the book that tells all about it—and I know HOW he does the tricks but I could never do those tricks by myself. My fingers aren't clever enough, my mind isn't fast enough, and I lack the experience. And furthermore, I haven't any desire to be a magician.

And that's the way it is with many, many things. We know how a lot of things are done, but WE can't do them.

There's magic everywhere in this world but few of us know how to make it. We see poor people getting happiness out of common things, we see fine women loving most ordinary men, we see deaf lads like the young Edison become great inventors, we see average fellows being incredibly brave, we see wonders happening all around us—and we can tell you HOW they happen perhaps, but we can't tell you anything more than that.

We have all read somewhere a book of magic and received a hint about the mystery in it—but that's all we know about it.

Life is "just a trick," but what a trick it is!

Elliott's Commission Smirches the Draft, Gen. Johnson Says

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—"Fairly and without fear or favor." That is how the president told the governors that the selective service law must be administered. Right. It must be done that way or the scheme won't work. Nobody must be allowed to put over any "clever little schemes" to get one boy out of the draft while another, with no more reason not to serve, is taken. That is unfair. It is doubly despicable because, for every boy who escapes his proper turn another mother's son is pushed up before his turn to serve and perhaps to die.

Can Become Oppressive

It is a deadly serious business. Our draft law if properly and honestly and justly administered, is the best system for service ever invented. If unfairly administered and used for politics or any other kind of "fear or favor", it can become one of the most hateful and un-American systems of oppression and injustice ever invented.

Not only must its fairness be an unimpeachable fact — the whole country must be convinced of it. It must be above suspicion. The poorest mother of the least favored son must be serene in her confidence that he will be treated on exactly the same footing as the son of the most powerful man in the nation, or of men in all lower grades down to her own.

Bird without Wings

On the very day the president was making all this clear, his own son Elliott was commissioned and called to service as a captain in the air corps. As a flyer? Oh, deah, no. A young man has to work and train for that. Elliott goes in as what airmen call derisively a keewee—a bird without wings.

He didn't apply to any recruiting office. The head of the army air corps, Gen. Arnold, himself, assigned him from the "specialists reserve" to a job in "procurement"—which means something to do with buying supplies. When asked what kind of a specialist Elliott claimed to be, the officials said that was "confidential." As a captain, he will draw $200 a month, plus allowances that may be as high as $116.00 a month.

At his age of 30, he would have been in the selective draft pool. There he would have been subject to serve, as Woodrow Wilson said, "not in that place that will most pleasure him but where it shall best serve the common good to call him." He might have served in some "speciality"—but that would have been decided not by him but by his qualifications in fair competition with all other boys—as also would the place and condition of his service. His compensation would have been $30 and not $200 a month. He would have been honored by having to wear the uniform and not "privileged" as is reported in the press of this new captain to wear civilian clothes.

"No matter what the sacrifices," Capt. Roosevelt is quoted as saying, "it is important for all young people to join up and take part in the defense program." O. K., but could your boy "join up" in this soft fashion? "Try and do it" or "It's nice work if you can get it."

Now the president's second son won't even have to register for the draft and take his place on a footing of equality with all other young Americans of his age. Without any discernible military training, preparation or qualification, and without any known preparation for "procurement," he is made a "captain by the scratch of a pen and an officer and a gentleman by act of Congress."

Mr. Welles in a specially arranged radio address seemed fearful lest President Roosevelt might not receive full credit for the part he played in bringing about the Munich appeasement which resulted in Czecho-Slovakia being sold down the river. So Mr. Welles described the steps, day by day and hour by hour, taken by the present to bring about the Munich settlement.

The undersecretary explained that at 1 a. m., on September 1938, Mr. Roosevelt addressed a sage, urging a settlement, to the sident of Czecho-Slovakia, to rman Chancellor Hitler, and to the rime ministers of Great Brital and France. Mr. Welles assert that early in the afternoon of tember 27, Mr. Roosevelt sent rgent instructions to our representatives throughout the world" urgi them to leave no stone unturned bring about a settlement at Munich. On that afternoon also, accord to Mr. Welles, the president bugh the American ambassador atome sent "a personal and confidial appeal to the chief of the lian government" seeking Mu ini's help in forcing a settlem at Munich.

Mr. Welles explained tha Mr. Roosevelt again addressed a le to Hitler, this time at 10 p. m., the night of September 27, again ing a settlement and asserting that "should you agree to a solut in this peaceful manner I am convinced that hundreds of ns throughout the world would gnize your action as an outand ing historic service to all humy."

Roosevelt Moved Hitler To t

Mr. Welles indicated that his message apparently did the ork for he went on to point out that subsequently Hitler requested he prime ministers of Great Bain and France and the chief the Italian government "to meet ith him at Munich." And, Mr. lles added, "as you likewise know he conference there held has pre ted the outbreak of war."

"All of us must surely sympize with the distress and sufferi of the many human beings who, the result of the readjustments w under way, are forced to leave ir homes and seek their fortun in alien surroundings and under w auspices," continued Mr. Wes. "But upon the merits of the cisions reached in Munich, t e the president's words, we do ot need, nor do we intend, to s. Every man and woman in the Un d States, however, shares in the i versal feeling of relief that wars been averted."

Mr. Welles painted Franklin Roosevelt as the moving spirit bringing about the settlement Munich, which marked the h peak of appeasement of Hi Czecho-Slovakia was sacrificed Hitler's greed for power, but on merit of that, we shall not p said both Mr. Roosevelt and Welles, because war was aver Mr. Roosevelt, unwittingly perh but nevertheless surely, played r into Hitler's hands. Such has b the manner in which our fore policy has been conducted.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

Don't forget the NEPPCO exposition, which will be held in Atlantic City from October 1 to 4.

The most recent report of the Maryland Crop Reporting Service showed that the apple crop in the state was sixty-two percent of normal as compared with sixty-seven percent of normal for the same date one year ago and an average of fifty-three percent for the five-year average (1934-38). The indicated production for this year is 2,015,000 bushels or about ten percent below the outlook for the same period last year. The production of apples in Maryland last year was 2,362,000 bushels and the five-year average is 1,922,000 bushels.

Two-thirds of the farms in Southern Maryland are tobacco farms with most of the remainder being general or self sufficing farms.

Dr. Roger B. Corbett, the new director of the University of Maryland Experiment Station is a graduate of Cornell university and was dean and director of the College of Agriculture at the University of Connecticut prior to joining the staff at College Park.

The Seekers For Power

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune.

Who are the "selfish seekers for power" referred to by the president? The impression he sought to convey, of course, was that they were men high in the councils of the Republican party who were endeavoring to thwart his efforts to defy the third-term tradition and take permanent possession of the White House. Except for the reference to business ability, no better description of the president himself can be found in the utterances of any of the Republican campaign orators.

Of all the "seekers for power," none has ever matched either in selfishness or greed the president and the coterie of self-seekers who have mismanaged the affairs of the federal government for eight years and now ask the people of the United States to retain them in office for another four-year period, or perhaps indefinitely.

Schurz Memorial Stresses Loyalty Of German Stock

BY EDWIN C. HILL

In July 1849, Germany's revolution of 1848, its most courageous drive for freedom, was overwhelmed. Carl Schurz, 19-year-old student of the University of Bonn who had been one of the leaders, escaped to Switzerland with a price on his head. He was safe but after a few days learned that his companion in the fight for liberty, Professor Gottfried Kinkel, had been captured and was awaiting execution.

Edwin C. Hill

Young Schurz went back to Berlin and contrived the escape of Professor Kinkel. After two years in London and Paris he abandoned hope for all democratic aspirations in Europe and came to America in 1852. The story of his half century of humane liberal, cultural achievement in his adopted country is known to every school child.

Denounces Brutality

Currently the Carl Schurz Memorial Foundation, established ten years ago in his memory, and in furtherance of his ideals, repudiates and denounces in behalf of Americans of German descent the brutality of Nazi Germany and declares its abhorrence of totalitarianism. They quote from an address by Carl Schurz of 1899 in which he said:

> "It may well be said of American citizens of German blood that however warm their affection for their native land, they have never permitted that affection to interfere with their duties as American citizens, and, least of all, to seduce them into any design or desire to use their power in American politics for foreign ends."

Ideals Affirmed

Beginning with gifts and endowments of more than $1,500,000 to carry on the work of Carl Schurz, the foundation has been and is a vigorous affirmation of the Germanic ideals of Goethe and Schiller and an equally vigorous challenge to Heinrich von Treitschke, Friedrich von Bernhardi and Adolph Hitler. Its statement by the executive committee of the foundation at Philadelphia is more than a repudiation of totalitarian Germany. It is an alliance of loyal and enlightened Americans of German descent against subversion from Germany and a declaration of new fealty to American democracy.

The autobiography of Carl Schurz which was appearing in McClure's in 1906 was interrupted by his death. It seems to this writer that, considering the urgency of our problem of national unity and understanding, there could be no more valuable book than a biography of this great democrat—a book which would be well placed in the public schools.

Leader of Fight

Carl Schurz remained in Philadelphia three years after his arrival in this country and then removed to Watertown, Wisconsin. At this time the Republican party was just taking form. In the Republican convention of 1860 he led the fight for decency and justice for the foreign-born. He was an ardent supporter of Abhaham Lincoln, who later made him Minister to Spain. In 1861 he resigned this post to return to America and serve in the Union Army. He became a Brigadier General in 1862 and a Major General in 1863. After the war President Johnson sent him on a tour of study and investigation of reconstruction problems.

He returned with a broad liberal and generous program for rebuilding reintegrading the shattered south with the union. Later commentators have described this study as a formulation of policy which unquestionably would have prevented the hatred and futility of the carpet-bagging decades. But his plan was smothered by pettifogging congressmen.

Aggressive Foe

Disheartened with politics, he became editor of the Detroit Post in 1866 but in 1869 returned to the political arena as United States senator from Missouri. For years he was a bold and aggressive foe of corruption in our national life and in 1872 led the liberal party supporting Horace Greely for president. An independent in politics he fought for high principle, justice and decency in public life until the day of his death.

Carl Schurz Memorial park in New York is a testimonial to multitudes of his vivid faith in the democratic way of life. Here one sees the children of every race and nationality mingling without discrimination or stigma. Carl Schurz and the park named for him are truly American. A Secret in Wood and a Work of Art That Has Something to Say After Long Years of Silence

By MEVA COCHRAN

A knock at the door interrupted John Perry's day dreaming. Lately John was always daydreaming. There seemed to be nothing left but that.

His shiny crutches made dull, thudding sounds on the bare floor as he moved along. He didn't hurry. The longer he could put off opening that door the better he felt. Besides, a man doesn't hurry to his doom. Not if he knows what it is. And John knew instinctively that it was Jim Prees, the marshal.

It wouldn't budge.

A week ago he receiveda notice stating that the marshal's men would come today to take the furniture unless John could pay a certain debt. Well, they were here. He knew all the time it would end this way. A crippled old man had no chance of raising any money.

John opened the door and they trooped in—the men from the marshal's office.

Jim Prees tried in his way to be kind. He said, "We'll take the front room last, John. Sit in there till we're ready for it if you want to."

John did want to, and his eyes bespoke his thanks. His favorite chair was in that room and he dropped down in it and looked around the familiar place. Every article had a pleasant memory attached. Only a few years ago he and Mollie and Bob had made this room bright and homey. Now the same pieces of furniture appeared dull.

His reverie took him back to the day of his wedding. How he and Mollie had laughed at the superstition of the thing when he picked her up and carried her across the threshold of this very house. Yet, the superstition had come true. They had been ideally happy here.

John's tired old eyes could dimly discern some traces of Bob's scribbling on the woodwork. Even as a child Bob had shown a penchant for drawing. No one was surprised when Bob became a great furniture designer. He had gone to the city to make his mark, but had returned often to visit the "folks."

One day he brought that silly looking Chinese cabinet that stood in the corner near the red drapes. It was his own design he had said. He had helped the express men carry it in and then insisted on nailing it down to the floor himself. John wondered about that at the time, but had made no comment.

Shortly after the gift of the cabinet a telegram had come. It was from a hospital, and as John read it he thought vaguely that it must be always bad when a telegram comes from a hospital. Bob, their son, had had an accident. Could they come at once?

They had got in their little car to make the long trip to the city. Mollie cried all the way and John wasn't very successful at consoling her. His own heart was so full of foreboding that his words sounded flat in his ears.

At the hospital a kindly sister called them into the office. As gently as possible she informed them that their son had passed away only a half hour before. She finished with, "He wanted to tell you something, but we couldn't make out what it was."

That was eight years ago, John recalled. Not long after that Mollie, too, passed away. She had never been the same since Bob's death. John was left with his memories.

Then his troubles really began. The bank crash wiped out his savings. A terrible loneliness crept into his life. He didn't even have the neighborhood kids for company because he couldn't spare the pennies for their candy.

John lifted his careworn face from his hands as the moving men came into the room. They seemed to him like automatons from another world as they proceeded to remove first one object, then another.

A curious sense of desolation took possession of him while this was going on. His daydreams. His meories—they were taking them. Not just sticks of wood like he had thought. They were extracting his life's blood—that's what they were doing.

Now then had taken everything from the room. No—not quite everything. There was still his chair and the Chinese cabinet over near the window. Two of the marshal's men advanced mechanically toward the cabinet. They laid hold of it and tried to wrench it free of the floor, but it wouldn't budge. John almost gloated at this. He saw a fine justice in that cabinet sticking fast to the floor.

"Take it easy, boys," he said with a calmness that surprised him. "That cabinet cost a lot of money."

"Okay, pop. Take it easy, boys," the boss said.

One of the men applied a hammer to the nails holding the cabinet and it came away from the floor with a lurch. It swayed and teetered on it's thing legs. The man who was supposed to be holding it was looking at the ceiling and the cabinet toppled to the floor. John's groan turned to a shout of surprise as a secret drawer in the back sprung open. Neat stacks of green bank notes fell from the drawer.

The boss bent over and picked up a note that had fallen from the drawer with the money. This he handed to John to whom it was addressed.

"Dear Mom and Dad," John read. "In case anything ever happens to me I want you two to be taken care of. I know that you will never move unless something goes wrong. Trusting that you will always take this cabinet with you, I have had this drawer fixed to open if the cabinet is ever moved."

There was much more to the note, but John's eyes were wet with tears and he could no longer make out the writing. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

That is exactly the way the bidding went at one table. West led his diamond A, ruffed by North. Came two high spades, then two top trumps and a third to East's Q. The latter's diamond lead ruffed North out of his last trump. The club K was followed by a finesse of the J. When East's Q won, three diamonds were cashed, setting the game contract three tricks.

In the post-mortem at the end of the evening, another player would not believe that result until the order of the tricks was narrated. He himself reached a contract of 7-Hearts by different bidding, following the same first round, and made it. When West led the diamond A, it caused this declarer to count on East for the queens of hearts and clubs. He ruffed the opener, laid down the heart A and, when the 9 dropped from West, decided to finesse the J. The K followed, dropping the Q.

Next he used his club K and led to the A, intending to set up the suit with a ruff, but the Q dropped for him. He then had nothing to do but run the clubs and the top spades.

Whether you're 16 or 60, there's an exercise to help get your figure into these narrow fall fashions.

First, a medical examination should precede diet and exercise, especially if you're a 16-plus.

Filmstress Joan Leslie straightens her spine by standing erect, then extending her arms and touching her left toe with right finger tips and vice versa.

It's a good idea to recognize right off the bat that if exercises leave you dead tired you've probably got no business doing them.

Here's one that's fairly easy on you but hard on that extra fat about your waist:

Put your hands on top of your head. Now stand erect with your feet together and sway your body first left, back to normal, then right.

If you can do this 50 times a day for two weeks you'll find the inches decreasing around your waist.

You'll get better results if your elbows are held as far back as possible while your hands stay on top of your head.

Gibraltar Bombed By French Planes; Damage Is Heavy

Two Powder Magazines Explode and Cause Great Fires

By The Associated Press

LA LINEA, Spain, Sept. 25.—The mighty British fortress of Gibraltar, world symbol of impregnability, was bombed for more than two hours today by waves of French planes, so swift and so numerous that they defied counting.

Dozens of bombs fell on the famous rock as the planes dived and wheeled.

Two power magazines exploded and flames leaped high from the naval base installations.

Smoke billowed up from the vicinity of the arsenal and the town itself, and still the planes came over, flying high as the anti-aircraft guns on land and the "pom poms" on warships in the harbor threw up showers of bursting shells. (A French communique said Britain's 32-000-ton battle cruiser Renown was hit and forced to steam away.)

The attack—second in two days, and carried out in reprisal for the "Free French" and British assault on Dakar, French West Africa,—opened at 2:40 p. m. (9:40 a. m., EST) with the attacking planes coming in groups of four.

Forty-five minutes later fourteen planes droned across the narrow strait of Gibraltar from Morocco and unloosed clusters of bombs.

As the planes wheeled and made for home, others appeared. At 3:50 p. m., they were roaring over in waves of ten, swooping low over the rock.

By 4:15 p. m. the attackers were so numerous and moving so swiftly that observers could not count them.

Wilford Weaver Is Hurt in Accident

Wilford Weaver, 26, of RFD 1, Knox, Pa., an employe of the North Penn Gas Company, Port Allegany, Pa., yesterday afternoon was admitted to Memorial hospital after being painfully injured while working at Accident.

Weaver suffered a broken right shoulder blade and a compound fracture of the right arm when the large wire cable he was putting a "twist" in apparently broke and struck him.

Hospital attendants said Weaver told them, "I was putting a twist in a wire cable and I 'think' it broke."

Dundon Defended

"Now, Mr. Rudolph! About our president being suspicious, etc. I want you to know that Mr. Dundon was elected for several terms by an overwhelming majority, and surely so many people can't be wrong so many times. As far as some of our members being of 'such loathsome mentality that some of their actions are sickening' you must have had a hell of a bellyache when you wrote your 'open letter'.

"I am very disgusted with the situation at the plant, the same as you are. Surely the management can't be wrong by hiring 'thugs' to beat and tear gas innocent unarmed men and women employes, and then 'fire' them.

"That you have spoken your mind, (or is it yours) is very clear, Mr. Rudolph, and in closing I want you to know the only rash consequences you have to chance are the ones the Celanese will give you. Thanks for your membership card. As poor as you seem to be, don't mail it; just put it in the Wills Creek and let it float down. You need the money. Also stop at the office and hand them your refusal of your vacation, pay raises, etc., that the union got for you.

"Come on, Boy! Get wise!"

Two Letters Held Up

A third letter writer who indicated that he was an employe at the Celanese plant could not be identified since he gave no street address.

Fred Small, plant manager, said no such man has been employed at the plant and union officers said they had no record of any such member.

A fourth correspondent writing from Piedmont attacking Dundon and the union, failed to sign his name clearly and give his street address. The letter is being withheld until he identifies himself.

Maryland Society Meets In New York October 14

The Maryland Society of New York will resume activities for the forthcoming winter season at a dinner meeting to be held Monday, October 14.

The society, which is made up of natives and former residents of Maryland, living in New York and vicinity, was organized in 1898, and its aims are to cherish the traditions and advance the prestige of their home state through social contact among the members.

Throughout the year several informal dinners are held for members and guests, and each year a more formal reception and dance for ladies is held in one of the city's outstanding ballroom suites. These functions are important events in the season's social calendar.

Membership is by election, and the society invites eligible Marylanders in New York to share its privileges and especially welcomes younger men from Maryland who have taken up their residence in the metropolitan area.

Inquiries concerning the Maryland Society of New York may be directed to any one of the following officers: H. T. Magruder, president, 70 Broadway, New York city; J. Donald Kieffer, treasurer, 195 Broadway, New York city, and James T. Knotts, Jr., secretary, 17 Oakridge avenue, Nutley, N. J.

Thirty Degree Drop In Temperature Here

A thirty-degree drop in the mercury was scheduled to overspread Maryland last night with the forecast "fair and continued cool Thursday and Thursday night."

The temperature drop yesterday accompanied by high northerly winds, reminded Cumberland residents of winter instead of the customary mild autumn weather.

Temperatures over the Dakotas were down to 25 degrees, or at seven degrees below the freezing point, yesterday morning.

Forecast for Friday in the tri-state area was "fair with rising temperature."

William N. Cooper Succumbs Suddenly

William Newton Cooper, 64, colored, died suddenly Tuesday night at his home, 509 Greene street, of a heart attack.

Mr. Cooper was a native of Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and a son of the late William and Sarah Moody Cooper.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louanna Willis Cooper; three sons, Harry C., Andrew W. and Robert W. Cooper, of Cumberland; eight daughters, Mrs. William Robinson, of New York City; Mrs. Harry Lee Bucy, Mrs. Harold Hilton and Mrs. R. H. Hilmore, this city; Misses Mattie V., Julia L., Catherine and Elizabeth S. Cooper, all at home, and seven grandchildren.

Thomas Shephard Hurt

Thomas Shephard, 30, of Shallmar, suffered an injured right leg yesterday afternoon when struck by a rock while working in the Wabash coal mine.

He was brought to Memorial hospital and admitted for observation. X-rays will be taken today to determine the extent of his injury.

corporation were treated more like hired servants than men and women vested with the dignity and the rights of human beings."

Paging Mr. Aiken

The identity of an unindentified George D. Aiken also was given some thought by Meyers in his broadcast last night. Aiken, or somebody who signed his name as Aiken, yesterday followed Frank Rudolph's example and wrote a letter to the newspaper explaining why he was dropping out of the union.

Meyers said he diligently endeavored to ferret out the identity of Aiken but was unable to do so by means of the union records or the city directory. Furthermore, President Dundon did not receive a letter from Aiken containing his membership card, Meyers said.

"The only George D. Aiken of whom we know is the Governor of Vermont," Meyers continued seriously. "Let the author of this letter be produced? Where does George D. Aiken live except outside of Brattleboro, Vermont?"

Meyers then set forth the amount of pay Rudolph receives and declared the union is responsible for it.

Conference

ference is scheduled for tomorrow.

"In the meantime, all members of Local 1874 are informed that the situation at the moment is unchanged. Despite the heavy rain and bad weather, the members of Local 1874 fulfilled their duties on the picket-line throughout yesterday and throughout the night."

With the exception of Horvitz, the same participants will return to the plant today for a resumption of the discussion. Horvitz will be absent today due to an appointment made previously with Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the United States Conciliation Service. In the event a settlement is not reached today, Horvitz will return to be on hand for any further discussions.

Outside of yesterday's conference, developments were few in regard to the situation. The company has dropped its daily use of full-page newspaper statements for the time being and the union has discontinued its series of radio broadcasts.

While there has been and is considerable discussion regarding the situation on the part of workers and members of the general public, the usual rumors regarding "back-to-work" movements that accompany any big shutdown have proved groundless.

Leo Krzycki Arrives

One newcomer was noted on the scene last night. He was Leo Krzycki, a member of the executive board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, who arrived from Pittsburgh. Krzycki, who spoke a number of times before union audiences during last year's labor troubles at Celanese, said he had just recently returned from a trip through the midwest and Detroit. Krzycki is generally recognized as one of the most fluent speakers in the labor world and is a close friend of Sidney Hillman, a member of the President's National Defense Committee.

Games Called Off

The games and contests scheduled for Friday afternoon at Community Ball park in connection with an Emancipation day celebration sponsored by the Progressive Voters Association have been called off, because of school sessions and lack of contestants.

The evening program will begin as scheduled at 8 o'clock with a dance following at ten.

their own jobs, thoroughly or to teach others to be better soldiers, the officer says. A modern army is so complex it needs many specialists, experts, and mechanics in practically every trade, craft, or profession known in civil life.

The men who join the regular army have a permanent position as long as they apply themselves.

For the high school graduate, vacancies exist for young men from the states of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia, in the chemical warfare service, signal corps, and ordnance department.

For those without a high school education, vacancies exist in the infantry, cavalry, quartermaster corps and medical department.

Complete information about the army and its many opportunities will be cheerfully given to you by Sgt. Clarence Biehn, recruiting officer, at the Cumberland post office.

public statement until now about the action of the State Central committee naming me to the campaign group in the interest of harmony, and in the hope that members of that committee would express the courage of their convictions that the campaign cannot succeed in this county under 'figure-head' leadership. However, since the Central committee is proceeding with plans, and making it appear that the 'vice-chairmanship' is satisfactory with me and those associated with me, I believe it is proper that the Democratic voters of the county be advised of the situation as it actually exists.

"A further and concluding reason why I make this statement at this time is the fact that Joseph H. Griffin, named chairman of the campaign committee, advised me last Friday night that he would not have time to devote to the campaign and that he counted on my working at headquarters as I had in the primary election.

Would Pay Old Debt

"Others share Mr. Griffin's belief that I will devote my time to the campaign while they sit back to bask in the spotlight. They share the belief that the Radcliffe group will be content to have the purse-strings of the campaign in control of the Central committee, which intends to take the first $1,000 collected or obtained to apply to a Central committee debt which existed prior to 1928.

"It would be ridiculous for us to go along with any such arrangement, just as it would be ludicrous for me to place myself in the position of doing the work while others shirk the responsibilities they assume more or less like "indispensable" men.

"Various groups of Radcliffe supporters in several sections of the county have advised me that they will not serve under the Central committee's campaign set-up, and they did this without any coercion or suggestion on my part. The fact is, their attitude is the chief basis for my refusal to serve on a committee that is not at all satisfactory with the majority of the Democrats in Allegany county.

"Our determination not to acquiesce to the dictates of the State Central committee does not mean that we will not be active in the general election campaign. We simply cannot subject ourselves to a sort of serfdom for those who cannot serve the offices they foist upon themselves. The State Central committee was advised of this as early as June 26."

They share the belief that the Radcliffe group will be content to have the purse-strings of the campaign in control of the Central committee, which intends to take the first $1,000 collected or obtained to apply to a Central committee debt which existed prior to 1928.

"It would be ridiculous for us to go along with any such arrangement, just as it would be ludicrous for me to place myself in the position of doing the work while others shirk the responsibilities they assume more or less like "indispensable" men.

"Various groups of Radcliffe supporters in several sections of the county have advised me that they will not serve under the Central committee's campaign set-up, and they did this without any coercion or suggestion on my part. The fact is, their attitude is the chief basis for my refusal to serve on a committee that is not at all satisfactory with the majority of the Democrats in Allegany county.

"Our determination not to acquiesce to the dictates of the State Central committee does not mean that we will not be active in the general election campaign. We simply cannot subject ourselves to a sort of serfdom for those who cannot serve the offices they foist upon themselves. The State Central committee was advised of this as early as June 26."

Preferred Shares Advance, but Common Stocks Sell Off Slightly

War Situation Causes Apprehension in Ranks of Traders

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP) — Preferred shares left the common stocks far behind today for the third session in a row.

Best gainers rose as much as three points. Observers said such issues were in demand by investors who believed the present high rate of operations of the companies represented would result in accrued dividend payoffs.

Many common stock leaders slipped almost two points.

At the final bell, the Associated Press index of sixty selected shares was off only .1 of a point at 45. Transactions totaled 603,960 shares compared with 710,510 yesterday.

The day's general bearish aspect was based mainly on the situations at Gibraltar and in French Indo-China. Traders worried for fear the British would be forced to diversify their operations still further.

Among the rising preferred shares were General Steel Castings, Certain-Teed, Pittsburgh Steel, Allegany, and Devoe & Raynolds, while the common gainers included Douglas Aircraft, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Allied Chemical and Caterpillar. On the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Harvester, du Pont, Dow Chemical and American Can.

Off a point or so in the curb — where transactions totaled about 85,000 shares compared with 109,000 yesterday — were Jones & Loughlin Steel, Aluminum of America, Niles-Bement-Pond, and Todd Shipyards.

Theaters Today

Revue of the '90's Will Be at Strand

"The Gay Nineties Revue" will appear as a feature stage attraction for two days starting tomorrow at the Strand theater. This is heralded as a typical Tony Pastor Bowery Music Hall show with a cast of thirty-five singing, dancing, comedy members.

Heading the cast are Yorke and Tracey, with comedy hits and blackouts. Others include Jack La Veer and company in a presentation of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze", Sondra Miller, buxum Chanteuese; Mel Hall and Company, on high bikes; Bernard and Jensen, who bring to life the famous funsters of the early movies, and characters that were figures on the famous old New York Bowery.

A troupe of dancing girls billed the "The Music Hall Cuties" will offer a parade of Gibson Girls, Flora-Dora Belles, and Coney Island Mermaids.

The stunning crystal chandeliers which decorate the swank continental hotel dining room, in which glamorous Zorina dines with handsome Richard Greene in "I Was An Adventuress," now at the Garden Theater are said to have cost more than the reproduction of the entire hotel.

In keeping with the gowns and jewels worn by Zorina, who stars in the film by courtesy of Samuel Goldwyn, the chandeliers are among the most highly prized possessions of the Twentieth Century-Fox property department.

Weighing close to half a ton apiece, the handsome light fixtures were among the last items imported by the studio from Czechoslovakia.

Erich Van Stroheim, Peter Lorre, Sig Rumann and Fritz Feld are importantly featured in "I Was An Adventuress."

C. Aubrey Smith, distinguished English actor, plays one of the prominent roles in the new RKO Radio film, "Beyond Tomorrow," also showing at the Garden.

Smith is said to have introduced cricket on the Pacific coast. At one time he was one of England's noted cricket players, and now at the age of 76 he still takes part in this sport.

Nan Grey Appears In Liberty Picture

Nan Grey is to be seen in Universal's "You're Not So Tough," now showing at the New Liberty theater.

Nan played a princess in "The Tower of London," a young English girl in "The Invisible Man Returns," a Colonial Miss in "The House of the Seven Gables," and a young wife and mother in "Sandy Is a Lady." In "You're Not So Tough," which also features the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys, she will be seen as an "Okie" girl following California's harvest seasons.

Embassy Schedules Another Double Bill

"You Only Live Once," Walter Wanger's first production for release through United Artists, begins a two-day engagement tomorrow at the Embassy theater, with Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda, the screen sweethearts of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," reunited in the starring roles.

Conflict, action and romance are combined in this story of a woman who risked her life to fight by the side of the man she loved when the whole world condemned him and hunted him like an animal in every corner of the earth.

The supporting cast is headed by Barton MacLane, who incidentally has his first sympathetic role; Jean Dixon, William Gargan and the late Charles "Chic" Sale; Warren Hymer, Margaret Hamilton, Guinn Williams, Jerome Cowan, and John Wray.

"Oklahoma Renegades," one of the series starring Bob Livingston, Raymond Hatton and Duncan Renaldo, "the Three Mesquiteers," will also be shown.

In this adventure, the Mesquiteers return to Oklahoma at the close of the Spanish-American war, in which they participated, and decide to stake out homesteads, taking advantage of a government offer giving preference to war veterans.

Showing for the last times today are Fred Scott, the silvery-voiced buckaroo, in "Two Gun Troubador," "Of Mice and Men" and the last chapter of "Drums of Fu Manchu."

Beery Feature Is Offered at Maryland

"Wyoming" starring Wallace Berry in an outdoor drama of the West, will be offered at the Maryland theater.

Beery plays Reb Harkness, former train robber, who turns leader of forces of law and order in a pioneer Wyoming town, helps rout a band of cattle thieves, aids Gen. Custer in his fight against the Indians, and stages a thrilling rescue of Ann Rutherford and Bobs Watson.

Amid the thrills runs a comedy romance between Beery and Marjorie Main, playing the town's "lady blacksmith," which is said to be one of the funniest episodes since "Min and Bill." The picture was filmed on location at Jackson Hole, Wyoming, amid the majestic Tetons. Richard Thorpe directed.

Players include Leo Carillo, Lee Bowman, Paul Kelly, who plays General Custer, Joseph Calleia, Henry Travers, William Tannen, Stanley Fields, Sara Haden, Russell Simpson, Chief Thundercloud and others. Several hundred players appear in Indian fights, cattle raids and other episodes.

Scenes include the rescue of Miss Rutherford and Bobs Watson from an Indian attack by Custer's cavalry, the rounding up of a gang of desperadoes, a wild ride on a troop train and Beery's escape from jail. Comedy moments include Beery's courtship, including his serenade on a harmonica, episodes with Bobs Watson, and Beery's scenes with Leo Carillo.

REVUE CHORINES

A few of the chorus appearing with "The Gay 90's Revue" showing at the Strand theater Friday and Saturday.

IT'S LOVE

Lee Bowman and Ann Rutherford supply the love interest in "Wyoming," new Wallace Beery outdoor action drama beginning today at the Maryland theater.

JOE E. BROWN'S SON WEDS

Joe Leroy Brown, 21, son of screen comedian Joe E. Brown, is shown with Miss Virginia Lee Newport, 19, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Willard Newport, of Beverly Hills, Calif., as they applied in Los Angeles for their marriage license. They were married September 24.

Theaters Today

Revue of the '90's Will Be at Strand

"The Gay Nineties Revue" will appear as a feature stage attraction for two days starting tomorrow at the Strand theater. This is heralded as a typical Tony Pastor Bowery Music Hall show with a cast of thirty-five singing, dancing, comedy members.

Heading the cast are Yorke and Tracey, with comedy hits and blackouts. Others include Jack La Veer and company in a presentation of "The Man on the Flying Trapeze", Sondra Miller, buxum Chanteuese; Mel Hall and Company, on high bikes; Bernard and Jensen, who bring to life the famous funsters of the early movies, and characters that were figures on the famous old New York Bowery.

A troupe of dancing girls billed the "The Music Hall Cuties" will offer a parade of Gibson Girls, Flora-Dora Belles, and Coney Island Mermaids.

The stunning crystal chandeliers which decorate the swank continental hotel dining room, in which glamorous Zorina dines with handsome Richard Greene in "I Was An Adventuress," now at the Garden Theater are said to have cost more than the reproduction of the entire hotel.

In keeping with the gowns and jewels worn by Zorina, who stars in the film by courtesy of Samuel Goldwyn, the chandeliers are among the most highly prized possessions of the Twentieth Century-Fox property department.

Weighing close to half a ton apiece, the handsome light fixtures were among the last items imported by the studio from Czechoslovakia.

Erich Van Stroheim, Peter Lorre, Sig Rumann and Fritz Feld are importantly featured in "I Was An Adventuress."

C. Aubrey Smith, distinguished English actor, plays one of the prominent roles in the new RKO Radio film, "Beyond Tomorrow," also showing at the Garden.

Smith is said to have introduced cricket on the Pacific coast. At one time he was one of England's noted cricket players, and now at the age of 76 he still takes part in this sport.

Nan Grey Appears In Liberty Picture

Nan Grey is to be seen in Universal's "You're Not So Tough," now showing at the New Liberty theater.

Nan played a princess in "The Tower of London," a young English girl in "The Invisible Man Returns," a Colonial Miss in "The House of the Seven Gables," and a young wife and mother in "Sandy Is a Lady." In "You're Not So Tough," which also features the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys, she will be seen as an "Okie" girl following California's harvest seasons.

Embassy Schedules Another Double Bill

"You Only Live Once," Walter Wanger's first production for release through United Artists, begins a two-day engagement tomorrow at the Embassy theater, with Sylvia Sidney and Henry Fonda, the screen sweethearts of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," reunited in the starring roles.

Conflict, action and romance are combined in this story of a woman who risked her life to fight by the side of the man she loved when the whole world condemned him and hunted him like an animal in every corner of the earth.

The supporting cast is headed by Barton MacLane, who incidentally has his first sympathetic role; Jean Dixon, William Gargan and the late Charles "Chic" Sale; Warren Hymer, Margaret Hamilton, Guinn Williams, Jerome Cowan, and John Wray.

"Oklahoma Renegades," one of the series starring Bob Livingston, Raymond Hatton and Duncan Renaldo, "the Three Mesquiteers," will also be shown.

In this adventure, the Mesquiteers return to Oklahoma at the close of the Spanish-American war, in which they participated, and decide to stake out homesteads, taking advantage of a government offer giving preference to war veterans.

Showing for the last times today are Fred Scott, the silvery-voiced buckaroo, in "Two Gun Troubador," "Of Mice and Men" and the last chapter of "Drums of Fu Manchu."

Beery Feature Is Offered at Maryland

"Wyoming" starring Wallace Berry in an outdoor drama of the West, will be offered at the Maryland theater.

Beery plays Reb Harkness, former train robber, who turns leader of forces of law and order in a pioneer Wyoming town, helps rout a band of cattle thieves, aids Gen. Custer in his fight against the Indians, and stages a thrilling rescue of Ann Rutherford and Bobs Watson.

Amid the thrills runs a comedy romance between Beery and Marjorie Main, playing the town's "lady blacksmith," which is said to be one of the funniest episodes since "Min and Bill." The picture was filmed on location at Jackson Hole, Wyoming, amid the majestic Tetons. Richard Thorpe directed.

Players include Leo Carillo, Lee Bowman, Paul Kelly, who plays General Custer, Joseph Calleia, Henry Travers, William Tannen, Stanley Fields, Sara Haden, Russell Simpson, Chief Thundercloud and others. Several hundred players appear in Indian fights, cattle raids and other episodes.

Scenes include the rescue of Miss Rutherford and Bobs Watson from an Indian attack by Custer's cavalry, the rounding up of a gang of desperadoes, a wild ride on a troop train and Beery's escape from jail. Comedy moments include Beery's courtship, including his serenade on a harmonica, episodes with Bobs Watson, and Beery's scenes with Leo Carillo.

REVUE CHORINES

A few of the chorus appearing with "The Gay 90's Revue" showing at the Strand theater Friday and Saturday.

IT'S LOVE

Lee Bowman and Ann Rutherford supply the love interest in "Wyoming," new Wallace Beery outdoor action drama beginning today at the Maryland theater.

JOE E. BROWN'S SON WEDS

BEFORE THE BLITZKRIEG

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by RUPERT GRAYSON

CHAPTER THIRTY

"I'M ONLY hoping you won't get too much excitement. Are you—armed?" asked X.

She shook her head.

"Good heavens, no! If Otto or any of the others were to find a handy little automatic in my bag, it would start all sorts of awkward questions. But I have my wits."

"They certainly seem to be pretty efficient," he conceded.

"Then it's settled that I go—if I can persuade Otto to take me, and I don't think there's much doubt about that. Now, what are my instructions?"

"Oh, the usual. Find out all you can, and communicate with me as soon as you can—with safety. And one other thing—I've an idea that one of my boys is knocking around that place, somewhere. He may be a prisoner; he may not. I can't tell. But I want you to get in touch with him, if you can, and if he's in any trouble do all you can to help him. Actually, there are two of them there, but only one is mine. The other is an Air Force officer named Hazeldeane—my fellow's name is Gun Cotton."

"Oh! The husband of that delightful person we met the other night?"

"Exactly. You have a good memory for names. Is your memory for faces as good?"

"I think so."

"Then take a look at these photos. This is Hazeldeane, the Air Force chap. And this is my man, Cotton."

She took the photographs in her hand and examined them carefully.

"All right," she said, handing them back. "I shall know them if I see them."

"Well, I can't give you any further instructions—I'm so accursedly in the dark myself. Understand, these fellows may be fascists, or communists, or just plain bandits, out of their own hand."

"I'm pretty certain the latter," Coral interpolated.

"That may be. Only one thing is certain—they're dangerous. And if they once suspect you . . ."

He did not finish his sentence, but the silence was significant. The girl only laughed.

"Don't look so serious. It's all in the game, you know!"

X rose, and held out his hand.

"You're a plucky girl," he said gravely. "And I'm lucky to have got you. But do, please, remember that I want to keep you—and don't take unnecessary risks. Find out all you can—help those boys if they need it, and—good luck be with you!"

"Thanks!"

They gripped hands for a moment, and then X turned and left the cubicle.

He left the place by the same way as he had entered it, and, a few minutes later, Coral Merridew followed his example, but by the shop entrance.

Gun knew that the odds were rendered stronger against him by the fact that Trent, as a precaution, no doubt, had left the light on. Therefore Gun, wallowing in the luxury of that cool-sheeted bed, must close his eyes, in case Trent should take a last glance at him. And the temptation for "just five minutes" was, perhaps, the strongest temptation he had ever known.

At last he decided that it was time to get busy. From Trent's bed came the sound of deep, regular breathing—a little thick, as of one who has indulged in a trifle too much alcohol. That, Gun decided, would be the effect of the pellet. But for the drug, he might have suspected that Trent might be just "playing 'possum," but now he was pretty sure he wasn't.

However, he left nothing to chance. He suddenly sat up in bed:

"Trent! I say, Trent!"

There was no response from the other bed save the deep, regular breathing of the man in it.

Gun was satisfied, and got quietly out of bed. He slipped on his trousers, but not his shoes, and put his electric torch in one pocket, and the automatic in the other.

Now came a ticklish job—to get the keys from under Trent's pillow. The brute had the clothes pulled up well over his face, too.

Gun crept to the bedside on his hands and knees, and very softly began to explore with one hand. It was nervous work, and Gun's nerves were not in the best trim. He was surprised and annoyed to find himself wet with perspiration after a few seconds. His fingers touched something hard and cold which raised his hopes for a moment, and then caused him to curse inwardly. It was not the keys, but the pistol. And the keys were behind it.

Nothing for it but patience. Slowly, with the tips of his fingers Gun worked the automatic aside a little, bit by bit, until at last his fingers could get past it, and the tip of the forefinger could hook itself around the keyring. Then the business of drawing it slowly toward him, not inch by inch, but fraction by fraction.

But it was done at last, and he had the keys in his hand.

Then, still on all fours—there must be no shadow across the face of the sleeper—Gun crept to the door, opened it—very slowly, in case it should creak—and at last stood in the passage outside.

He closed the door behind him noiselessly—then realized that he had forgotten to fake his bed, in case Trent should wake, or partially wake, and take a glance at it.

Hands and knees again, and back into the room. More quickly and less cautiously this time—the precious minutes were slipping away all too quickly.

Gun arranged the bolster to look as much like a sleeping form as possible, and then back to the passage. On his feet once more, and the legs still shaky, curse it.

Now another danger to be faced. The bungalow was queerly designed, and to get to Trent's office he had to pass through the kitchen. Sambo's domain, and if the Negro was still awake . . . ?

Gun strained his ears, but could hear no sound, except for Trent's breathing coming faintly through the closed door. He catfooted to the closed door of the kitchen, turned the handle very slowly, and opened it an inch. No light in the kitchen, and no sound.

He decided, if Sambo should be there and should wake, to look as sleepy as possible and ask for drinking water. That might pass muster, or it might not—could only try it.

He switched on his torch, and sent the little beam of light searching around the kitchen. No one there.

With a faint sigh of relief Gun slipped, ghost-like, into the kitchen and closed the door behind him. A second door opposite to him, leading to the entrance passage. He opened that with less caution, not anticipating that anyone would be on the other side.

Luckily his anticipation was correct.

Noiselessly Gun moved forward to the office door. It was locked—but the key was on the bunch he had borrowed. A Yale lock, and only two Yale keys in the collection. That was easy. Gun let himself into the office, and let the door lock itself behind him.

The room was pitch dark, but he remembered with a grateful heart that the curtains over the single widow were dark and thick. He could, therefore, put his torch on with safety—comparatively.

He sent the little circle of light flashing around the room, then crossed to the window and made sure that the window was properly covered, so that no gleam of light could be seen from outside. Satisfied of this, he still did not dare to put the electric light on. Despite the thickness of the curtain stuff, that might show through. No, he must work with his torch.

He turned his attention to the desk, and the first thing his eyes lighted on was the cigaret box. This time the temptation was too strong.

He opened it. There were six cigarets on the top layer, and Trent, he realized, might remember. He took one from the lower layer, and arranged them so that there were still six on top. Then he crouched down behind the desk and lit the cigaret with his gold lighter.

That was good. The smoke steadied his nerves.

He turned his attention to the desk. There were six drawers, two unlocked, four locked. A glance at those that were not locked showed, as he expected, that they contained nothing but note paper, pens, paper clips and other office necessities. They were very tidy. Gun looked for some sort of printed note heading, but found none. He had hardly expected to.

Now he turned his attention to the locked drawers. The first one contained a lot of books and ledgers, with a Ready Reckoner on top. Gun lifted the ledgers onto the floor, and flicked the pages over, occasionally studying one with interest. They were illuminating. Apparently Trent, or the people he represented, dealt a good deal in explosives. There were itemized purchases of picric acid, nitro glycerine, dynamite, gelignite, T. N. T. Also percussion caps, time fuses and contact fuses, etc.

But the most puzzling thing was the quantities. They had been paying a heavy price for the stuff, but the quantities were comparatively small. Evidently there was no question of them making munitions on a large scale—all the same, they must have a fairly complete arsenal about, somewhere.

Another ledger dealt with all sorts of stores. Not so interesting. The interest revived in a third ledger in which were recorded purchases of small arms, machine and sub-machine guns and ammunition. Again not in large quantities.

More raw material. Gun knew enough about such matters to realize that they were manufacturing incendiary bombs—but again in astonishly small quantities.

And then a particularly interesting item: "To 5 Cylinders G.13." Gun happened to know something about G.13. It was a recently invented gas, which did not actually kill, but rendered all who breathed it unconscious for several hours. It was designed for throwing into dug-outs when one wanted to take prisoners, for interrogation or other purposes. What the devil did these people want with that stuff—and, incidentally, how did they manage to get hold of it? It was supposed to be a rather tight War Office secret.

Gun glanced at his wrist watch. Time was going too fast.

No time to analyze these clues now—must think them out later.

Gun put the ledgers back, just as he had found them, and closed and locked the drawer. Turned to the next one. This contained money, receipts and—postage stamps. A clue here, perhaps. Gun examined them eagerly. They were Greek.

"Then we're somewhere in the Greek Archipelago, for a fiver! I was right!" Gun said to himself.

The next drawer contained more books—cipher and code keys. Several of the official W. O. and A. F. codes and ciphers there, too. Also a number of German official ones. But the keys were not official—they were carefully prepared copies, both in the case of the British and the German ones. That was curious, because it not only meant that what Gun had half suspected—that this was some German or fascist plot—was not correct, but it also looked as though whatever scheme these people had was aimed against Germany as well as Britain.

No time to analyze. Gun glanced at his watch again. All this had taken a lot of time. And he still had discovered nothing definite.

One more drawer left—but only a few minutes to devote to it. As he unlocked the last drawer and peered inside, Gun almost gave vent to a whoop of triumph. This was what he wanted—correspondence.

Damn it—it was all in code. No—some of the letters had the decoding attached on slips of paper.

Hastily Gun went through them. As he did so his dark eyes glowed with anger, and his lips unconsciously tightened. For here was as foul a plot—as ruthless a scheme for the mere acquisition of money—as ever brain could devise.

New Aerial Bomb Is Invented

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 25 (AP)—An aerial bomb which its inventor contends can have its destructive capacity multiplied fifty-fold by a new method of construction has been developed by Master Sergeant Frank Newton, head of the Ordnance Department, Fort Rosecrans.

Newton said a 2,000 pound bomb with this revolutionary development could be given the annihilating effect of a 100,000 pound missile without any increase in weight.

The inventor said the development had been tested with devastating effect at Camp Ord, Calif., and was in the hands of Army Ordnance officers in Washington, D. C., for further experiments.

"The rate of detonation is governed by the amount of oxygen introduced," said Newton.

Sponseller Named State's Attorney

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 25 (AP)—Donald C. Sponseller, 32, Westminster, was appointed Carroll county state's attorney today to serve the unexpired term of the late George N. Fringer, with whom he had been associated as a law partner for six years.

Fringer, elected to the office in 1934 and reelected for four years in 1938, died Thursday. Sponseller, like Fringer a Republican, was appointed by the Judges of the Fifth Judicial Circuit — Chief Judge F. Neal Parke and Associate Judges William Henry Forsythe, Jr., and Ridgely P. Melvin.

Sponseller attended Westminster high school and Mercersburg Academy, and received a law degree from the University of Baltimore in 1932. He was admitted to the bar in 1933, and became associated with Fringer the following year.

Oklahoma Doctor Held at Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—Dr. William Gutsche, 34, of Oklahoma City, Okla., remained in the city jail tonight awaiting action of a November federal grand jury on a charge of violating the Mann act.

Dr. Gutsche, a former resident of Stuarts Draft, Va., was arrested by city police September 18 and turned over to federal authorities. United States Commissioner A. V. Fitzwater held him for grand jury action and fixed bond at $5,000.

The commissioner said Dr. Gutsche was charged with transporting a woman from Stuarts Draft, Va., into West Virginia for immoral purposes.

Finland Permits German Troops To Cross Country

HELSINKI, FINLAND, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Government Information Bureau announced tonight that Finland is permitting transport of German troops and supplies in Northern Norway via Northern Finland.

CHAPTER THIRTY

"I'M ONLY hoping you won't get too much excitement. Are you—armed?" asked X.

She shook her head.

"Good heavens, no! If Otto or any of the others were to find a handy little automatic in my bag, it would start all sorts of awkward questions. But I have my wits."

"They certainly seem to be pretty efficient," he conceded.

"Then it's settled that I go—if I can persuade Otto to take me, and I don't think there's much doubt about that. Now, what are my instructions?"

"Oh, the usual. Find out all you can, and communicate with me as soon as you can—with safety. And one other thing—I've an idea that one of my boys is knocking around that place, somewhere. He may be a prisoner; he may not. I can't tell. But I want you to get in touch with him, if you can, and if he's in any trouble do all you can to help him. Actually, there are two of them there, but only one is mine. The other is an Air Force officer named Hazeldeane—my fellow's name is Gun Cotton."

"Oh! The husband of that delightful person we met the other night?"

"Exactly. You have a good memory for names. Is your memory for faces as good?"

"I think so."

"Then take a look at these photos. This is Hazeldeane, the Air Force chap. And this is my man, Cotton."

She took the photographs in her hand and examined them carefully.

"All right," she said, handing them back. "I shall know them if I see them."

"Well, I can't give you any further instructions—I'm so accursedly in the dark myself. Understand, these fellows may be fascists, or communists, or just plain bandits, out of their own hand."

"I'm pretty certain the latter," Coral interpolated.

"That may be. Only one thing is certain—they're dangerous. And if they once suspect you . . ."

He did not finish his sentence, but the silence was significant. The girl only laughed.

"Don't look so serious. It's all in the game, you know!"

X rose, and held out his hand.

"You're a plucky girl," he said gravely. "And I'm lucky to have got you. But do, please, remember that I want to keep you—and don't take unnecessary risks. Find out all you can—help those boys if they need it, and—good luck be with you!"

"Thanks!"

They gripped hands for a moment, and then X turned and left the cubicle.

He left the place by the same way as he had entered it, and, a few minutes later, Coral Merridew followed his example, but by the shop entrance.

Gun knew that the odds were rendered stronger against him by the fact that Trent, as a precaution, no doubt, had left the light on. Therefore Gun, wallowing in the luxury of that cool-sheeted bed, must close his eyes, in case Trent should take a last glance at him. And the temptation for "just five minutes" was, perhaps, the strongest temptation he had ever known.

At last he decided that it was time to get busy. From Trent's bed came the sound of deep, regular breathing—a little thick, as of one who has indulged in a trifle too much alcohol. That, Gun decided, would be the effect of the pellet. But for the drug, he might have suspected that Trent might be just "playing 'possum," but now he was pretty sure he wasn't.

However, he left nothing to chance. He suddenly sat up in bed:

"Trent! I say, Trent!"

There was no response from the other bed save the deep, regular breathing of the man in it.

Gun was satisfied, and got quietly out of bed. He slipped on his trousers, but not his shoes, and put his electric torch in one pocket, and the automatic in the other.

Now came a ticklish job—to get the keys from under Trent's pillow. The brute had the clothes pulled up well over his face, too.

Gun crept to the bedside on his hands and knees, and very softly began to explore with one hand. It was nervous work, and Gun's nerves were not in the best trim. Operating Expenses Of Unemployment Board Reduced

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP)—Operating expenses of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation board have been reduced one-third—with forty per cent of its employes laid off—in the last two years, Chairman William Milnes Maloy said today.

The board had a maximum of 815 employes in 1938, when unemployment compensation benefits were started, and now has 481.

Operating expenses totaled $1,196,000 in 1938, and in 1940 he estimated the board would spend "about $825,000."

Increased efficiency, more accurate and complete reports by employes, simplifications in the compensation law, and other improvements permitted the decrease in personnel, he explained.

Saadist in Egypt Want To Go to War

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 25 (AP)—Saadist party leaders, who are trying to bring Egypt into the European war on the side of Britain, today pressed their campaign to win over Independents in the Chamber for a showdown expected next week.

The Saadist must bring into their ranks forty-four Independents to obtain a majority for the declaration of war.

Political observers concede that war sentiment has increased since the Italian thrust into Egypt, but there is still strong reluctance to a declaration.

Prevailing sentiment in government circles is to let Britain protect Egypt.

If the profits of horse racing were properly taxed, it is estimated they would bring the United States treasury $100,000,000 a year.

Proper Training in Home Will Be Helpful in the Army and Navy

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D

To the many youths who are entering the army and navy, let me say a few words.

I know something about the experiences you will have, for I served in the United States Army during the first World war. For most of you it will be a very different life from that to which you have been accustomed. Yet your home training will reveal itself continually.

The first thing that you will observe is that you must learn obedience. Some things you must do, or not do. At times you will resent the authority over you and will resist it. This will be foolish as you will soon discover. It will make you unhappy and get you into a heap of trouble.

Good Advice

I shall never forget the advice Prof. A. T. Poffenberger, eminent psychologist of Columbia University, who already had been in uniform about a month, gave me as he walked with me from the railroad station at Camp Greenleaf outside Chattanooga up to the barracks. Said he, "You are in the army now, Garry, try to fit into the machine and make the most of it. Forget your personal pride. Learn to be a good soldier."

Many were the times when I recalled that good advice, especially when some officer with very little formal education but considerable military wisdom and skill lorded it over me. Though I still suffered occasionally, I was able to take it most of the time.

There will be times when a sergeant or commissioned officer will appear to be brutal to you. He may go out of his way to remind you of his authority. But if you always remember that you can do nothing about it but adapt yourself and make the most of it, you easily can reserve your inner pride and self-respect while still proving obedient. Remember it is the institution you are obeying and honoring rather than the person.

Born Bosses

It might help you as it helped me, to observe at times how very funny some people bossing us around can be. See that you are different when you become an officer!

Once you get the hang of things and learn the alphabet of drill and military courtesy and custom, it will grow easier and easier. Then you will have abundant time to dream pleasant daydreams.

Whether in the army or navy, you will have good opportunity to read and study, to imprive your education. Doing so and learning well the skills of being a good soldier or sailor your chances for promotion will be good. Many a youth has worked himself up from the ranks and become a high grade officer. A certain colonel I know and admire in the U. S. marines, I knew when he was in high school. Only an average student there, he kept plodding day after day, week after week, month after month at correspondence courses available to him, rising through his own persistent application.

Write Home Regularly

Write home regularly. Aesolve not to gamble but to save your money and to spend it wisely. Stick to the good habits and ideals you learned from your father and mother. Hold to your religion. Through them you can win a vast deal of satisfaction. In the army or navy you will meet many men of fine character. Cultivate their friendship. Keep striving and climbing my young friend, and good luck.

One Lane of New Road May Be Open By November 15

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 25 (AP)—One lane of the new Philadelphia road from Havre De Grace to the Delaware state line may be open for traffic by Nov. 15.

Work on the 24-foot wide lane is being pushed forward rapidly. The estimate of completion by mid-November, given good weather, was made by Wilson T. Ballard, chief engineer of the State Roads Commission.

About nineteen miles of road are being built in the relocation, which provides a straighter route than the old road. Completion of one link will give a speedy route from the Delaware line into Baltimore.

No one knows who invented the parachute, but it was first used in 1783 by Sebastian Lenormand, who sought to rescue persons from burning buildings with the device.

Ross Smith Dies

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25 (AP)—Ross W. Smith, former export manager of Willys Overland Company, Toledo, died here today.

He formerly was traffic manager for the American Sewer Pipe Company, Akron, and the Columbia Chemical Company, Barberton, and former freight claim agent of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad at Pittsburgh. He had been a special traffic representative here for the last twelve years.

Art For Little Arthur's Sake Educates Adults at 'Frisco Fair

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer

SAN FRANCISCO—If your children show an early talent for drawing, let them go to it, but pay particular attention when they're 11 or 12. That's the age when they show the greatest originality.

Such is the lesson drawn from a large-scale art project for boys and girls at the San Francisco World's Fair.

While Diego Rivera and other artists demonstrate "art in action" in a pretentious exhibition, the children frequently are playing to larger crowds. The Federal building has given them a wall measuring 8 by 60 feet on which to paint a mural.

They Don't Mind Crowd

Youngsters from 6 to 14 have had a hand in it. Any child can walk in without formality and is given paints, brushes, easel and paper. The WPA artists in charge keep out of the way as much as possible, with the result that each child's contribution—both original sketch and final painting on the wall—is free and untrammeled.

Many of the young painters are from San Francisco's Chinatown. Miss Vivian Swelander, supervisor, notes they usually work in pairs or in groups. All the young artists seem oblivious to the crowds that watch them.

They Turn Conservative

One child only two years old has made an acceptable contribution.

Robert Berglund, 11, is at work on a Spanish galleon, part of a children's mural at the San Francisco World's Fair.

and persons in their twenties have insisted they were children and have taken a hand.

Only distressing feature is that when a child starts on the wall itself he gets conservative, and tones down the color and freedom of his original design.

Rose Blumberg, accused in eleven indictments containing a total of fifty counts; Mrs. Sophie Kaplan, Mrs. Minnie Stambler, Paul J. Jarvis, Benjamin Davis and Richard D. Broune.

The indictments charged affidavits accompanying the petitions, stating that the defendants had personally known such signers to be voters and had seen them sign, were falsely and corruptly made.

Dr. Albert Blumberg, Maryland Communist party secretary and husband of Mrs. Blumberg, has filed suit in Annapolis to enjoin the secretary of state from refusing to certify the names of the Communist candidates.

Chemical Company Plant Damaged

CLAIRTON, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP) — Two buildings at the Pennsylvania industrial chemical corporation's plant — which processes solvents for some companies working on national defense orders—were blasted into a mass of debris today by a thunderous explosion of oils and resins.

The blast jammed this Monongahela river city of 16,000 population—home of two U. S. Steel Corporation plants—and was heard two miles away.

Although fifteen men normally work in the agitating department building where the blast occurred, none was in the corrugated steel and brick structure at the time.

Flaming tar and chemicals, hurled from the building with a mass of brick, steel and other debris, slightly burned a half-dozen workmen in other sections of the plant. Four escaped unharmed from an office and laboratory building, ripped apart by the blast.

Ickes Authorizes Longer Coal Contracts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP) — Secretary Ickes authorized soft coal producers today to make sales contracts for twelve months or longer instead of limiting negotiations to successive thirty day periods as heretofore.

He said the bituminous coal division would put this ruling into effect on November 15.

Repeal of the thirty-day clause, Ickes added, was the only important change he would make in the schedule of minimum mine prices and marketing rules and regulations which will become permanently effective October 1.

For Cocktail

Try this appetizing new cocktail accompaniment: Mix one-half cup mashed sardines, one-fourth cup white cream cheese, one teaspoon lemon juice, one-fourth teaspoon each of minced chives, parsley and celery. Spread on buttered crackers and toast until brown. Serve hot.

New Magnetized Dolls May Pick Up a Fortune

A doll that will hold things is held by its inventor, Mrs. Walter Crawford.

Mrs. Walter C. Crawford watched a 5-year-old girl struggling to make her doll hold a parasol.

"Here, Dolly, take it in your hand," the child coaxed. But Dolly wouldn't mind.

That night, Mrs. Crawford, a New York radio script writer made idle by illness had an idea.

Why not put magnets in the doll's hands so it could pick things up?

She developed her idea, patented it, now collects 5 per cent royalties on every magnetized doll sold.

Her friends say, "Why didn't I think of that?"

The dolls will sell for from $3 to $15 apiece between now and Christmas, and after that for a little less.

The manufacturers predict that sales will run to 200 a day beginning in November.

So figure it up for yourself. Mrs. Crawford's little idea was well worth thinking of.

Of course it wasn't quite so simple as it sounds. Mrs. Crawford worked for a year to produce a model a manufacturer would buy.

"They weren't a bit interested at first," she says. "And I had to get the right kind of magnet—the new permanent kind that won't wear out in a month or so.

"Then I made up a lot of miniature toys for the doll to hold: A ball with a thumb teck stuck into it, a little suitcase with a metal handle, an American flag on a metal stick.

"Any little toy would do, just so it had metal on it somewhere."

Garrett County To Get 31 Miles Of Power Lines

Public Service Commission Approves Somerset Co-Op Plans

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today granted permission to the Somerset Rural Electrification Co-operative, Inc., Somerset, Pa., to build about 31 miles of power lines in Garrett county, Md.

The co-operative has applications from 92 persons in the Selbysport-Friendsville-Frearer area who "are totally unserved" by any power company, Harvey S. Jennings, Co-operative superintendent, testified at a public hearing.

Two proposed extensions off main lines of the project were eliminated after protest by the Potomac Edison Company of Grantsville, Md., and promises by the Potomac that it would serve the applicants in the area, Budd B. Boose, attorney for the co-operative, said.

Gets $163,000 Loan

The Co-operative has obtained a loan of $163,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration to extend its lines in Somerset county, Pa., and in Garrett, and "is ready to start construction as soon as permission is granted," Jennings said.

The main line in Garrett county would start at the State line near Mill Run, coming down through Niles Mill and Mineral Spring to the Youghioheny river to a point near Friendsville, and then on to Frearer.

The southern line would run seven miles south from Frearer in to the Sang Run district, and the northern branch north from Frearer to the Pennsylvania State line. Short extensions would be built from these principal lines.

Spanish - American War Vet Is Held In 43-Year-Old Slaying of Friend

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 25—A 43-year-old slaying arose today to confront a 66-year-old Spanish-American War veteran who admitted, said Prosecutor Lafe B. Shafin, that he killed a friend in Mingo county in 1897.

George Estep was brought back from Prenter, Floyd county, Kentucky, where he had lived forty years as "Milton Pickles", to answer the charge that he fatally wounded Green "Bock" Brewster in the long-ago quarrel.

Chafin said that after deputy sheriffs arrested Estep at his home yesterday, Estep readily agreed to accompany the West Virginia officers here. The case will be presented to the Mingo county grand jury on October 7, said the prosecutor.

A letter from one of Estep's Kentucky neighbors revived the long-forgotten killing. Chafin started digging in the files and discovered a record of the Brewster slaying, which occurred just two years after Mingo became a West Virginia county.

The neighbor apparently had had some trouble with Estep recently and wrote to Chafin that Estep told him he once killed a man here.

Estep fled after the shooting, Chafin said, and enlisted as a soldier in the Spanish-American War as Milton Pickles. He subsequently married a Kentucky woman and became the father of thirteen children. He had lived in Floyd county since being mustered out of service.

When Estep fled he left behind a wife and a child who never knew what became of him, Chafin said.

Keyser Miner Surprises Ohio Representative With Eight Tons of Coal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Rep. Robert Secrest (D-Ohio) remarked to coal miner friends in Keyser, W. Va., recently that he would gladly pay $7 a ton for a load of coal delivered to his Washington residence.

He didn't know they had taken him seriously until he arrived here a few days later and found eight tons of fuel piled in his basement.

One of the miners with a truck, he said, made the 125-mile delivery.

School Board Member, under Fire, Seeks To Recall His Resignation

WESTON, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—An effort to recall his resignation as member of the Lewis county school board was made today by Ellis L. Smith, Weston insurance agent who resigned after Prosecutor James H. Brewster threatened impeachment action.

Sheriff Robert Blair said Smith had asked return of the resignation, although County School Superintendent Robert Crawford said he had not yet done so.

Brewster announced yesterday Smith had resigned and signed a statement that he received commissions from an insurance company for selling school bus and truck insurance to the county board.

Later the insurance agene posted bond of $1,000 for grand jury action on a charge of malfeasance preferred by the prosecutor.

Action on the resignation can not be taken until the school board meets. One member is ill and another out of town, preventing a quorum, and for that reason Smith's counsel advised recall of the resignation.

Brewster said impeachment proceedings would be started if the resignation was formally recalled.

Republican Candidates Make Bid For Farm Vote at Petersburg

Nearly 1,200 Hear Dawson and Sweeney Rap Democrats in Talks

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 25—Republican big guns opened an invasion of the frontal South Branch valley last night as Daniel Boone Dawson, of Charleston, Republican candidate for governor, and Tom Sweeney, of Wheeling, GOP nominee for U. S. Senate, addressed an overflow audience at the Petersburg grade school auditorium.

Judge Summers H. Sharp, of Marlinton, Republican candidate for Congress from the Second district, joined the two candidates here and will continue on the campaign tour for the remainder of the week which will take the entourage into the Eastern Panhandle.

Last night's meeting was presided over by Arch J. Welton, editor of The Grant County Press and wheelhorse of traditionally Republican Grant county. Officials of the meeting estimated the audience at nearly 1,200 persons, with the auditorium packed and hundreds listening from amplifiers installed on the school grounds.

Appeal to Farmers

Speaking to an audience made up of farmers and those who derive their livelihood from the farm in this section, both Sweeney and Dawson emphasized points in the agricultural planks of their respective programs.

Dawson, young mayor of Charleston, pointed to the pre-primary plank of his platform to "take the farmer out of the mud" and declared "I am convinced that with the millions being spent in this state for various and sundry items, including the setting up and perfection of political machines, that a just share to improve the secondary and farm-to-market roads would not be out of order.

"It is the trade routes of West Virginia, the secondary and the creek and hollow roads, that bring the farmer close to the city to sell his wares and bring the city dweller close to the farmer that he may buy the farm products necessary for him to live".

The Charleston chief executive said that although he was mayor of West Virginia's capital city and had more recently been identified with city and municipalities that he is by no means a stranger to farming.

Raps Government Interference

"I was born and reared on a little farm in the northwest corner of Kanawha county" said the GOP candidate, "and until I went to Charleston to attend high school, the regular chores of a boy on the farm were a part of my daily life."

Dawson rapped governmental interference and regulation of agriculture and said that the West Virginia farmers demand the right to be boss of their own farm hands.

"You are in the farming business," Dawson concluded, "and if I am elected governor, being governor will be my business."

State Senator Sweeney, 36-year-old candidate for U. S. Senate, startled his audience by challenging any one to bring him a can of American corned beef and offered ten dollars to the first person in Grant county that would bring it to him.

Sweeney's surprise offer came as he was attacking the Hull reciprocal trade pact and the harmful effects on American farmers.

"Today," Sweeney declared, "each and every one of us is paying an extra tax for defense. Shortly, they are going to draft more men into the army and navy. Only last year, President Roosevelt placed a larger order for beef with Argentina to feed our own U. S. navy and army.

"Thus, with more draft, he will have to buy more beef, and with buying more beef will come more taxes."

"Now," shouted Sweeney, "where are Americans going to get more money to pay the taxes if the beef is bought in Argentina, when right here in your own valley you raise the finest beef in the world."

Import Figures Quoted

"Let me quote a few figures," said the Senate nominee. "In the year 1934, the year in which reciprocal trade treaties went into effect, approximately sixty-five million pounds of meat were imported. By 1939, the amount had risen to 150,000,000 pounds, while during the same period our exports in meat had been reduced twenty-three per cent.

"Farm prices, which were to be raised by this policy, dropped, of course, until the outbreak of the war. To refer to but one instance it can be pointed out that the price of wheat dropped between 1933 and 1935 from seventy-four cents a bushel to fifty-four cents, and during the same year, the expenditures of the Department of Agriculture rose from seventy-nine million to one billion, six hundred and seven million dollars," Sweeney concluded.

Sweeney will address a rally at Moorefield, Hardy county, tonight. Both he and Dawson and Judge Sharp will be in Martinsburg Thursday evening for a three-county Republican rally.

Garrett County To Get 31 Miles Of Power Lines

Public Service Commission Approves Somerset Co-Op Plans

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Public Service Commission today granted permission to the Somerset Rural Electrification Co-operative, Inc., Somerset, Pa., to build about 31 miles of power lines in Garrett county, Md.

The co-operative has applications from 92 persons in the Selbysport-Friendsville-Frearer area who "are totally unserved" by any power company, Harvey S. Jennings, Co-operative superintendent, testified at a public hearing.

Two proposed extensions off main lines of the project were eliminated after protest by the Potomac Edison Company of Grantsville, Md., and promises by the Potomac that it would serve the applicants in the area, Budd B. Boose, attorney for the co-operative, said.

Gets $163,000 Loan

The Co-operative has obtained a loan of $163,000 from the Rural Electrification Administration to extend its lines in Somerset county, Pa., and in Garrett, and "is ready to start construction as soon as permission is granted," Jennings said.

The main line in Garrett county would start at the State line near Mill Run, coming down through Niles Mill and Mineral Spring to the Youghiogheny river to a point near Friendsville, and then on to Frearer.

The southern line would run seven miles south from Frearer in to the Sang Run district, and the northern branch north from Frearer to the Pennsylvania State line. Short extensions would be built from these principal lines.

Spanish - American War Vet Is Held In 43-Year-Old Slaying of Friend

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 25—A 43-year-old slaying arose today to confront a 66-year-old Spanish-American War veteran who admitted, said Prosecutor Lafe B. Shafin, that he killed a friend in Mingo county in 1897.

George Estep was brought back from Prenter, Floyd county, Kentucky, where he had lived forty years as "Milton Pickles", to answer the charge that he fatally wounded Green "Bock" Brewster in the long-ago quarrel.

Chafin said that after deputy sheriffs arrested Estep at his home yesterday, Estep readily agreed to accompany the West Virginia officers here. The case will be presented to the Mingo county grand jury on October 7, said the prosecutor.

A letter from one of Estep's Kentucky neighbors revived the long-forgotten killing. Chafin started digging in the files and discovered a record of the Brewster slaying, which occurred just two years after Mingo became a West Virginia county.

The neighbor apparently had had some trouble with Estep recently and wrote to Chafin that Estep told him he once killed a man here.

Estep fled after the shooting, Chafin said, and enlisted as a soldier in the Spanish-American War as Milton Pickles. He subsequently married a Kentucky woman and became the father of thirteen children. He had lived in Floyd county since being mustered out of service.

When Estep fled he left behind a wife and a child who never knew what became of him, Chafin said.

Keyser Miner Surprises Ohio Representative With Eight Tons of Coal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Rep. Robert Secrest (D-Ohio) remarked to coal miner friends in Keyser, W. Va., recently that he would gladly pay $7 a ton for a load of coal delivered to his Washington residence.

He didn't know they had taken him seriously until he arrived here a few days later and found eight tons of fuel piled in his basement.

One of the miners with a truck, he said, made the 125-mile delivery.

School Board Member, under Fire, Seeks To Recall His Resignation

WESTON, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—An effort to recall his resignation as member of the Lewis county school board was made today by Ellis L. Smith, Weston insurance agent who resigned after Prosecutor James H. Brewster threatened impeachment action.

Sheriff Robert Blair said Smith had asked return of the resignation, although County School Superintendent Robert Crawford said he had not yet done so.

Brewster announced yesterday Smith had resigned and signed a statement that he received commissions from an insurance company for selling school bus and truck insurance to the county board.

Later the insurance agene posted bond of $1,000 for grand jury action on a charge of malfeasance preferred by the prosecutor.

Action on the resignation can not be taken until the school board meets. One member is ill and another out of town, preventing a quorum, and for that reason Smith's counsel advised recall of the resignation.

Brewster said impeachment proceedings would be started if the resignation was formally recalled.

Nearly 1,200 Hear Dawson and Sweeney Rap Democrats in Talks

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 25—Republican big guns opened an invasion of the frontal South Branch valley last night as Daniel Boone Dawson, of Charleston, Republican candidate for governor, and Tom Sweeney, of Wheeling GOP nominee for U. S. Senate, addressed an overflow audience at the Petersburg grade school auditorium.

Judge Summers H. Sharp, of Marlinton, Republican candidate for Congress from the Second district, joined the two candidates here and will continue on the campaign tour for the remainder of the week which will take the entourage into the Eastern Panhandle.

Last night's meeting was presided over by Arch J. Welton, editor of The Grant County Press and wheelhorse of traditionally Republican Grant county. Officials of the meeting estimated the audience at nearly 1,200 persons, with the auditorium packed and hundreds listening from amplifiers installed on the school grounds.

Appeal to Farmers

Speaking to an audience made up of farmers and those who derive their livelihood from the farm in this section, both Sweeney and Dawson emphasized points in the agricultural planks of their respective programs.

Dawson, young mayor of Charleston, pointed to the pre-primary plank of his platform to "take the farmer out of the mud" and declared "I am convinced that with the millions being spent in this state for various and sundry items, including the setting up and perfection of political machines, that a just share to improve the secondary and farm-to-market roads would not be out of order.

"It is the trade routes of West Virginia, the secondary and the creek and hollow roads, that bring the farmer close to the city to sell his wares and bring the city dweller close to the farmer that he may buy the farm products necessary for him to live".

The Charleston chief executive said that although he was mayor of West Virginia's capital city and had more recently been identified with city and municipalities that he is by no means a stranger to farming.

Raps Government Interference

"I was born and reared on a little farm in the northwest corner of Kanawha county" said the GOP candidate, "and until I went to Charleston to attend high school, the regular chores of a boy on the farm were a part of my daily life."

Dawson rapped governmental interference and regulation of agriculture and said that the West Virginia farmers demand the right to be boss of their own farm hands.

"You are in the farming business," Dawson concluded, "and if I am elected governor, being governor will be my business."

State Senator Sweeney, 36-year-old candidate for U. S. Senate, startled his audience by challenging any one to bring him a can of American corned beef and offered ten dollars to the first person in Grant county that would bring it to him.

Sweeney's surprise offer came as he was attacking the Hull reciprocal trade pact and the harmful effects on American farmers.

"Today," Sweeney declared, "each and every one of us is paying an extra tax for defense. Shortly, they are going to draft more men into the army and navy. Only last year, President Roosevelt placed a larger order for beef with Argentina to feed our own U. S. navy and army.

"Thus, with more draft, he will have to buy more beef, and with buying more beef will come more taxes."

Import Figures Quoted

"Let me quote a few figures," said the Senate nominee. "In the year 1934, the year in which reciprocal trade treaties went into effect, approximately sixty-five million pounds of meat were imported. By 1939, the amount had risen to 150,000,000 pounds, while during the same period our exports in meat had been reduced twenty-three per cent.

"Farm prices, which were to be raised by this policy, dropped, of course, until the outbreak of the war. To refer to but one instance it can be pointed out that the price of wheat dropped between 1933 and 1935 from seventy-four cents a bushel to fifty-four cents, and during the same year, the expenditures of the Department of Agriculture rose from seventy-nine million to one billion, six hundred and seven million dollars," Sweeney concluded.

Sweeney will address a rally at Moorefield, Hardy county, tonight. Both he and Dawson and Judge Sharp will be in Martinsburg Thursday evening for a three-county Republican rally.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

W. Va. Is Hit by Equinoctial Storms; Small Boy Drowns in Swollen Creek

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—The first fall storm, which was indirectly responsible for the death of a small boy wore itself out tonight after a record rainfall, and clear and colder weather law ahead.

Heavy equinotical rains visited almost every section of the state overnight and in many sections did not end before noon.

Charleston's 3.5-inch rainfall was the heaviest ever recorded for a 24-hour period in September. From two to three inches of rainfall were reported from virtually every other area.

Communication lines, particularly in southern West Virginia, were disrupted for several hours.

Six-year-old Shirley Straley, on his way to school at Rock Cave, Upshur county, fell from a small footbridge and drowned in Flatwoods creek which was high and fast after the downpour.

His three small companions raised an alarm. The body was recovered three hours later by a party headed by Sheriff H. A. Zickefoose and County Superintendent R. Worth Shumaker.

High winds accompanied the 14-hour storm, and many basements and streets in Charleston were flooded for several hours.

Temperatures dropped rapidly to lows in the 40's, and frost was expected in exposed areas during the night.

Precipitation reports included 2.32 inches at Hinton, 2.1 at Huntington, 1.69 at Elkins, 2.03 at Fairmont, 2.01 at Clarksburg and 2.03 at Morgantown.

Because of a three-weeks dry spell the rains affected only smaller streams, and rivers in the state rose comparatively little.

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

W. Va. Is Hit by Equinoctial Storms; Small Boy Drowns in Swollen Creek

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—The first fall storm, which was indirectly responsible for the death of a small boy wore itself out tonight after a record rainfall, and clear and colder weather law ahead.

Heavy equinotical rains visited almost every section of the state overnight and in many sections did not end before noon.

Charleston's 3.5-inch rainfall was the heaviest ever recorded for a 24-hour period in September. From two to three inches of rainfall were reported from virtually every other area.

Communication lines, particularly in southern West Virginia were disrupted for several hours.

Six-year-old Shirley Straley, on his way to school at Rock Cave, Upshur county, fell from a small footbridge and drowned in Flatwoods creek which was high and fast after the downpour.

His three small companions raised an alarm. The body was recovered three hours later by a party headed by Sheriff H. A. Zickefoose and County Superintendent R. Worth Shumaker.

High winds accompanied the 14-hour storm, and many basements and streets in Charleston were flooded for several hours.

Temperatures dropped rapidly to lows in the 40's, and frost was expected in exposed areas during the night.

Precipitation reports included 2.32 inches at Hinton, 2.1 at Huntington, 1.69 at Elkins, 2.03 at Fairmont, 2.01 at Clarksburg and 2.03 at Morgantown.

Because of a three-weeks dry spell the rains affected only smaller streams, and rivers in the state rose comparatively little.

Ellerslie Church Fetes New Pastor

ELLERSLIE, Sept. 25 — St. Mark's Evangelical church held a reception last night for the Rev. J. W. Lloyd and family, who were recently assigned to the Ellerslie charge.

In connection with the reception a farewell party was also held for the Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Sprinkle, who have been transferred to the Mechanicsburg charge.

Visiting ministers were the Rev. and Mrs. T. W. Kemp, of the Methodist church and the Rev. and Mrs. G. R. Winters, of the Hyndman Reformed church.

The program included prayer by the Rev. Mr. Sprinkle, Scripture reading by Mrs. Alden Lowery and a special selection by the choir of the Wellersburg church. The address of welcome was given by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, and response by the Rev. Mr. Lloyd, the Rev. Mr. Winters presented several musical numbers. After the services, 225 persons were served refreshments.

The Young Ladies Class of the Methodist church, taught by Mrs. Clarence Burkett, met at her home Monday evening to plan for a "hay ride" to raise money to help pay for windows in the church. After the business meeting, a social was held and refreshments served.

Detroit Takes Two Games from White Sox

Take Two Game Advantage over Cleveland Club

Bucky Newsom Wins Both Games as Tigers Get Firm Grip on Flag

By DALE STAFFORD

DETROIT, Sept. 25 (AP) — The courageous Detroit Tigers, with Louis (Buck) Newsom man of the hour, fought to a pair of victories over the Chicago White Sox today and gained a full two-game strangle-hold advantage over the Cleveland Indians in the American League race.

The Tigers took the opener, 10 to 9 in ten innings, and the second game, 3 to 2, and Newsom, their 32-year-old right-hander, performed an iron man feat by scoring both victories.

Newsom gained the 20-victory mark for the third successive season in the first game after two innings of valiant relief duty. He went the full distance in the second contest for his twenty-first victory, more wins than he has ever before scored in his long and colorful Major League career.

Need One Victory

The Tigers, who conclude their season with the Indians in single games at Cleveland Friday, Saturday and Sunday, need win only one of them to beat out the Tribesmen.

Today's battles, played in chilling weather before 21,566 fans, were contrasting affairs.

In the opener free hitting and loose fielding was the order with the White Sox staging a six-run uprising in the fifth inning that put the Tigers in desperate circumstances.

The Sox outhit Detroit, 17 to 16, and each team committed three misplays in a wild engagement which finally ended when Rudy York lined a hit over Larry Rosenthal's head in left field to score Barney McCosky.

The Tigers used four pitchers—Tommy Bridges, Alton Benton, Paul Trout and Newsom — before achieving victory. Newsom pitched the last two innings, blanking the Sox.

Thornton Lee, veteran lefthander, started for Chicago but was driven to shelter in the seventh after allowing ten hits. Clint Brown finished and was charged with the defeat.

Fine Pitching Due

The second game was a pitching masterpiece between Johnny Rigney and Newsom, with the Tigers trailing until the seventh inning when Hank Greenberg's forty-first homer of the year tied the score at 2-all.

In the eighth York again batted home the deciding run with a long fly to centerfield, again sending McCosky across the plate. McCosky and Charley Gehringer had singled and Greenberg had been given his third intentional pass before York hit the fly ball.

The Sox got their only runs of the game in the second inning when Luke Appling tripled and Larry Rosenthal homered.

Newsom, pitching cautiously in the gathering gloom, allowed eight hits as compared to the five that Rigney gave Detroit.

Siko Will Captain Mountaineers Saturday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—Joe Siko, senior left end from Carmichaels, Penna., will captain West Virginia's Mountaineers for their season's football opener with Westminster here Saturday. He was named tonight by Bill Kern, head coach of the Mountaineers.

Kern said a new captain would be named for each game. With an honorary captain to be selected at the close of the season.

The Mountaineers today were put through another scrimmage with the Freshmen. The plunging of fullback John Carliss and the hard running of halfback Don McCann were highlights of the drill.

Kern used a first team made up of Siko and John Shonk at ends, John Morris and Walt Pike at tackles, John Rockis and Joe Butta at guards, Sam Manduch at center, and Charley Seabright, Ike Martin, McCann, and Carliss in the backfield.

The Mountaineers will taper off tomorrow and Friday.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—The younger generation may think it is seeing the ultimate in tight baseball pennant races as the American League teams come down the stretch closer than your first, but it had better not talk too loud when pappy is around.

Pappy might bring up that 1904 American League race, for instance, when a wild pitch with two out and two strikes on the batter in the ninth inning on the last day of the season cost New York, then known as the Highlanders, a chance to win the flag.

Or he might casually mention the year 1908, when the American League race again was decided on the final day, and the National race not even then.

x x x x

In 1904 Boston, known as the Puritans, and New York came down to the final day with Boston leading the Highlanders by eight perceitage points, and the two teams scheduled for a double header.

The biggest week-day crowd ever assembled in New York, "28,584 of the red-hottest, riproaringest rooters to be found in the length and breadth of the nation," in the words of a thrilled scribe, packed the stands and surged across right field to center field, to watch the epic struggles.

The Highlanders could have won the pennant by taking both games, but with the score tied 2-all in the ninth inning of the first game Jack Chesbro, Highlander pitcher, uncorked his wild pitch to allow the winning run to score. It mattered not that New York took the nightcap, 1-0, for the final standings read:

	W.	L.	Pct
Boston	95	59	.617
New York	92	59	.609

x x x x

The 1908 races in both leagues were still closer in that three teams were involved in each circuit.

The National League drive was complicated by the famous Fred Merkle incident. In a game between the Cubs and Giants Sept. 23 Merkle ran for the clubhouse instead of second as what appeared to be the winning Giant run was scored. The alert Johnny Evers, Cub second baseman, grabbed the ball and touched second for a force-out. After much wrangling the game was ruled a tie, and a playoff ordered.

The Cubs ended their season in the lead my defeating Pittsburgh in the final game, but the Giants had three more games with Boston to play, and had to win them all to tie the Cubs.

They did, and on Oct. 8 the tie game was played off, the Cubs winning and leaving the final standings:

	W.	L.	Pct
Chicago	99	55	.643
Pittsburgh	98	56	.636
New York	98	56	.636

x x x x

Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago came down the American League stretch that year like they were pulling a fire engine. Cleveland had to take its last three games from St. Louis to win, and the White Sox had to take three stranght from Detroit.

On Oct. 5 St. Louis beat Cleveland in the first half of a twin bill to put the Indians out of the race. The White Sox defeated Detroit in the first two games, leaving the issue up to the last day.

Detroit won, leaving the final standings:

	W.	L.	Pct
Detroit	90	63	.588
Cleveland	90	64	.584
Chicago	88	64	.579

Yes sir, better not argue with pappy about tight flag races.

Favorites Beaten In Golf Tourney

DEL MONTE, Calif., Sept. 25 (AP) — Favorites tumbled all over the Pebble Beach course in second and third rounds of the forty-fourth annual National Amateur Women's Golf Championship today, only the defending titleholder running true to form.

Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., who won the crown last year and warmed up for the present tournament by capturing the Western title two weeks ago, failed to electrify the gallery with her brand of golf, but she won both her matches.

After defeating Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 1 up in the morning she eliminated Mrs. Mary Mozel Wagner of Portland, Ore., 5 and 4, in the third round.

While the Texas girl was struggling through two mediocre rounds, 12 strokes over par for the 32 holes she played, such favored stars as medalist Dorothy Traung of San Francisco; Peggy Graham of Hollywood; Nancy Hurst of Portland, Ore., Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, Tex.; Elizabeth Hicks of Long Beach, Calif., and Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., were bounced out of the running.

Rules Are Rules

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP) — Rules are rules, so only one of two holes-in-one scored by Joseph Duval of Philadelphia in the American Transit Association's convention golf tournament was counted.

Duval drove within four feet of the pin on the 120-yard second hole, and a ball driven by a member of the foursome knocked Duval's into the cup. But, officials ruled "no go."

Duval scored the "legitimate" a bit later on the 174-yard 14th. It was the bus equipment manufacturers first ace in twelve years of golfing.

Cincinnati Infield Is Rated Better Than Either Detroit or Cleveland

Strength of National League Champions Is Their Strong Defense

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP) — The strength of the Cincinnati Reds is in their defense, and the strongest and most vital phase of their defense is their infield.

If the Reds rate an edge anywhere over their prospective World Series rivals, Detroit or Cleveland, it is on this unspectacular but well balanced inner cordon.

Cincinnati's pitchers are no strikeout specialists, or fast ballers whose offerings are expected to be pulled down by the outfield. With one or two exceptions, the Red's hurlers are "downers" who throw low balls that the batter is expected to knock into the dirt.

It is not uncommon for the Cincinnati outfield to go through a game with only five or six fielding chances, and when Paul Derringer or Bucky Walters is pitching, the outer gardeners might as well take the day off.

Reds Infield Strong

This shows the importance of the infield in Bill McKechnie's scheme of life. The fact that the Reds have won two straight National League pennants proves how successful it has been.

Except for first baseman Frank McCormick, they aren't impressive hitters and not only are batting lower than their series rivals for the most part, but also below their own marks of last year. Yet the quartet of McCormick, Lonnie Frey, Billy Myers and Bill Werber has been the most consistent combination in baseball this year.

McCormick's hitting is overshadowed by the booming blasts of Detroit's Rudy York and Cleveland's Hal Trosky, but he is batting at a .316 clip while York is only .319 and Trosky, .302.

McCormick has batted in 123 runs, York 126 and Trosky, with less chances at bat than the others, 93. McCormick's fielding, in results more than averages, is incomparably better than the other two.

Werber Stars At Third

At the other corner Cincinnati probably has the outstanding third baseman of the season in Bill Werber, an American League veteran picked up in 1939 from the Philadelphia Athletics.

His hitting, .276, is higher than the .273 average of Pinky Higgins of Detroit or the .255 of Cleveland's Ken Keltner and he is fielding better than both. He is the ideal leadoff man, getting on base almost as often without a hit as with one. He has scored 103 times, a third more often than his rivals, and has batted in forty-nine tallies.

If Cincinnati was as well fortified through the middle as on the corners McKechnie's worries would be less. Myers, Cincinnati's captain and shortstop, is below his par, batting .215 instead of last year's .281 and not covering as much ground.

Lou Boudreau of the Indians is definitely superior and very close to being the best rookie of the year. He has been a .300 hitter right along, although he slipped to .299 just before today's game, and has batted in ninety-nine runs. Dick Bartell of Detroit has lost some of his fire, most of his speed and none of his smartness. Batting .233 he too has an edge over Myers.

Frey Good Fielder

Frey at second base for the Reds will never be a Charley Gehringer and he isn't batting as well as Ray Mack of Cleveland, but he is having one of his best years in the field. Gehringer is batting .315 now and has been higher. Mack is .286 and Frey .260.

Boudreau and Mack also have quite a reputation for double plays, but the cold figures show Cincinnati has made 152, only two less than the Indians.

There is one other advantage Cincinnati has in the infield and that is reserve strength. The Red's defense is even stronger with Eddie Joost at short or second and he has a faculty for hitting over a short stretch.

Tri-County Title Series To Resume

The executive committee of the Tri-County Baseball League has announced that the best-of-three title series between the Cumberland Old Germans and Rainsburg (Pa.) Red Sox would be resumed Sunday on the Bedford (Pa.) Fairgrounds field at 2:30.

There was some doubt whether the playoff would be resumed after the Sox displayed unsportsmanslike tactics in walking off the field in the eighth inning of the series opener last Sunday at North End in protest to the officiating, but the committee's ruling provided for the same umpires Sunday. If Rainsburg refuses to play under these league-appointed arbiters, the championship will be awarded the Old Germans

Shepherd-Fairmont Game To Be Played At Charles Town

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va. Sept. 25 (AP) — Dr. W. H. S. White, president of Shepherd college, said today the college's home-coming football game with Fairmont Teacher's college will be played Saturday, October 19, at the Charles Town high school athletic field instead of at Shepherdstown as originally planned.

Shepherd college's Fairfaix field is undergoing repairs and will not be available during the season.

Potomac News Tops Smith Grocers 4-1

With Herb Dawson twirling two-hit ball, Potomac News tossers continued their drive toward the last half pennant of the East Side Softball League by defeating the Smith Grocers this week 4-1.

Starring at bat for the Newsmen were Angellatta with a pair of triples and C. Fisher with two blows. Fahey worked on the peak for the Grocers. The score:

University of Maryland Eleven Hit by Injuries

COLLEGE PARK, Sept. 25 (AP) — A lengthening injury list brought long faces today to University of Maryland football coaches trying to name a starting team for the opener the game here Saturday against Hampden-Sydney.

Leo Mueller, regular end, was injured in yesterday's scrimmage with Catholic university, and the coaches said today he would be unable to start Saturday. Dick Shaffer, the other regular Wingman, also is shelved with a cracked rib.

Mearle Duvall and Jack Gilmore, a sophomore, who were leading in the race for the halfback positions, are both hurt, and the latter appears definitely out. George Glenger, regular guard, has a bruised side and may not play.

Jack Mueller will replace Shaffer and Larry MacKenzie probably will be at the other end. Jimmy Dunn, a junior, is slated for one halfback post, and if Duvall is unable to start, Bernie Ulman will get the call.

While the line positions still are being debated, one assignment was assured. Frank Heyer, 184-pounder and the lightest guard on the squad will be at one of these positions. His blocking has won the coaches' recognition during recent drills.

Detroit Takes Two Games from White Sox

Take Two Game Advantage over Cleveland Club

By DALE STAFFORD

DETROIT, Sept. 25 (AP) — The courageous Detroit Tigers, with Louis (Buck) Newsom man of the hour, fought to a pair of victories over the Chicago White Sox today and gained a full two-game strangle-hold advantage over the Cleveland Indians in the American League race.

The Tigers took the opener, 10 to 9 in ten innings, and the second game, 3 to 2, and Newsom, their 32-year-old right-hander, performed an iron man feat by scoring both victories.

Newsom gained the 20-victory mark for the third successive season in the first game after two innings of valiant relief duty. He went the full distance in the second contest for his twenty-first victory, more wins than he has ever before scored in his long and colorful Major League career.

Need One Victory

The Tigers, who conclude their season with the Indians in single games at Cleveland Friday, Saturday and Sunday, need win only one of them to beat out the Tribesmen.

Today's battles, played in chilling weather before 21,566 fans, were contrasting affairs.

In the opener free hitting and loose fielding was the order with the White Sox staging a six-run uprising in the fifth inning that put the Tigers in desperate circumstances.

The Sox outhit Detroit, 17 to 16, and each team committed three misplays in a wild engagement which finally ended when Rudy York lined a hit over Larry Rosenthal's head in left field to score Barney McCosky.

The Tigers used four pitchers—Tommy Bridges, Alton Benton, Paul Trout and Newsom — before achieving victory. Newsom pitched the last two innings, blanking the Sox.

Thornton Lee, veteran lefthander, started for Chicago but was driven to shelter in the seventh after allowing ten hits. Clint Brown finished and was charged with the defeat.

Fine Pitching Due

The second game was a pitching masterpiece between Johnny Rigney and Newsom, with the Tigers trailing until the seventh inning when Hank Greenberg's forty-first homer of the year tied the score at 2-all.

In the eighth York again batted home the deciding run with a long fly to centerfield, again sending McCosky across the plate. McCosky and Charley Gehringer had singled and Greenberg had been given his third intentional pass before York hit the fly ball.

The Sox got their only runs of the game in the second inning when Luke Appling tripled and Larry Rosenthal homered.

Newsom, pitching cautiously in the gathering gloom, allowed eight hits as compared to the five that Rigney gave Detroit.

Siko Will Captain Mountaineers Saturday

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—Joe Siko, senior left end from Carmichaels, Penna., will captain West Virginia's Mountaineers for their season's football opener with Westminster here Saturday. He was named tonight by Bill Kern, head coach of the Mountaineers.

Kern said a new captain would be named for each game. With an honorary captain to be selected at the close of the season.

The Mountaineers today were put through another scrimmage with the Freshmen. The plunging of fullback John Carliss and the hard running of halfback Don McCann were highlights of the drill.

Kern used a first team made up of Siko and John Shonk at ends, John Morris and Walt Pike at tackles, John Rockis and Joe Butta at guards, Sam Manduch at center, and Charley Seabright, Ike Martin, McCann, and Carliss in the backfield.

The Mountaineers will taper off tomorrow and Friday.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—The younger generation may think it is seeing the ultimate in tight baseball pennant races as the American League teams come down the stretch closer than your first, but it had better not talk too loud when pappy is around.

Pappy might bring up that 1904 American League race, for instance, when a wild pitch with two out and two strikes on the batter in the ninth inning on the last day of the season cost New York, then known as the Highlanders, a chance to win the flag.

Or he might casually mention the year 1908, when the American League race again was decided on the final day, and the National race not even then.

x x x x

In 1904 Boston, known as the Puritans, and New York came down to the final day with Boston leading the Highlanders by eight percentage points, and the two teams scheduled for a double header.

The biggest week-day crowd ever assembled in New York, "28,584 of the red-hottest, riproaringest rooters to be found in the length and breadth of the nation," in the words of a thrilled scribe, packed the stands and surged across right field to center field, to watch the epic struggles.

The Highlanders could have won the pennant by taking both games, but with the score tied 2-all in the ninth inning of the first game Jack Chesbro, Highlander pitcher, uncorked his wild pitch to allow the winning run to score. It mattered not that New York took the nightcap, 1-0, for the final standings read:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Boston	95	59	.617
New York	92	59	.609

x x x x

The 1908 races in both leagues were still closer in that three teams were involved in each circuit.

The National League drive was complicated by the famous Fred Merkle incident. In a game between the Cubs and Giants Sept. 23 Merkle ran for the clubhouse instead of second as what appeared to be the winning Giant run was scored. The alert Johnny Evers, Cub second baseman, grabbed the ball and touched second for a force-out. After much wrangling the game was ruled a tie, and a playoff ordered.

The Cubs ended their season in the lead my defeating Pittsburgh in the final game, but the Giants had three more games with Boston to play, and had to win them all to tie the Cubs.

They did, and on Oct. 8 the tie game was played off, the Cubs winning and leaving the final standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chicago	99	55	.643
Pittsburgh	98	56	.636
New York	98	56	.636

x x x x

Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago came down the American League stretch that year like they were pulling a fire engine. Cleveland had to take its last three games from St. Louis to win, and the White Sox had to take three stranght from Detroit.

On Oct. 5 St. Louis beat Cleveland in the first half of a twin bill to put the Indians out of the race. The White Sox defeated Detroit in the first two games, leaving the issue up to the last day.

Detroit won, leaving the final standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Detroit	90	63	.588
Cleveland	90	64	.584
Chicago	88	64	.579

Favorites Beaten In Golf Tourney

DEL MONTE, Calif., Sept. 25 (AP) — Favorites tumbled all over the Pebble Beach course in second and third rounds of the forty-fourth annual National Amateur Women's Golf Championship today, only the defending titleholder running true to form.

Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., who won the crown last year and warmed up for the present tournament by capturing the Western title two weeks ago, failed to electrify the gallery with her brand of golf, but she won both her matches.

After defeating Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., 1 up in the morning she eliminated Mrs. Mary Mozel Wagner of Portland, Ore., 5 and 4, in the third round.

While the Texas girl was struggling through two mediocre rounds, 12 strokes over par for the 32 holes she played, such favored stars as medalist Dorothy Traung of San Francisco; Peggy Graham of Hollywood; Nancy Hurst of Portland, Ore., Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite of Fort Worth, Tex.; Elizabeth Hicks of Long Beach, Calif., and Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., were bounced out of the running.

Rules Are Rules

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP) — Rules are rules, so only one of two holes-in-one scored by Joseph Duval of Philadelphia in the American Transit Association's convention golf tournament was counted.

Duval drove within four feet of the pin on the 120-yard second hole, and a ball driven by a member of the foursome knocked Duval's into the cup. But, officials ruled "no go."

Duval scored the "legitimate" a bit later on the 174-yard 14th. It was the bus equipment manufacturers first ace in twelve years of golfing.

Strength of National League Champions Is Their Strong Defense

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP) — The strength of the Cincinnati Reds is in their defense, and the strongest and most vital phase of their defense is their infield.

If the Reds rate an edge anywhere over their prospective World Series rivals, Detroit or Cleveland, it is on this unspectacular but well balanced inner cordon.

Cincinnati's pitchers are no strikeout specialists, or fast ballers whose offerings are expected to be pulled down by the outfield. With one or two exceptions, the Red's hurlers are "downers" who throw low balls that the batter is expected to knock into the dirt.

It is not uncommon for the Cincinnati outfield to go through a game with only five or six fielding chances, and when Paul Derringer or Bucky Walters is pitching, the outer gardeners might as well take the day off.

Reds Infield Strong

This shows the importance of the infield in Bill McKechnie's scheme of life. The fact that the Reds have won two straight National League pennants proves how successful it has been.

Except for first baseman Frank McCormick, they aren't impressive hitters and not only are batting lower than their series rivals for the most part, but also below their own marks of last year. Yet the quartet of McCormick, Lonnie Frey, Billy Myers and Bill Werber has been the most consistent combination in baseball this year.

McCormick's hitting is overshadowed by the booming blasts of Detroit's Rudy York and Cleveland's Hal Trosky, but he is batting at a .316 clip while York is only .319 and Trosky, .302.

McCormick has batted in 123 runs, York 126 and Trosky, with less chances at bat than the others, 93. McCormick's fielding, in results more than averages, is incomparably better than the other two.

Werber Stars At Third

At the other corner Cincinnati probably has the outstanding third baseman of the season in Bill Werber, an American League veteran picked up in 1939 from the Philadelphia Athletics.

His hitting, .276, is higher than the .273 average of Pinky Higgins of Detroit or the .255 of Cleveland's Ken Keltner and he is fielding better than both. He is the ideal leadoff man, getting on base almost as often without a hit as with one. He has scored 103 times, a third more often than his rivals, and has batted in forty-nine tallies.

If Cincinnati was as well fortified through the middle as on the corners McKechnie's worries would be less. Myers, Cincinnati's captain and shortstop, is below his par, batting .215 instead of last year's .281 and not covering as much ground.

Lou Boudreau of the Indians is definitely superior and very close to being the best rookie of the year. He has been a .300 hitter right along, although he slipped to .299 just before today's game, and has batted in ninety-nine runs. Dick Bartell of Detroit has lost some of his fire, most of his speed and none of his smartness. Batting .233 he too has an edge over Myers.

Frey Good Fielder

Frey at second base for the Reds will never be a Charley Gehringer and he isn't batting as well as Ray Mack of Cleveland, but he is having one of his best years in the field. Gehringer is batting .315 now and has been higher. Mack is .286 and Frey .260.

Boudreau and Mack also have quite a reputation for double plays, but the cold figures show Cincinnati has made 152, only two less than the Indians.

There is one other advantage Cincinnati has in the infield and that is reserve strength. The Red's defense is even stronger with Eddie Joost at short or second and he has a faculty for hitting over a short stretch.

Tri-County Title Series To Resume

The executive committee of the Tri-County Baseball League has announced that the best-of-three title series between the Cumberland Old Germans and Rainsburg (Pa.) Red Sox would be resumed Sunday on the Bedford (Pa.) Fairgrounds field at 2:30.

There was some doubt whether the playoff would be resumed after the Sox displayed unsportsmanslike tactics in walking off the field in the eighth inning of the series opener last Sunday at North End in protest to the officiating, but the committee's ruling provided for the same umpires Sunday. If Rainsburg refuses to play under these league-appointed arbiters, the championship will be awarded the Old Germans.

Shepherd-Fairmont Game To Be Played At Charles Town

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 25 (AP) — Dr. W. H. S. White, president of Shepherd college, said today the college's home-coming football game with Fairmont Teacher's college will be played Saturday, October 19, at the Charles Town high school athletic field instead of at Shepherdstown as originally planned.

Shepherd college's Fairfax field is undergoing repairs and will not be available during the season.

Potomac News Tops Smith Grocers 4-1

With Herb Dawson twirling two-hit ball, Potomac News tossers continued their drive toward the last half pennant of the East Side Softball League by defeating the Smith Grocers this week 4-1.

Starring at bat for the Newsmen were Angellatta with a pair of triples and C. Fisher with two blows. Fahey worked on the peak for the Grocers. The score:

University of Maryland Eleven Hit by Injuries

COLLEGE PARK, Sept. 25 (AP) — A lengthening injury list brought long faces today to University of Maryland football coaches trying to name a starting team for the opener here Saturday against Hampden-Sydney.

Leo Mueller, regular end, was injured in yesterday's scrimmage with Catholic university, and the coaches said today he would be unable to start Saturday. Dick Shaffer, the other regular Wingman, also is shelved with a cracked rib.

Mearle Duvall and Jack Gilmore, a sophomore, who were leading in the race for the halfback positions, are both hurt, and the latter appears definitely out. George Glenger, regular guard, has a bruised side and may not play.

Jack Mueller will replace Shaffer and Larry MacKenzie probably will be at the other end. Jimmy Dunn, a junior, is slated for one halfback post, and if Duvall is unable to start, Bernie Ulman will get the call.

While the line positions still are being debated, one assignment was assured. Frank Heyer, 184-pounder and the lightest guard on the squad will be at one of these positions. His blocking has won the coaches' recognition during recent drills.

Penn Eleven May Be the Surprise Team of Season

Munger Expects To Have Best Quaker Aggregation Since 1936

By TED MEIER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25 (AP)—Pennsylvania may be the nation's 1940 football surprise package.

Playing an all-major opponent schedule as a feature of the university's bicentennial observance, the Quakers must meet in succession Maryland, Yale, Princeton, Michigan, Navy, Harvard, Army and Cornell. Few of their followers expect more than five victories out of that array, but youthful Coach George Munger is quietly confident.

Munger, starting his third season, won't come right out and say the Red and Blue shapes up as the best Penn eleven since 1936, the last good season Penn enjoyed, but neither is he crying "wolf."

Excellent Spirit Prevails

The fact is that he has a big, strong squad that includes seventeen lettermen and twenty sophomores from last year's undefeated Freshman team. All who have seen the Quakers at their Hershey, Pa., training camp comment on the excellent morale and spirit.

Put all this together, and you have a start toward a successful season.

Munger has made several changes in the Quakers' play that are expected to strengthen the team. Most important, he has relieved triple threat Frankie Reagan of signal calling. Second, he has abandoned, temporarily at least, the huddle, and third, he plans to make more use of that punt as an offensive weapon.

Reagan, who has shown flashes of greatness in the past two years, should benefit by his release from signal-calling and the task of choosing the plays. An excellent punter, he will carry much of Munger's hope of using the punt offensively.

Johnny Dutcher Returns

The return of Johnny Dutcher, who was injured early in the 1939 season, is another reason for high Penn hopes. Like Reagan, Dutcher can run and pass. Eddie Allen, Jim Chandler, Herb Rainwater and Tony Chizmadia are other veteran backs. Sophomores Paxon Gifford, former Mercersburg Academy sprinter, and Bert Stiff give promise of seeing plenty of varsity action.

Captain Ray Frick, rated as one of the best centers in the East, is the bulwark of a formidable forward defense. Sophomore Bernie Kucynski, a rugged 190-pounder, apparently is ready to step into the end berth left vacant by graduation last year's Captain Harlan Gustafson. Munger has lettermen available for the other line positions in Len Warner, end, Cliff Engler and Walter Runte, tackles, and Irving Mendelson and Al Brechka, guards.

V.P.I. Practices For Marshall Game

BLACKSBURG, Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—A cold wind forced Virginia Tech's football coaches to call off a midweek scrimmage this afternoon but the Gobblers, despite the weather, lost no time in preparing for the tilt with Marshall college at Washington Saturday night.

Coach Henry Redd alternated two elevens in a fast offensive drill in which the gridmen showed lots of speed and spirit. Hard-charging linemen and backs punished the flocking dummies while ball carriers raced at top speed in a full review of Tech's offensive tactics.

The mentors also showed the Gobblers Marshall's attack formations and drilled them intensively on the defensive strategy to combat it.

Banquet of County League Postponed

The Allegany County Softball League banquet, scheduled this evening at the Clary Club, has been postponed according to loop officials and the committee in charge.

After a meeting Tuesday at the Clary Club, the following statement was issued: "Due to circumstances beyond our control and affecting many of our players, the banquet has been postponed until a more favorable date to be announced in the near future by the committee."

Birmingham Wins

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Sept. 25 (AP)—Birmingham, Ala., continued undefeated in the Amateur World Series of the American baseball Congress here today by handing Battle Creek its first setback, 7 to 4. The Dixie team meets South Bend, Ind., Friday. Battle Creek drew a bye until Saturday.

In other games today Holyoke, Mass., eliminated Detroit, 12 to 0; South Bend shaded Chicago, 2 to 1, and Charlotte, N. C., took a 13-inning thriller from Grant Town, W. Va., 9 to 8, leaving only five of the original entry of sixteen teams in the meet.

In the bitter Buckeye Show?
Who will throw the keenest spear
Where so many thousands cheer?

Who'll be hero? Who'll be hobo?

Reds on the Griddle

Cincinnati's Reds, far in front of all pennant chasers, are still on a griddle. By all odds the best club in the National League, they still have a five-year N. L. deficit to wipe out, using their bats and pitching arms largely for this purpose. The older league must look back ot the autumn spell of 1934 to locate a world series victory, and that is a lot of calendars in the book of time.

Last fall the Reds dropped four games in a row when with better defensive fielding the count should have stood at two and two. One scrambling outfield and one moth-eaten infield play turned the series into a rout.

But with Cleveland and Detroit still moving through the stretch to the wire, the Reds still have that rout to remember in behalf of their own league.

A N. L. Jolt

If the Reds get beaten again the next series will be a nightmare for the old league. It will mean that they by all odds the best team in the N. L. couldn't handle a club barely able to win in the American.

This puts the situation squarely up to Cincinnati's earnest young athletes, headed by one of baseball's star pitching groups—Derringer, Walters and Thompson.

The Reds have now had some weeks to think this over. Their American League rivals have been too harshly embroiled in their own circuit to think too much about a world series. The A. L. team that wins will consider itself on velvet after what has happened in the final stretch of the final week.

The Buckeye Turmoil

In the midst of this Buckeye turmoil the Reds will be smoking hot public favorites, no matter who wins in the other league.

Ohio will naturally be solidly against any invading Tigers from Michigan. And the Cleveland situation has sickened most of the old-fashioned and the new-fashioned baseball fans in that city and surrounding terrain.

I can't remember a team as unpopular among its own people as Cleveland is. The terrific blasting the team has taken all over the map has set a new record in the way of public scorn.

Whatever happens, the situation will demand a complete new deal in Cleveland, including ownership and through the front office.

Several months ago I entered a short notice to the effect that Cleveland had at least four bad actors on the club who would hardly help in winning any pennant. This was before the Vitt episode. I was only a third right in the way of bad actors. But they are still out shooting with a club that might have won easily if it hadn't suddenly decided to be baseball's outcast tribe.

In Cleveland

It would be no great surprise to see any number of Cleveland rooters using their hoarse huzzahs in favor of Detroit. I've talked with many of them lately and I know they are dead sore at the whole affair.

They may forget this in the interest of another world series after a twenty-year wait.

But if it happens to be Cleveland against the Reds you'll find the bulk of Ohio back of the Reds. They took a smashing last fall and came back stronger than ever. They proved at least to be dead game. And they'll move into this next series ready to give all they have in their clammy systems. It may not be enough, but there'll be no 1939 collapse.

Any ball club with Bill McKechnie at the helm—with Derringer, Walters and Thompson ready—isn't going to be any flock of butterflies waiting for the net. Your Uncle Will McKechnie is a pretty calm sort of a fellow who knows what it is all about.

A year ago he couldn't catch a fly ball that should have been an easy out—or handle a double play that should have been a high school pushover. These two plays cost two ball games.

But Bill has faith in his club, and the Reds have faith in Bill, just as the Tigers have in Del Baker who has turned out one of the best jobs of the year—one of the best jobs of many years.

Oscar Vitt has had no such support. He has been mouse-trapped all season by his own men. Receiving no support from the top office, surrounded largely by commissar revolters, he has drawn only a pot and frying pan chance. That's worse than a Mexican standoff.

So the Cleveland-Detroit series and the world series on beyond will carry more peculiar, Freudian, psychopathic, psychological complexities than any set of games has yet known.

Whatever happens it will be the largest sporting party Ohio has ever known—probably the largest any state has ever known.—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Cleveland Wins Over St. Louis; Score 4 to 0

Big Al Milnar Keeps Lagging Pennant Hopes of Indians Alive

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25 (AP) — Big Al Milnar pumped a hypodermic into Cleveland's lagging pennant hopes today with a 4 to 2 football weather triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

A two-run single by Ben Chapman, Indians' left fielder, kept the Tribe in the race. Pitcher Vernon Kennedy, long-time Cleveland jinx, momentarily lost control in the fourth with two Indians dead. Ken Keltner dropped a pop single to start the uprising. Then came walks to Ray Mack, Frankie Pytlak and Milnar, scoring Keltner. Chapman's one-baser plated Mack and Pytlak.

That made it 4-0 for the Tribe, which had taken a one-run lead in the first. Roy Weatherly and Lou Boudreau banged out singles and Weatherly scored on Hal Trosky's grounder.

The first St. Louis tally came in the fifth. Milnar walked Johnny Berardino on a 3 and 1 pitch and Swift sent him home with a double. Heffner singled in the eighth and he tallied on Harland Clift's fly to center.

Chicago Cardinals Wallop the Bears

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (AP)—Chicago's Cardinals, held to ties in their first two National Professional Football League starts, slapped an unexpected defeat tonight on their more highly regarded city rivals the Bears, 21 to 7. The Cards scored twice in the first half and added another in the final period.

Rain Postpones Game

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP)—Rain today caused postponement of the third game of the final series in the International League playoffs, scheduled for tonight between the Newark Bears and the Baltimore Orioles.

The teams, deadlocked with one victory apiece, are scheduled to play here tomorrow night, Friday night and Saturday afternoon. Hank Borowy probably will pitch for the Bears tomorrow night and Floyd Stromme will hurl for the Orioles.

Practice Today

The Cumberland Old German baseball squad will practice this evening at 5 o'clock on the North End Playground field in preparation for the second game of the Tri-County League playoff series with the Rainsburg (Pa.) Red Sox at the Bedford Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon. The Old Germans won the first game by forfeit after Rainsburg tossers left the field in protest against the officiating.

Tuesday Night League

Led by Capt. John Shaffer, who had 221-525, the Shaffers won three games from Brad Gibbs' crew in a Tuesday Night League match Tuesday night at the Savoy.

In other contests, the Wagners copped a pair from the Jenkins outfit and the Wallis combination bested the Cessnas 2-1. S. Miller had 468 for the Wagners while the Wallis aggregation was topped by Cook with 426. The scores:

Penn Eleven May Be the Surprise Team of Season

Munger Expects To Have Best Quaker Aggregation Since 1936

By TED MEIER

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25 (AP)—Pennsylvania may be the nation's 1940 football surprise package.

Playing an all-major opponent schedule as a feature of the university's bicentennial observance, the Quakers must meet in succession Maryland, Yale, Princeton, Michigan, Navy, Harvard, Army and Cornell. Few of their followers expect more than five victories out of that array, but youthful Coach George Munger is quietly confident.

Munger, starting his third season, won't come right out and say the Red and Blue shapes up as the best Penn eleven since 1936, the last good season Penn enjoyed, but neither is he crying "wolf."

Excellent Spirit Prevails

The fact is that he has a big, strong squad that includes seventeen lettermen and twenty sophomores from last year's undefeated Freshman team. All who have seen the Quakers at their Hershey, Pa., training camp comment on the excellent morale and spirit.

Put all this together, and you have a start toward a successful season.

Munger has made several changes in the Quakers' play that are expected to strengthen the team. Most important, he has relieved triple threat Frankie Reagan of signal calling. Second, he has abandoned, temporarily at least, the huddle, and third, he plans to make more use of that punt as an offensive weapon.

Reagan, who has shown flashes of greatness in the past two years, should benefit by his release from signal-calling and the task of choosing the plays. An excellent punter, he will carry much of Munger's hope of using the punt offensively.

Johnny Dutcher Returns

The return of Johnny Dutcher, who was injured early in the 1939 season, is another reason for high Penn hopes. Like Reagan, Dutcher can run and pass. Eddie Allen, Jim Chandler, Herb Rainwater and Tony Chizmadia are other veteran backs. Sophomores Paxon Gifford, former Mercersburg Academy sprinter, and Bert Stiff give promise of seeing plenty of varsity action.

Captain Ray Frick, rated as one of the best centers in the East, is the bulwark of a formidable forward defense. Sophomore Bernie Kucynski, a rugged 190-pounder, apparently is ready to step into the end berth left vacant by graduation last year's Captain Harlan Gustafson. Munger has lettermen available for the other line positions in Len Warner, end, Cliff Engler and Walter Runte, tackles, and Irving Mendelson and Al Brechka, guards.

V.P.I. Practices For Marshall Game

BLACKSBURG, Va., Sept. 25 (AP)—A cold wind forced Virginia Tech's football coaches to call off a midweek scrimmage this afternoon but the Gobblers, despite the weather, lost no time in preparing for the tilt with Marshall college at Washington Saturday night.

Coach Henry Redd alternated two elevens in a fast offensive drill in which the gridmen showed lots of speed and spirit. Hard-charging linemen and backs punished the flocking dummies while ball carriers raced at top speed in a full review of Tech's offensive tactics.

The mentors also showed the Gobblers Marshall's attack formations and drilled them intensively on the defensive strategy to combat it.

Banquet of County League Postponed

The Allegany County Softball League banquet, scheduled this evening at the Clary Club, has been postponed according to loop officials and the committee in charge.

After a meeting Tuesday at the Clary Club, the following statement was issued: "Due to circumstances beyond our control and affecting many of our players, the banquet has been postponed until a more favorable date to be announced in the near future by the committee."

Birmingham Wins

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Sept. 25 (AP)—Birmingham, Ala., continued undefeated in the Amateur World Series of the American baseball Congress here today by handing Battle Creek its first setback, 7 to 4. The Dixie team meets South Bend, Ind., Friday. Battle Creek drew a bye until Saturday.

In other games today Holyoke, Mass., eliminated Detroit, 12 to 0; South Bend shaded Chicago, 2 to 1, and Charlotte, N. C., took a 13-inning thriller from Grant Town, W. Va., 9 to 8, leaving only five of the original entry of sixteen teams in the meet.

The Buckeye Show

Who will draw the longest bow
In the bitter Buckeye Show?
Who will throw the keenest spear
Where so many thousands cheer?
Who will cop the fancy swag

Who'll be hero? Who'll be hobo?

Reds on the Griddle

Cincinnati's Reds, far in front of all pennant chasers, are still on a griddle. By all odds the best club in the National League, they still have a five-year N. L. deficit to wipe out, using their bats and pitching arms largely for this purpose. The older league must look back ot the autumn spell of 1934 to locate a world series victory, and that is a lot of calendars in the book of time.

Last fall the Reds dropped four games in a row when with better defensive fielding the count should have stood at two and two. One scrambling outfield and one moth-eaten infield play turned the series into a rout.

But with Cleveland and Detroit still moving through the stretch to the wire, the Reds still have that rout to remember in behalf of their own league.

A. N. L. Jolt

If the Reds get beaten again the next series will be a nightmare for the old league. It will mean that they by all odds the best team in the N. L. couldn't handle a club barely able to win in the American.

This puts the situation squarely up to Cincinnati's earnest young athletes, headed by one of baseball's star pitching groups—Derringer, Walters and Thompson.

The Reds have now had some weeks to think this over. Their American League rivals have been too harshly embroiled in their own circuit to think too much about a world series. The A. L. team that wins will consider itself on velvet after what has happened in the final stretch of the final week.

The Buckeye Turmoil

In the midst of this Buckeye turmoil the Reds will be smoking hot public favorites, no matter who wins in the other league.

Ohio will naturally be solidly against any invading Tigers from Michigan. And the Cleveland situation has sickened most of the old-fashioned and the new-fashioned baseball fans in that city and surrounding terrain.

I can't remember a team as unpopular among its own people as Cleveland is. The terrific blasting the team has taken all over the map has set a new record in the way of public scorn.

Whatever happens, the situation will demand a complete new deal in Cleveland, including ownership and through the front office.

Several months ago I entered a short notice to the effect that Cleveland had at least four bad actors on the club who would hardly help in winning any pennant. This was before the Vitt episode. I was only a third right in the way of bad actors. But they are still out shooting with a club that might have won easily if it hadn't suddenly decided to be baseball's outcast tribe.

In Cleveland

It would be no great surprise to see any number of Cleveland rooters using their hoarse huzzahs in favor of Detroit. I've talked with many of them lately and I know they are dead sore at the whole affair.

They may forget this in the interest of another world series after a twenty-year wait.

But if it happens to be Cleveland against the Reds you'll find the bulk of Ohio back of the Reds. They took a smashing last fall and came back stronger than ever. They proved at least to be dead game. And they'll move into this next series ready to give all they have in their clammy systems. It may not be enough, but there'll be no 1939 collapse.

Any ball club with Bill McKechnie at the helm—with Derringer, Walters and Thompson ready—isn't going to be any flock of butterflies waiting for the net. Your Uncle Will McKechnie is a pretty calm sort of a fellow who knows what it is all about.

A year ago he couldn't catch a fly ball that should have been an easy out—or handle a double play that should have been a high school pushover. These two plays cost two ball games.

But Bill has faith in his club, and the Reds have faith in Bill, just as the Tigers have in Del Baker who has turned out one of the best jobs of the year—one of the best jobs of many years.

Oscar Vitt has had no such support. He has been mouse-trapped all season by his own men. Receiving no support from the top office, surrounded largely by commissar revolters, he has drawn only a pot and frying pan chance. That's worse than a Mexican standoff.

So the Cleveland-Detroit series and the world series on beyond will carry more peculiar, Freudian, psychopathic, psychological complexities than any set of games has yet known.

Whatever happens it will be the largest sporting party Ohio has ever known—probably the largest any state has ever known.—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Cleveland Wins Over St. Louis; Score 4 to 0

Big Al Milnar Keeps Lagging Pennant Hopes of Indians Alive

CLEVELAND, Sept. 25 (AP) — Big Al Milnar pumped a hypodermic into Cleveland's lagging pennant hopes today with a 4 to 2 football weather triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

A two-run single by Ben Chapman, Indians' left fielder, kept the Tribe in the race. Pitcher Vernon Kennedy, long-time Cleveland jinx, momentarily lost control in the fourth with two Indians dead. Ken Keltner dropped a pop single to start the uprising. Then came walks to Ray Mack, Frankie Pytlak and Milnar, scoring Keltner. Chapman's one-baser plated Mack and Pytlak.

That made it 4-0 for the Tribe, which had taken a one-run lead in the first. Roy Weatherly and Lou Boudreau banged out singles and Weatherly scored on Hal Trosky's grounder.

The first St. Louis tally came in the fifth. Milnar walked Johnny Berardino on a 3 and 1 pitch and Swift sent him home with a double. Heffner singled in the eighth and he tallied on Harland Clift's fly to center.

Chicago Cardinals Wallop the Bears

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (AP)—Chicago's Cardinals, held to ties in their first two National Professional Football League starts, slapped an unexpected defeat tonight on their more highly regarded city rivals the Bears, 21 to 7. The Cards scored twice in the first half and added another in the final period.

Rain Postpones Game

BALTIMORE, Sept. 25 (AP)—Rain today caused postponement of the third game of the final series in the International League playoffs, scheduled for tonight between the Newark Bears and the Baltimore Orioles.

The teams, deadlocked with one victory apiece, are scheduled to play here tomorrow night, Friday night and Saturday afternoon. Hank Borowy probably will pitch for the Bears tomorrow night and Floyd Stromme will hurl for the Orioles.

Practice Today

The Cumberland Old German baseball squad will practice this evening at 5 o'clock on the North End Playground field in preparation for the second game of the Tri-County League playoff series with the Rainsburg (Pa.) Red Sox at the Bedford Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon. The Old Germans won the first game by forfeit after Rainsburg tossers left the field in protest against the officiating.

Tuesday Night League

Led by Capt. John Shaffer, who had 221-525, the Shaffers won three games from Brad Gibbs' crew in a Tuesday Night League match Tuesday night at the Savoy.

In other contests, the Wagners copped a pair from the Jenkins outfit and the Wallis combination bested the Cessnas 2-1. S. Miller had 468 for the Wagners while the Wallis aggregation was topped by Cook with 426. The scores:

Chicago Cubs Trim Pittsburgh Pirates Twice

Cubs Near Fourth Place by Taking Doubleheader

Winning Run in First Game Forced over Plate by Truett Sewell

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (AP)—Chicago's Cubs climbed within one game of the fourth place Pittsburgh Pirates today by sweeping a doubleheader with the Bucs, 2 to 1 and 6 to 4.

Bill Lee outpitched Truett Sewell to win the opener in 11 innings. Stan Hack scored both runs. He led off with a single in the first inning and reached home on Bill Nicholson's single. In the eleventh he doubled, went to third on Rabbit Warstler's single and stayed there until Sewell walked the next two batters, forcing in the winning run.

A five-run spree in the seventh inning of the second game, in which pitcher Mace Brown was routed and Manager Frankie Frisch banished for disputing a decision, led to the second triumph.

Baer-Comiskey Fight Will Be Staged Tonight

Betting Commissioners Are Undecided Who To Tab as Favorite

By SID FEDER

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 25. (AP)—The experienced fistic clowning of old Maxie Baer and the youth and hitting power of Irish Pat Comiskey collide in the ball park tomorrow night in the "bettingest" heavyweight fight around these parts in years.

Even those charitable souls, the betting commissioners, who would even lay 6 to 5 out and out on death and taxes, don't know which clouter to tab as favorite. Some odds-makers have installed the 19-year-old Irish walloper on top at 5 to 7; others just reverse the procedure.

The chances are it'll be even money and "who d'ya like" when they climb into the ring about 9 p. m. (EST) tomorrow—weather permitting—before a hoped-for crowd of 25,000. Promoter Jack Kearns, making his big league fistic comeback, figures the gate may be $100,000.

This corner goes for the clown in this one. Max appears to know too many answers to the questions Pat is still asking. A year from now the big-jawed kid should be the toughest man around, but right now he has too much to learn, and Baer—say what you want about the way he can or cannot fight—knows more than one and one about the business of mashing noses. Of course, Pat may walk right out there, hang one on Baer's jaw and make Max curl up, but this doesn't figure.

On one point all are agreed. The fight is a cinch to end long before it goes the 15-round route, because both fellows pack a can of ether in their fists. Baer predicts he'll knock out Comiskey in four or five rounds. Pat's telling his friends he's going to let the ex-king of the playboys go through his routine of gags and patter for a couple of rounds, then flatten him in five or six.

Rocking Chair Loop Series Game Carded

The third and deciding game of the Rocking Chair Softball League championship series between B. and O. Bolt and Forge tossers and the Junior Association of Commerce outfit will be played this evening at 5 o'clock at Community Park.

The J.A.C. crew copped the opening game 4-0 last Thursday, but the Bando Bombers came back to take Sunday's clash 9-8.

Futurity-Derby Jinx Still Going Strong

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—The richest two-year-old horse race in the world, the Belmont Futurity, will be run off Saturday, and the book shows that no Futurity winner has ever gone on to win the Kentucky Derby, which puts the entries in a painful predicament.

Take the Futurity prize and let the Derby go? Or vice versa? Or make a sturdy effort to smash tradition and win 'em both? That is the problem which faces Our Boots and Whirlaway and King Cole and New World, the champion juvenile runners of the year, as they peel off their sweaters and prepare to have it out down Belmont's golden lane.

Saturday's lane can be a source of untold wampum — anywhere from $60,000 to $100,000 for the winner. Yet the true test of a horse's greatness comes in his three-year-old year, and the Kentucky Derby is a symbol of far more lasting value than a dozen Futurities.

Early this year it seemed as though th celebrated hex, whammie, or jinx might finally be laid in the dust. Bimelech won the Futurity in 1939, the first horse of Colonel Bradley's ever to do so — and the Derby, coming up in May of the following year, had always been Bradley's dish.

Whammie Smote Bimelech

Bimelech survived the Winter hazards which often obliterate a two-year-old champion. He remained whole and sound, and he won his Derby trials easily in the spring. But when he took the track at Louisville, an odds-on favorite, the ancient whammie rose and smote him, and he was beaten out by Gallahadion, an outsider from the barn of Mrs. Ethel Mars, the candy princess.

Strange to say, he duplicated the performance of the very first Futurity winner. The rich race for juveniles was first run in 1888, at the famous Sheepshead Bay track in the Brooklyn wing of Long Island, and a good horse by the name of Proctor Knott won the running and the prize of $40,000. They shipped him to Louisville the following spring, and he ran second to Spokane in the Derby.

Thus, the first and last of the Futurity winners had exactly the same sort of luck—and a bit discouraging, too.

Mind you, I don't want to prompt the animals running in Saturday's race, but it may be that the smartest thing to do, with the Derby in view, is to finish second. Three times in history the second horse in the Futurity has gone on to win the Derby, which seems to indicate among other things, that a steed is not necessarily a bum, or doomed to oblivion, if he performs will in the lush race for refined youngsters at Belmont.

The Case of Sir Barton

Sir Barton, fine and consistent little runner and John E. Madden's pride, finished second to Dunboyne in the Futurity of 1918 and showed his twinkling heels to the field in the Derby the next year.

A few months later, incidentally, the 1919 Futurity was won by the greatest horse of all, Man O' War, who ignored the Derby, but stalked Sir Barton until he caught him in a single race and almost broke his heart.

Zev, Harry Sinclair's champion, was rated strictly a sprinter when he ran second to Sally's Alley in the 1922 Futurity, but on the advice of Earl Sande they put him in the Derby field in 1923, and he ran away from it. Reigh Count was second to Anita Peabody in the Futurity of 1927, and won the Derby the following year. And just for a change of pattern, Gallant Fox and Johnstown finished third at Belmont in their respective Futurity years. You know what they did in the Derby.

For what these mystic figures are worth, I present them to our Boots and King Cole, the two colts which seem to have the gold and plunder of the Futurity at their mercy this Saturday.

King Cole, belonging to Ogden Phipps, may be the favorite because of the breathtaking turn of speed he has shown in the last three weeks — but Whirlaway and New World seasoned young campaigner and twin kings of the Saratoga meetings, should still be given an outside chance.

King Cole and New World, having early speed, may run off together from the start. Whirlaway, the stoutest horse of the field, though beaten this week, may overtake them in the stretch.

Which will leave the winner face to face with the Futurity-Derby jinx, fifty years old and still going strong.

CHAMPION IN ANOTHER LINE

Double Bill Is Split by Cards And Cincinnati

Thompson Allows only Two Hits in Winning First Game

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25 (AP)—Bucky Walters, who may be the starting world series pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, went down to defeat before the Cardinals today, 4 to 3, in the second game of a twin bill after the National League Champions won the opener, 5 to 0.

Against Walters, Johnny Mize hit his forty-second home run, equalling the record for a St. Louis player, established by Rodgers Hornsby with the Cardinals in 1922.

Morton Cooper went in for the Cardinals in the seventh inning, after the Reds had threatened to tie the score, and pitched to his brother, Walker Cooper, a rookie catcher. The Coopers stopped the Reds with no hits during the rest of the game.

In the opener, it was all Junior Thompson. He yielded only two hits, both by Enos Slaughter.

Detroit Outfield Is Rated Stronger Than That of the Cincinnati Reds

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP)—The outfield should be the power plant of a baseball club and the Detroit Tigers' outfield has more power that your light company.

The experiment that switched Hank Greenberg from first base to left field was just like stepping up the current in Briggs Stadium about 500 volts and it had just as jolting an effect on the American League.

It made room for both Greenberg and first baseman Rudy York in the Tigers' lineup at the same time and speared Detroit to the top of the circuit with the best team batting average in the major leagues.

Greenberg Has Fine Year

This murderous punch is exemplified by Greenberg with a .340 batting average, 40 homers and 149 runs batted in. That kind of hitting will cancel a multitude of sins afield, but Greenberg has become a highly satisfactory defensive player, too.

Therefore, because of big Hankus Pankus, if for no other reason, the Tigers' outfield must be considered superior to the fine-fielding patrol of the Cincinnati Reds as well as the capable but not brilliant brigade of the Cleveland Indians, who still are struggling for the series nomination.

The difference would have been overwhelming if the Reds hadn't picked up Jimmy Ripple in August. The faux paux by which Brooklyn lost him on waivers is now well known, but it still is a modern miracle to the Reds, who stumbled along for two years with blunderbusses in leftfield.

Ripple is a streaky player, but he's usually hot when the money's on the tablecloth. He batted .310 in two World Series for the New York Giants and has hit .308 for the Reds. In 31 games he hasn't made a field error.

His advent made it possible for Bill McKechnie to move young Mike McCormick into center field, where he has been playing steady if not spectacular ball and batting .290. The veteran Ival Goodman with a modest yet dangerous .255 average will be in right again.

McCosky Is Star

The defense kingpin of the Detroit outfield is Barney McCosky, second only to the Yankees' Joe DiMaggio as a center-fielder. He helps Greenberg cover a lot of territory and supports him at the plate, too, with a .335 batting average.

In rightfield Detroit has the veteran Ervin (Pete) Fox, who batted .385 in the 1935 World Series and has been hitting .292 this season. He stands up under inspection better than Goodman or Beau Bell, rightfielder for the Indians, and batting .283.

Cleveland has a much better than average centerfielder in little Roy Weatherly, who covers everything in sight and has been batting .306 and a versatile, if eccentric, performer in Ben Chapman, currently stationed in leftfield and batting .285.

All three teams have done considerable outfield shuffling this season and can easily insert experienced hands during the series.

Oilers Score Again In Tri-Towns Series

Westernport, Sept. 25—The Oilers Tuesday made it two straight victories over the Devon Club in the final five-game series for the Tri-Towns Softball League championship, the club which finished in second place against besting the No. 1 team 5-1.

Jack Dayton pitched three-hit ball for the Oilers, who touch 'Hefty' Newlon for seven blows. Wayne Ritchie with two safeties in as many trips and Abe Raines with a double with two on base, paced the Oilers. M. DiUbaldo, J. McCabe and R. Mazzoni shared Devon Club's hits.

Fielding honors went to Chester Marsh, Oiler third sacker who handled nine chances without a slip. He also pulled down Roy Cave's bid for an extra-base hit in the sixth with two aboard.

As a result of their victory, the odds on the Oilers soared. Devon Club must win the next two games to get back in the running. The score:

DEVON CLUB	010 000 0	1	3	3
OILERS	100 013 x	5	7	2

Devon Club—Newlon and Mazzoni. Oilers—Dayton and Walsh.

North End Tossers To Meet Today

Navy Varsity Eleven Has Long Scrimmage

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25 (AP)—The Navy Varsity eleven scrimmaged for two hours on a rain-soaked field today against the "B" squad which ran off plays used by William and Mary, Navy's opponent Saturday.

Maj. Emery (Swede) Larson disclosed that Bud Boyer, quarterback who yesterday replaced John Harrell in the starting backfield, was injured slightly yesterday.

Phil Gutting, right halfback, isn't feeling well and Larson said he wouldn't know until Friday whether Boyer and Gutting would be ready for William and Mary.

If they can't play, their places will be taken by Harrell and Sammy Boothe, respectively, Larson declared.

Sherwood Werner will start at fullback and Howie Clark may get the nod over Bill Busik for the left halfback post.

Chicago Cubs Trim Pittsburgh Pirates Twice

Winning Run in First Game Forced over Plate by Truett Sewell

CHICAGO, Sept. 25 (AP)—Chicago's Cubs climbed within one game of the fourth place Pittsburgh Pirates today by sweeping a doubleheader with the Bucs, 2 to 1 and 6 to 4.

Bill Lee outpitched Truett Sewell to win the opener in 11 innings. Stan Hack scored both runs. He led off with a single in the first inning and reached home on Bill Nicholson's single. In the eleventh he doubled, went to third on Rabbit Warstler's single and stayed there until Sewell walked the next two batters, forcing in the winning run.

A five-run spree in the seventh inning of the second game, in which pitcher Mace Brown was routed and Manager Frankie Frisch banished for disputing a decision, led to the second triumph.

Baer-Comiskey Fight Will Be Staged Tonight

Betting Commissioners Are Undecided Who To Tab as Favorite

By SID FEDER

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 25 (AP)—The experienced fistic clowning of old Maxie Baer and the youth and hitting power of Irish Pat Comiskey collide in the ball park tomorrow night in the "bettingest" heavyweight fight around these parts in years.

Even those charitable souls, the betting commissioners, who would even lay 6 to 5 out and out on death and taxes, don't know which clouter to tab as favorite. Some odds-makers have installed the 19-year-old Irish walloper on top at 5 to 7; others just reverse the procedure.

The chances are it'll be even money and "who d'ya like" when they climb into the ring about 9 p. m. (EST) tomorrow—weather permitting—before a hoped-for crowd of 25,000. Promoter Jack Kearns, making his big league fistic comeback, figures the gate may be $100,000.

This corner goes for the clown in this one. Max appears to know too many answers to the questions Pat is still asking. A year from now the big-jawed kid should be the toughest man around, but right now he has too much to learn, and Baer—say what you want about the way he can or cannot fight—knows more than one and one about the business of mashing noses. Of course, Pat may walk right out there, hang one on Baer's jaw and make Max curl up, but this doesn't figure.

On one point all are agreed. The fight is a cinch to end long before it goes the 15-round route, because both fellows pack a can of ether in their fists. Baer predicts he'll knock out Comiskey in four or five rounds. Pat's telling his friends he's going to let the ex-king of the playboys go through his routine of gags and patter for a couple of rounds, then flatten him in five or six.

Rocking Chair Loop Series Game Carded

The third and deciding game of the Rocking Chair Softball League championship series between B. and O. Bolt and Forge tossers and the Junior Association of Commerce outfit will be played this evening at 5 o'clock at Community Park.

The J.A.C. crew copped the opening game 4-0 last Thursday, but the Bando Bombers came back to take Sunday's clash 9-5.

Futurity-Derby Jinx Still Going Strong

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 25—The richest two-year-old horse race in the world, the Belmont Futurity, will be run off Saturday, and the book shows that no Futurity winner has ever gone on to win the Kentucky Derby, which puts the entries in a painful predicament.

Take the Futurity prize and let the Derby go? Or vice versa? Or make a sturdy effort to smash tradition and win 'em both? That is the problem which faces Our Boots and Whirlaway and King Cole and New World, the champion juvenile runners of the year, as they peel off their sweaters and prepare to have it out down Belmont's golden lane.

Saturday's lane can be a source of untold wampum — anywhere from $60,000 to $100,000 for the winner. Yet the true test of a horse's greatness comes in his three-year-old year, and the Kentucky Derby is a symbol of far more lasting value than a dozen Futurities.

Early this year it seemed as though th celebrated hex, whammie, or jinx might finally be laid in the dust. Bimelech won the Futurity in 1939, the first horse of Colonel Bradley's ever to do so — and the Derby, coming up in May of the following year, had always been Bradley's dish.

Whammie Smote Bimelech

Bimelech survived the Winter hazards which often obliterate a two-year-old champion. He remained whole and sound, and he won his Derby trials easily in the spring. But when he took the track at Louisville, an odds-on favorite, the ancient whammie rose and smote him, and he was beaten out by Gallahadion, an outsider from the barn of Mrs. Ethel Mars, the candy princess.

Strange to say, he duplicated the performance of the very first Futurity winner. The rich race for juveniles was first run in 1888, at the famous Sheepshead Bay track in the Brooklyn wing of Long Island, and a good horse by the name of Proctor Knott won the running and the prize of $40,000. They shipped him to Louisville the following spring, and he ran second to Spokane in the Derby.

Thus, the first and last of the Futurity winners had exactly the same sort of luck—and a bit discouraging, too.

Mind you, I don't want to prompt the animals running in Saturday's race, but it may be that the smartest thing to do, with the Derby in view, is to finish second. Three times in history the second horse in the Futurity has gone on to win the Derby, which seems to indicate among other things, that a steed is not necessarily a bum, or doomed to oblivion, if he performs will in the lush race for refined youngsters at Belmont.

The Case of Sir Barton

Sir Barton, fine and consistent little runner and John E. Madden's pride, finished second to Dunboyne in the Futurity of 1918 and showed his twinkling heels to the field in the Derby the next year.

A few months later, incidentally, the 1919 Futurity was won by the greatest horse of all, Man O' War, who ignored the Derby, but stalked Sir Barton until he caught him in a single race and almost broke his heart.

Zev, Harry Sinclair's champion, was rated strictly a sprinter when he ran second to Sally's Alley in the 1922 Futurity, but on the advice of Earl Sande they put him in the Derby field in 1923, and he ran away from it. Reigh Count was second to Anita Peabody in the Futurity of 1927, and won the Derby the following year. And just for a change of pattern, Gallant Fox and Johnstown finished third at Belmont in their respective Futurity years. You know what they did in the Derby.

For what these mystic figures are worth, I present them to our Boots and King Cole, the two colts which seem to have the gold and plunder of the Futurity at their mercy this Saturday.

King Cole, belonging to Ogden Phipps, may be the favorite because of the breathtaking turn of speed he has shown in the last three weeks — but Whirlaway and New World seasoned young campaigner and twin kings of the Saratoga meetings, should still be given an outside chance.

King Cole and New World, having early speed, may run off together from the start. Whirlaway, the stoutest horse of the field, though beaten this week, may overtake them in the stretch.

Which will leave the winner face to face with the Futurity-Derby jinx, fifty years old and still going strong.

CHAMPION IN ANOTHER LINE

Double Bill Is Split by Cards And Cincinnati

Thompson Allows only Two Hits in Winning First Game

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25 (AP)—Bucky Walters, who may be the starting world series pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, went down to defeat before the Cardinals today, 4 to 3, in the second game of a twin bill after the National League Champions won the opener, 5 to 0.

Against Walters, Johnny Mize hit his forty-second home run, equalling the record for a St. Louis player, established by Rodgers Hornsby with the Cardinals in 1922.

Morton Cooper went in for the Cardinals in the seventh inning, after the Reds had threatened to tie the score, and pitched to his brother, Walker Cooper, a rookie catcher. The Coopers stopped the Reds with no hits during the rest of the game.

In the opener, it was all Junior Thompson. He yielded only two hits, both by Enos Slaughter.

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. (AP)—The outfield should be the power plant of a baseball club and the Detroit Tigers' outfield has more power that your light company.

The experiment that switched Hank Greenberg from first base to left field was just like stepping up the current in Briggs Stadium about 500 volts and it had just as jolting an effect on the American League.

It made room for both Greenberg and first baseman Rudy York in the Tigers' lineup at the same time and speared Detroit to the top of the circuit with the best team batting average in the major leagues.

Greenberg Has Fine Year

This murderous punch is exemplified by Greenberg with a .340 batting average, 40 homers and 149 runs batted in. That kind of hitting will cancel a multitude of sins afield, but Greenberg has become a highly satisfactory defensive player, too.

Therefore, because of big Hankus Pankus, if for no other reason, the Tigers' outfield must be considered superior to the fine-fielding patrol of the Cincinnati Reds as well as the capable but not brilliant brigade of the Cleveland Indians, who still are struggling for the series nomination.

The difference would have been overwhelming if the Reds hadn't picked up Jimmy Ripple in August. The faux paux by which Brooklyn lost him on waivers is now well known, but it still is a modern miracle to the Reds, who stumbled along for two years with blunderbusses in leftfield.

Ripple is a streaky player, but he's usually hot when the money's on the tablecloth. He batted .310 in two World Series for the New York Giants and has hit .308 for the Reds. In 31 games he hasn't made a field error.

His advent made it possible for Bill McKechnie to move young Mike McCormick into center field, where he has been playing steady if not spectacular ball and batting .290. The veteran Ival Goodman with a modest yet dangerous .255 average will be in right again.

McCosky Is Star

The defense kingpin of the Detroit outfield is Barney McCosky, second only to the Yankees' Joe DiMaggio as a center-fielder. He helps Greenberg cover a lot of territory and supports him at the plate, too, with a .335 batting average.

In rightfield Detroit has the veteran Ervin (Pete) Fox, who batted .385 in the 1935 World Series and has been hitting .292 this season. He stands up under inspection better than Goodman or Beau Bell, rightfielder for the Indians, and batting .283.

Cleveland has a much better than average centerfielder in little Roy Weatherly, who covers everything in sight and has been batting .306, and a versatile, if eccentric, performer in Ben Chapman, currently stationed in leftfield and batting .285.

All three teams have done considerable outfield shuffling this season and can easily insert experienced hands during the series.

Oilers Score Again In Tri-Towns Series

Westernport, Sept. 25—The Oilers Tuesday made it two straight victories over the Devon Club in the final five-game series for the Tri-Towns Softball League championship, the club which finished in second place against besting the No. 1 team 5-1.

Jack Dayton pitched three-hit ball for the Oilers, who touch Hefty Newlon for seven blows. Wayne Ritchie with two safeties in as many trips and Abe Raines with a double with two on base, paced the Oilers. M. DiUbaldo, J. McCabe and R. Mazzoni shared Devon Club's hits.

Fielding honors went to Chester Marsh, Oiler third sacker who handled nine chances without a slip. He also pulled down Roy Cave's bid for an extra-base hit in the sixth with two aboard.

As a result of their victory, the odds on the Oilers soared. Devon Club must win the next two games to get back in the running. The score:

DEVON CLUB	010	000	0—1	3	3
OILERS	100	013	x—5	7	2

North End Tossers To Meet Today

Plans for a team banquet will be discussed at a meeting of the North End Merchant softball squad tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the home of Manager "Sparky" Chisholm on North Centre street.

Navy Varsity Eleven Has Long Scrimmage

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 25 (AP)—The Navy Varsity eleven scrimmaged for two hours on a rain-soaked field today against the "B" squad which ran off plays used by William and Mary, Navy's opponent Saturday.

Maj. Emery (Swede) Larson disclosed that Bud Boyer, quarterback who yesterday replaced John Harrell in the starting backfield, was injured slightly yesterday.

Phil Gutting, right halfback, isn't feeling well and Larson said he wouldn't know until Friday whether Boyer and Gutting would be ready for William and Mary.

If they can't play, their places will be taken by Harrell and Sammy Boothe, respectively, Larson declared.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

John D. Livingston, vs. James P. Livingston.

No. 15,819 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant on the ground of desertion. The bill states that the parties were married in Cumberland, Maryland, on October 5, 1935, that they lived together as husband and wife from April, 1937, to May, 1937, when the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared his intention to live separate and apart from her, which intention he has continued to the present time and is determined that the separation of the parties be final and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation, that no children have been born of the marriage, that the plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland, Allegany County, through residence, pursuant to the City of Washington, District of Columbia, and has been a bona fide residents of the State of Maryland for more than two years, that the defendant is a resident of the State of South Carolina and a non-resident of the State of Maryland.

It is therefore this 17th day of September, 1940, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff cause a copy of this order to be inserted in some certain newspaper published in Allegany County once a week for three successive weeks before the 28th day of October, 1940, giving notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill and requiring him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 11th day of November, 1940, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree nisi should not be passed as prayed.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

James F. Livingston
vs.
Mary Livingston

No. 15,818 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Allegany County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant a vinculo matrimonii. The bill states that the parties were married and lived together as husband and wife in Allegany County, Maryland, where the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff on or about the 1st day of May, 1939, since which time the defendant has refused to live with the plaintiff as husband and wife. The plaintiff is a resident of the State of Maryland and has been such for more than two years next before the filing of the bill of complaint. The defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and resides in the State of South Carolina.

It is thereupon this 25th day of September, 1940, ordered by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff by causing the substance of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Allegany County, once a week for three successive weeks before the 28th day of October, 1940, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill and warn him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 5th day of November, 1940, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Conference Will Resume Today At Celanese Plant

No Statement Is Issued on Progress of Latest Parley

The conference started yesterday afternoon between Celanese officials and members of the textile union's negotiating committee is scheduled to resume today at 2 o'clock, subject to change, it was announced last night by the conciliators.

With the exception of this information, facts were few last night concerning yesterday's conference which convened at 2 p. m. at the Celanese plant and adjourned at 4:45 p. m.

Reporters endeavoring to extract a hint from officials regarding what went on in the conference room bumped into considerable difficulty last night.

Resume Today

About the only hopeful sign gleaned was the fact that all participants are scheduled to return to the arbitrating room today.

As construed by John N. Pohlhaus, Maryland labor commissioner, and Aaron Horwitz, United States conciliator, the fact that the discussion is to continue is a hopeful sign in itself. The two conciliators are responsible for engineering the groundwork for yesterday's get-together, the first since the shutdown of the plant a week ago Tuesday night.

Fred T. Small, plant manager, and Edward R. Allan, personal director at the plant, participated in yesterday's conference for the company.

Small referred a reporter to the conciliators late yesterday afternoon after stating that participants in the conference had been bound to secrecy for the time being. He said that the conciliators should be contacted in fererence to any statement regarding a continuation of the conference.

James A. Dundon, textile union president; Herbert Payne, vice-president of the national union, Clyde Lucas, business manager of Local 1874; and members of the union negotiating committee, represented the unionists.

The two paragraph statement put out last night for union consumption was also extremely vague. It was as follows:

Union Announcement

"The negotiating committee of Local 1874 held a conference with management this afternoon, the first since operations were suspended more than a week ago. Federal and state conciliators attended the conference. The union's committee has at this time no further announcement to make. All Celanese workers, however, are assured that they will be fully informed of all negotiations when an announcement may properly be made. Another con-

Americans Asked To Offer Prayers For the British

Sunday Set Aside as "Day of Prayer"; Observance Lauded by Irvine

Moved by the intense suffering and danger of the British people, to whom we are bound by many deep spiritual ties, fourteen leaders of six Christian faiths, including the Rt. Rev. Henry S. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church are calling on Americans to observe Sunday, September 29, as a day of special prayer for Great Britain.

Governors of forty-eight states have been asked to join in observing "Great Britain Sunday" by issuing suitable proclamations in their respective states. Governor E. D. Rivers, of Georgia, and Governor Harland Bushfield, of South Dakota, have announced their cooperation in the program.

Manning Makes Appeal

Among those making an appeal to Americans to observe Sunday as "Great Britain Sunday" are Bishop William T. Manning, Episcopal, of New York; Bishop James E. Freeman, Episcopal, of Washington; John A. Mackey, president, Princeton Theological Seminary (Presbyterian); Samuel McCrea Calvert, general secretary, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Albert W. Beaven, president, Calgate-Rochester Divinity school (Baptist); Dr. John R. Mott, of New York, chairman of the World Committee of Y.M.C.A.'s.

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, president of the Synagogue Council, signed an appeal similar to the one issued by the Christian leaders.

Irvine Praises Appeal

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday received literature pertaining to the appeal and immediately voiced his approval of the observance of "Great Britain Sunday."

"We are united to our friends in the British Isles by the heritage of a common ideal for democracy and freedom and a common struggle to achieve it," commented Irvine. "In this hour when that heritage stands in peril we would identify ourselves in sympathy and fellowship with the British people."

Elks Here Adopt Defense Program

Committee Is Appointed To Pledge Assistance to Government

A three-fold program of assistance to the Government in its national defense efforts has been adopted by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks in co-operation with all lodges of the organization in the United States.

The Elks will, first of all, undertake a campaign to instill patriotism, a love of the flag and respect for American institutions and democratic ideals.

Detection of treasonable and spy activities and prompt reporting of all such cases to the proper authorities is another work the lodge will do.

Extension of vocational training in public schools to prepare students to protect the country in time of emergency and the physical development of American youth are the other aims of the organization.

The committee which will direct the work of the local Elks is composed of Lewis M. Wilson, chairman, John J. Rowan, John H. McCullough, J. Douglas Heron, Fred F. Sutherland and James E. Yarnall.

Charles Bantz Sues Bopps Flower Shop For $2500 in Wages

Charles Omer Bantz, represented by Attorney Peter J. Carpenti, docketed a suit in circuit court yesterday claiming $2,500 from Bopp's Flower Shop.

According to the petition, Bantz was employed by the flower shop as a truck driver from Oct. 1, 1937, until August, 1939, during which time he worked from forty-eight to sixty hours per week.

During that period Bantz contends he was a member of Local 453, of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union.

The union, his petition alleges, had a contract stipulating that drivers receive fifty cents an hour for a forty hour week. The fifty cents an hour clause held good until the work week exceeded forty-eight hours, the petition states. The contract provided for seventy-five cents an hour for anything in excess of a forty-eight hour week, Bantz contends.

George Newark Dies in Hospital

George Newark, 62, of Kitzmiller, died yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital where he was admitted Monday.

Hospital attaches reported that there are no immediate survivors.

Personal Items

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brown, 400 Louisiana avenue, have returned from Baltimore and Washington where they visited friends and relatives.

Donovan Brown, 627 Bedford street, formerly an employe of Maurice's department store, has accepted a position in the shoe department of the Woodard and Lathrop store, Washington, D. C.

William J. Cramer, Jr., 426 Fayette street, an employe of the dye house of the Celanese Corporation here, leaves today on a business trip to the corporation's plant in Drummondville, Canada. He will be gone about a week.

Prendergast Declines To Serve as Vice-Chairman of Campaign Group

M. F. Prendergast, this city, who led the victorious primary campaign for United States Senator George L. Radcliffe in Allegany county, announced last night that he would not serve as vice-chairman of the Democratic campaign committee in Allegany County. He was appointed by the State Central committee last week.

"The State Central committee was advised three weeks before it named me 'vice-chairman' of the county campaign committee that I would not serve in this capacity," Prendergast stated. "With others of the Radcliffe primary election group I told the three members of the Central committee present at a meeting called to name a campaign committee I would not accept such a post, and at the same time gave assurance that we would work in harmony in the campaign only when the successful Radcliffe workers were given recognition for their victory in the county last May.

Refusal Ignored

"That the State Central committee ignored my definite refusal to serve as 'vice-chairman' and appointed me to the post would indicate that I have been drafted for the job. However the rest of the Radcliffe workers have been ignored, and our suggestion that the best of the workers from both primary groups be selected for duty in the general election also has been discarded. This indicates that the State Central committee does not want to work in harmony to obtain the best possible results in the general elections.

"I refrained from making any

SPEAK HERE TODAY—Col. Richard F. Stretton, chief secretary for the Southern territory of the Salvation Army, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Stretton are scheduled to speak at four meetings here today. At 12:15 p. m., Col. Stretton will be the guest speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon at the Fort Cumberland hotel. At 5:30 he will address a dinner meeting of the Home League and at 8 p. m., Col. Stretton will address a public meeting at the Citadel. Mrs. Stretton is scheduled to speak at the Women's Home League rally at 2:30 p. m. Brigadier and Mrs. George Marshall, divisional commanders from Baltimore headquarters, will accompany Col. and Mrs. Stretton to Cumberland.

Comments on Celanese Situation Made in Letters to Editor

Four letters, taking different points of view, arrived yesterday. The first came from Alice Tower, of 911 Maryland avenue, who wrote:

"Well, well, well! Mr. Rudolph, you certainly have exploded a daring and worth-while letter to those of us who live in the city of Cumberland and surrounding countryside and especally to those who have worked at Celanese," Miss Tower stated.

You are one person who will not follow a leader like a herd of sheep when your eyes, ears and thinking capacity are opened to facts.

Is Type Needed

"Do not feel afraid of your future. There is much in store for any person who has the guts to follow his own convictions. Your type is sorely needed throughout the country, employers are silently begging for your kind, out of a nation handicapped with prejudice and selfishness and hatred. There are many other workers not so daring, who would gladly do as you have done. Do not feel afraid.

"Go South, young man. We understand that the Celanese at Pearisburg has no labor troubles. It must be a bit of paradise there. What, no labor troubles? Go South, young man, go South."

The second letter was written by V. L. Petenbrink and Gerald Sheets, union members who defended President James A. Dundon, union president, in answer to a letter published from Frank Rudolph.

"In answer to the open letter to our President, James A. Dundon," the letter stated, "I wish to state to Mr. Rudolph, that instead of being a sheep that you are an ass. However, Mr. Rudolph, I wish to give you credit for having enough guts to sign your name to your letter.

Didn't Refuse Raises

"Now, Mr. Rudolph, I will try to tell you, and the public, what your status has been, for at least three years past, while you were employed at the plant in reference to your standing with the union." You were taken into the union (under pressure) sometime in September, 1940 (after being employed over three years) and paid Two Dollars ($2.00) on an initiation fee or reinstatement fee. During your three years' employment I have not seen any 'open letter' to the Celanese Corp., telling them that you did not want your week's vacation with pay, your pay raises, etc., that you 'held up your feet' and let me work and fight to get for you. Surely, Mr. Rudolph, a man with your intelligence should have enough spunk to tell the Celanese that you didn't want a raise, etc. Shame on you!

"Mr. Rudolph, in reference to your statement that 'you realize that you may never be able to work at the

Cumberland Contracting Company Will Start $8,000 Job Today

An $8,000 black-topping job will get under way this morning when workers of the Cumberland Contracting Company start on the Williams street project which extends from Maryland avenue to Kent avenue.

Earl C. Robertson, of the Cumberland Contracting Company, last evening said that it will require about eight days to complete the job. Between fifteen and twenty men will be employed.

Contract for the black-topping of Williams street recently was awarded the Cumberland Contracting Company by the Maryland State Roads commission.

The item in Chatter yesterday about squirrel hunting brought a quick response from a Cumberland hunter.

An error overlooked by the proof reader allowed the word "haunts" to be used instead of "hunt," but the communication from the Cumberland man did not dwell on the typographical error as much as the scarcity of squirrels.

"As a hunter", the communication reads, (principally hunting which conforms to the printed words on the state and county licenses), "the rule you have quoted prevailed for many years in Maryland, but according to the counsel of the three squirrels (the population, more or less) of Maryland, it needs to be streamlined to the following:

"Get your hunting license (state or county) while they're hot off the press, and when the season opens, get up an hour or two before dawn (even if you do lose a few hours sleep) and get into the woods. Pick out a good clear spot and stretch out before the dawn breaks and finish your sleep.

"Awake when the sun comes up (clear weather predicted) and go on home. Under no circumstances take fire-arms with you, unless you just want to give your arms the morning exercise in carrying it to and fro, but the safe bet is to leave them at home, as you may accidentally be seen by one of the three squirrels and be taken for a nut.

"Why, just the other day, down in Washington county, the squirrels were seen conferring with a couple of game wardens endeavoring to get the conservation department to have a WPA project approved so their cousins and other relatives residing in Pennsylvania and West Virginia could hold a reunion in Maryland, without being finger (foot) printed and giving their birth dates."

A letter from headquarters of the Third Corps Area of the United States Army, advises young men in Allegany county not to confuse the regular army with other proposed military training organizations.

The officer points out that the regular army has a two-fold duty; first to be the initial protective force in American defense plans, and second, to train any force necessary to meet expanding needs. The regular army service need not be temporary, but a permanent career.

Soldiers and officers of the regular army are almost continually going to school themselves, to know

Lloyd W. Dick Is Sentenced to One Year in Prison

Local Man Pleads Guilty To Violating State Motor Vehicle Law

An ex-convict was given another "stretch" to serve when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court on charges of violating the same state motor law twice Monday.

Lloyd William Dick, 29, of the Walton hotel, was sentenced to serve one year on each of two charges of "unauthorized use of a motor vehicle," but the terms are to run concurrently. He pleaded guilty to both counts.

According to authorities, Dick first took the machine owned by J. George Freeland, of McCoole, from the 100-block North Centre street and left it in the 700-block after it ran out of fuel.

Then, they said, he took another car belonging to the Frantz Oldsmobile Company and later abandoned it. He took the machines to go some place to get money, they added.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., who presided at the hearing, said Dick was sentenced to three years in the Maryland penitentiary in 1935 on a charge of larceny, and in 1932 was sent to the House of Correction for eighteen months on a similar charge.

Lions To Hold Charter Night

Frank V. Becker Will Head Committee for Affair October 24

Preliminary arrangements for the charter night dinner and dance of the Cumberland Lions' club were made yesterday with the appointment of a committee of four members to make preparations for the event which will be held Thursday, October 24.

Frank V. Becker was named chairman of the committee which consists of George Martin, Jr., Thomas Lohr Richards and John Park. This group will meet next week to select a place for holding the affair as well as naming the guest speaker of the evening.

The Lions' club received its charter ten years ago and was formerly known as the Monarch club.

At yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Lions in the Central Y. M. C. A., technicolor movies taken by Edwin Keech on his recent trip to the west coast were shown. The picture included shots of Yellowstone National Park, Seattle and many other interesting scenic spots of the Rocky Mountain area.

K. M. Watkins was inducted into membership at the meeting.

George Martin, Sr., was program chairman.

Local Man Charged With Tampering with Public Water Supply

Out of one "jam" into another was the predicament Monroe Cohen, 11 East Laing avenue, found himself in yesterday.

Cohen was arraigned in trial magistrates court on a charge of interfering and tampering with the public water supply of the City of Cumberland, but sentence was deferred.

Court attaches said Cohen's water was turned off because he owed the city a rather large amount of water rent. Cohen turned the water back on, they added.

Tuesday, Cohen was fined $10 in police court on a charge of allowing a vicious dog to run at large. He was ordered to remove the animal from the city limits.

North End Social and Athletic Club Closes Successful Membership Drive

The North End Social and Athletic Club marked the close of a month's membership campaign last night at the club-rooms, 649 North Mechanic street, with the announcement that ninety-six new members had been accepted, bringing the membership to 339. The club, which was organized and opened July 19, will continue its campaign with the goal of 500 members by the first of the year.

A prize of $10 was awarded Guy Long for bringing in the most members, forty-six. Morris Kline was runner-up with thirty-two applicants.

The speaker at last night's meeting was M. F. Prendergast who reviewed the efforts some years ago to organize a North End Taxpayers League. He used the present aims of the club as a comparison with those of the taxpayers league, and pointed out that the social and fraternal activities of the new organization will more readily attract membership while providing a much needed center of entertainment for residents of that section of town.

He warned that such a club could be taken over readily for the political ambitions of persons who would become members for no other reason than that, and declared that the club could prosper and attain its aims best by remaining aloof from any political alliances.

Attorney Simon F. Reilly, a member of the club, followed Prendergast and emphasized what he said in relation to the club being taken over as a political organization by those who would use it as such. Reilly stressed the desire that it continue as it was organized "as a neighborhood meeting place where all resident members could get together to enjoy themselves without having to listen to a lot of political haranguing."

Vice President Owen Ruppert presided in the absence of President John R. Nee who is on his vacation. James Wilt, secretary treasurer, assisted. In addition to the presiding officers the following members of the executive board were present: Guy Long, Louis Dusic, Everett True and Harold DeVault. Vice President Ruppert is the fifth member of the board.

Mrs. Mary Ganoe Is Charged with Contempt of Court

Cumberland Woman Refuses To Testify at Hearing in Ridgeley

A Cumberland woman, charged with contempt of court in Ridgeley, W. Va., yesterday was taken to the Mineral county jail at Keyser, W. Va., where her husband is serving a 60-day sentence on a charge of violating a motor vehicle law.

Mrs. Mary Ganoe, 22, wife of Thomas Ganoe, 30, of South Cumberland, was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to ten days in jail when she refused to testify at a drunken driving hearing in Ridgeley, W. Va.

Her commitment stated that she "made false statements" and "refused to answer questions on oath pertaining to a motor vehicle violation."

Magistrate C. A. Jewell, who heard the case, said the woman refused to testify whether or not John Wesley Manning, 25 Laing avenue, drove her husband's car last Thursday when he was arrested. Previously, she testified that Manning drove the car, he said Manning was acquitted of a drunken driving charge.

Ganoe was tried last week before Magistrate Jewell and was ordered to jail in default of a fine of $100 and costs on a drunken driving count. He was charged with allowing an intoxicated person to drive his car when arrested, but later the charge was changed.

Jewell revoked Ganoe's license and impounded his car for six months.

Chief of Police C. V. Barnard of Ridgeley arrested Ganoe after he noticed smoke pouring from his car. Manning fled at the time, but was apprehended Tuesday by Cumberland police.

Manning had paid a fine on a drunk charge and had been released from the local jail only forty-five minutes when Ridgeley authorities requested that he be picked up, last Thursday.

Socialist Speaker Comes Here Friday

William A. Toole Travels by Motorcycle To Make Campaign Speeches

Traveling from Baltimore to Cumberland by motorcycle and sidecar, William A. Toole, Baltimore attorney will arrive here Friday to make two speeches in the interest of the Socialist party's election campaign in Maryland.

Permission has been granted by the mayor and city council to the League for Democratic Socialism, Baltimore, for Toole to speak Friday at 7:30 p. m., on Salem street near the State armory and Saturday at 7:30 p. m., at Fifth street and Virginia avenue.

In a letter to Mayor Irvine, Toole, who is well known throughout the state, said that in his visit here he will use the same soap-boxing outfit that has been in use in Socialist party campaigns for many years. Toole will be accompanied by James G. Horah, secretary of the league.

Norman Thomas is the Socialist candidate for the presidency. Maynard Kreuger is vice-presidential nominee, and Edwin C. Abbott is the party's standard bearer for United States Senator from Maryland.

William Munro, of 1507 Frederick street, is in charge of arrangements for the meetings here.

Lieut. John C. Golden Wins Gold Medal At Camp Perry

Lieut. John C. Golden, of Company G, Maryland National Guard, has returned from the Camp Perry, Ohio, rifles matches in possession of an attractive gold medal which he won in the Coast Guard Trophy Match.

In this thirty calibre rapid fire open contest, Golden turned in scores of forty-nine out of a possible fifty points at 200 yards and forty-eight out of a possible fifty points at 300 yards.

Lieut. Golden participated in nine individual matches and four team contests with the Maryland National Guard outfit which was captained by Lieut. Col. Elmer Munshower, of Frederick.

The matches were conducted from September 1 to 23 and attracted approximated 5,000 sharpshooters from every section of the United States.

Matches are held annually at Camp Perry under the joint sponsorship of the War Department and the National Rifle association.

Three Boys Held For Juvenile Courts

Three Offutt street boys were arrested last night and released into the custody of their parents pending a hearing Saturday in juvenile court.

Detective Robert E. Flynn, who investigated and questioned the boys, said they took three flashlights, two pipes, a combination cigarette case-lighter, cigarettes and several other articles from a parked car.

Two of the boys are thirteen years old and the third one is twelve. Officer C. C. Roby assisted in the arrests.

HOSTESS TO GOP — Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, Republican national committeewoman for Maryland will be hostess to chairmen and members of six congressional district committees of the women's division of the Maryland Republican Campaign committee, at a luncheon October 10 at the Lord Baltimore hotel, Baltimore. Mrs. Powell has been in Maryland politics for twenty years. She was appointed police magistrate by former Governor Harry W. Nice and served from 1935 to 1939. More than 100 women are expected to attend the luncheon.

Allegany County Women Invited To GOP Meeting

Mrs. Powell Will Be Hostess at Luncheon October 10 in Baltimore

Allegany and Garrett counties will be represented when chairmen and members of the six Congressional District committees of the women's division of the Maryland Republican Campaign committee gather in Baltimore, Thursday, October 10, as guests of Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, national committeewoman for Maryland, at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the Lord Baltimore hotel.

Executives of the Sixth Congressional district, embracing the counties of Frederick, Montgomery, Washington, Allegany and Garrett, invited to attend the luncheon, include:

County Executive Invited

Miss Grace Shaffer, of Frostburg, and Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Oakland, members of the committee and Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Oakland, members of the committee and Mrs. Lulu W. Boucher, of Barton, and Mrs. Vernie Smouse, Oakland, vice-chairman.

Miss Helena Stauffer, of Walkersville, Frederick county, is chairman of the sixth district committee.

The women's division has been functioning in all Baltimore city wards and the counties for more than a month, and probably is better organized so far than any similar organization in the United States. The women also have been working with the men executives in each city ward and county.

This luncheon is expected to be one of the largest ever held in Baltimore by the Republican women of Maryland to put over the Republican ticket from Wendell L. Willkie down to Maryland's candidates for the United States Senate and House of Representatives.

Speakers Announced

Other speakers, besides Mrs. Powell, will be Miss Helena A. Stauffer, associate chairman, of Frederick county; Mrs. William H. Chase, chairman of the State Federation of Republican Women of Maryland, of Prince George's county, and Mrs. Vera Fowler Lewis, chairman of the City Federation of Republican Women, Baltimore.

FBI Men Uncover $5,000 Interstate Shipment Theft

One Cumberland and Two Bedford County Men Are Involved

"Successful solution" of the theft of an interstate shipment of $5,000 in merchandise in which two Bedford county and one Cumberland man are involved, was announced yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation's office at Richmond, Va.

The bureau said two men, which it identified as Ben Shoemaker, 37, of Bedford, Pa., and Spencer Boor, 38, of Artemas, Pa., entered pleas of guilty before United States Commissioner Calvin W. Berry at Danville, Va., to charges of conspiracy to violate the theft from interstate shipment statute.

Douglass Arrested Here

A third man, Andrew Russell Douglass, 39, of 217 Springdale street, this city, was arrested by Maryland State Police Sunday at the request of the FBI for return to the Western Judicial District of Virginia.

Douglass waived a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett here Monday and was released under bond of $2,000 on condition that he appear at Lynchburg, Va., December 2, for action of the Federal Grand jury. Douglass, according to Federal officers here, agreed to waive extradition.

The FBI, according to information furnished by the Associated Press, said Shoemaker reported to Danville police September 21 that the truck and merchandise he was hauling, had been stolen. He said it was taken while he was eating breakfast. The truck was found that night, stripped of its cargo and abandoned near Pelham, N. C.

The truck, owned by Boor, was being operated under contract with the Wilson Freight Forwarding company of Cincinnati. Its cargo included seventy-five cases of whiskey and seven tons of cheese.

Shoemaker Reports "Theft"

FBI officials said Shoemaker admitted that Boor and Douglass met him in Lynchburg, Va., September 19 and told him to take the truck and merchandise to a warehouse operated by Douglass in connection with a meat market at 137 Virginia avenue, Cumberland, and to unload the merchandise there. He did so, the FBI said, and then returned to Lynchburg to be rejoined by Boor and Douglass. They went to Danville where Shoemaker dropped out to report the "theft." Boor continued to Pelham where the truck was abandoned and was followed by Douglass in an automobile.

Shoemaker and Boor were bound over on $2,500 each to the Federal grand jury convening at Lynchburg, December 2.

The FBI said the merchandise was recovered in Douglass's warehouse in South Cumberland.

Salesman for Local Firm Is Electrocuted In Virginia

Robert S. Miller, a salesman for the Tri-State Paper Company, was electrocuted yesterday by a live wire on the Snickersville Pike, about a half mile from Aldie, Va. His body was found beside a pole which was blown over by a heavy wind shortly before noon.

Miller, about 60, made his home at Martinsburg, W. Va., but was well known in Cumberland and vicinity by virtue of his connection with the paper company.

Sheriff Paul Alexander identified Miller by papers in his pocket. The West Virginian, who had apparently been driving alone in his car, apparently had attempted to move the pole which obstructed the highway.

Dr. John A. Gibson, county coroner, fixed electrocution as cause of death. Miller's widow in Martinsburg was notified.

Mystery Solved, Unionist Declares; George Meyers Identifies "Yehudi"

"Who's Yehudi?"

Some say he's the fellow who turns off the radio when you ride under a bridge in your automobile.

Others say he's the man that makes rimless glasses with invisible lens for the little man who wasn't there so he could read between lines of the unwritten law.

Still others maintain he is the guy who holds up strapless bathing suits and evening gowns.

But George Meyers, Jr., recording secretary of Celanese Local 1874, stoutly maintained last night that "Yehudi is the unidentified man with the sack over his head" who makes bristling radio speeches for Local 1140, of the Celanese machinists union.

Apple Polisher

"Yehudi, in this case, apparently hopes to curry favor with his boss by attacking the union, "Big George declared in his broadcast. "Some of the same thoughts may have entered the mind of Little Frankie."

"Little Frankie," Meyers pointed out, is the 21-year-old Celanese worker who started Cumberland tongues wagging Tuesday night when he wrote a letter to the newspaper. The letter said some very uncomplimentary things about both Union President James A. Dundon and the union.

After lecturing "Little Frankie" with the somewhat parent-like severity generally employed by Lord Hee Haw, Meyers asked that his "fellow workers be not too severe on Frankie, for after all, he is naught but a child in experience. Some day he will learn that prior to the union the workers of the

No Statement Is Issued on Progress of Latest Parley

The conference started yesterday afternoon between Celanese officials and members of the textile union's negotiating committee is scheduled to resume today at 2 o'clock, subject to change, it was announced last night by the conciliators.

With the exception of this information, facts were few last night concerning yesterday's conference which convened at 2 p. m. at the Celanese plant and adjourned at 4:45 p. m.

Reporters endeavoring to extract a hint from officials regarding what went on in the conference room bumped into considerable difficulty last night.

Resume Today

About the only hopeful sign gleaned was the fact that all participants are scheduled to return to the arbitrating room today.

As construed by John N. Pohlhaus, Maryland labor commissioner, and Aaron Horwitz, United States conciliator, the fact that the discussion is to continue is a hopeful sign in itself. The two conciliators are responsible for engineering the groundwork for yesterday's get-together, the first since the shutdown of the plant a week ago Tuesday night.

Fred T. Small, plant manager, and Edward R. Allan, personal director at the plant, participated in yesterday's conference for the company.

Small referred a reporter to the conciliators late yesterday afternoon after stating that participants in the conference had been bound to secrecy for the time being. He said that the conciliators should be contacted in fererence to any statement regarding a continuation of the conference.

James A. Dundon, textile union president; Herbert Payne, vice-president of the national union, Clyde Lucas, business manager of Local 1874; and members of the union negotiating committee, represented the unionists.

The two paragraph statement put out last night for union consumption was also extremely vague. It was as follows:

Union Announcement

"The negotiating committee of Local 1874 held a conference with management this afternoon, the first since operations were suspended more than a week ago. Federal and state conciliators attended the conference. The union's committee has at this time no further announcement to make. All Celanese workers, however, are assured that they will be fully informed of all negotiations when an announcement may properly be made. Another con-

Americans Asked To Offer Prayers For the British

Sunday Set Aside as "Day of Prayer"; Observance Lauded by Irvine

Moved by the intense suffering and danger of the British people, to whom we are bound by many deep spiritual ties, fourteen leaders of six Christian faiths, including the Rt. Rev. Henry S. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church are calling on Americans to observe Sunday, September 29, as a day of special prayer for Great Britain.

Governors of forty-eight states have been asked to join in observing "Great Britain Sunday" by issuing suitable proclamations in their respective states. Governor E. D. Rivers, of Georgia, and Governor Harland Bushfield, of South Dakota, have announced their cooperation in the program.

Manning Makes Appeal

Among those making an appeal to Americans to observe Sunday as "Great Britain Sunday" are Bishop William T. Manning, Episcopal, of New York; Bishop James E. Freeman, Episcopal, of Washington; John A. Mackey, president, Princeton Theological Seminary (Presbyterian); Samuel McCrea Calvert, general secretary, Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Albert W. Beaven, president, Colgate-Rochester Divinity school (Baptist); Dr. John R. Mott, of New York, chairman of the World Committee of Y.M.C.A.'s.

Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, president of the Synagogue Council, signed an appeal similar to the one issued by the Christian leaders.

Irvine Praises Appeal

Mayor Harry Irvine yesterday received literature pertaining to the appeal and immediately voiced his approval of the observance of "Great Britain Sunday."

"We are united to our friends in the British Isles by the heritage of a common ideal for democracy and freedom and a common struggle to achieve it," commented Irvine. "In this hour when that heritage stands in peril we would identify ourselves in sympathy and fellowship with the British people."

Elks Here Adopt Defense Program

Committee Is Appointed To Pledge Assistance to Government

A three-fold program of assistance to the Government in its national defense efforts has been adopted by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B. P. O. Elks in co-operation with all lodges of the organization in the United States.

The Elks will, first of all, undertake a campaign to instill patriotism, a love of the flag and respect for American institutions and democratic ideals.

Detection of treasonable and spy activities and prompt reporting of all such cases to the proper authorities is another work the lodge will do.

Extension of vocational training in public schools to prepare students to protect the country in time of emergency and the physical development of American youth are the other aims of the organization.

The committee which will direct the work of the local Elks is composed of Lewis M. Wilson, chairman, John J. Rowan, John H. McCullough, J. Douglas Heron, Fred F. Sutherland and James E. Yarnall.

Charles Bantz Sues Bopps Flower Shop For $2500 in Wages

Charles Omer Bantz, represented by Attorney Peter J. Carpenti, docketed a suit in circuit court yesterday claiming $2,500 from Bopp's Flower Shop.

According to the petition, Bantz was employed by the flower shop as a truck driver from Oct. 1, 1937, until August, 1939, during which time he worked from forty-eight to sixty hours per week.

During that period Bantz contends he was a member of Local 453, of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union.

The union, his petition alleges, had a contract stipulating that drivers receive fifty cents an hour for a forty hour week. The fifty cents an hour clause held good until the work week exceeded forty-eight hours, the petition states. The contract provided for seventy-five cents an hour for anything in excess of a forty-eight hour week, Bantz contends.

George Newark, 82, of Kitzmiller, died yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital where he was admitted Monday.

Hospital attaches reported that there are no immediate survivors.

Prendergast Declines To Serve as Vice-Chairman of Campaign Group

M. F. Prendergast, this city, who led the victorious primary campaign for United States Senator George L. Radcliffe in Allegany county, announced last night that he would not serve as vice-chairman of the Democratic campaign committee in Allegany County. He was appointed by the State Central committee last week.

"The State Central committee was advised three weeks before it named me 'vice-chairman' of the county campaign committee that I would not serve in this capacity," Prendergast stated. "With others of the Radcliffe primary election group I told the three members of the Central committee present at a meeting called to name a campaign committee I would not accept such a post, and at the same time gave assurance that we would work in harmony in the campaign only when the successful Radcliffe workers were given recognition for their victory in the county last May.

Refusal Ignored

"That the State Central committee ignored my definite refusal to serve as 'vice-chairman' and appointed me to the post would indicate that I have been drafted for the job. However the rest of the Radcliffe workers have been ignored, and our suggestion that the best of the workers from both primary groups be selected for duty in the general election also has been discarded. This indicates that the State Central committee does not want to work in harmony to obtain the best possible results in the general elections.

"I refrained from making any

Comments on Celanese Situation Made in Letters to Editor

Comments on the Celanese situation in the form of letters to the editor continued to arrive in the office of the NEWS yesterday.

Four letters, taking different points of view, arrived yesterday. The first came from Alice Tower, of 911 Maryland avenue, who wrote:

"Well, well, well! Mr. Rudolph, you certainly have exploded a daring and worth-while letter to those of us who live in the city of Cumberland and surrounding countryside and especally to those who have worked at Celanese," Miss Tower stated.

You are one person who will not follow a leader like a herd of sheep when your eyes, ears and thinking capacity are opened to facts.

Is Type Needed

"Do not feel afraid of your future. There is much in store for any person who has the guts to follow his own convictions. Your type is sorely needed throughout the country, employers are silently begging for your kind, out of a nation handicapped with prejudice and selfishness and hatred. There are many other workers not so daring, who would gladly do as you have done. Do not feel afraid.

"Go South, young man. We understand that the Celanese at Pearisburg has no labor troubles. It must be a bit of paradise there. What, no labor troubles? Go South, young man, go South."

The second letter was written by V. L. Petenbrink and Gerald Sheets, union members who defended President James A. Dundon, union president, in answer to a letter published from Frank Rudolph.

"In answer to the open letter to our President, James A. Dundon," the letter stated, "I wish to state to Mr. Rudolph, that instead of being a sheep that you are an ass. However, Mr. Rudolph, I wish to give you credit for having enough guts to sign your name to your letter.

Didn't Refuse Raises

"Now, Mr. Rudolph, I will try to tell you, and the public, what your status has been, for at least three years past, while you were employed at the plant in reference to your standing with the union." You were taken into the union (under pressure) sometime in September, 1940 (after being employed over three years) and paid Two Dollars ($2.00) on an initiation fee or reinstatement fee. During your three years' employment I have not seen any 'open letter' to the Celanese Corp., telling them that you did not want your week's vacation with pay, your pay raises, etc., that you 'held up your feet' and let me work and fight to get for you. Surely, Mr. Rudolph, a man with your intelligence should have enough spunk to tell the Celanese that you didn't want a raise, etc. Shame on you!

"Mr. Rudolph, in reference to your statement that 'you realize that you may never be able to work at the

Cumberland Contracting Company Will Start $8,000 Job Today

An $8,000 black-topping job will get under way this morning when workers of the Cumberland Contracting Company start on the Williams street project which extends from Maryland avenue to Kent avenue.

Earl C. Robertson, of the Cumberland Contracting Company, last evening said that it will require about eight days to complete the job. Between fifteen and twenty men will be employed.

Contract for the black-topping of Williams street recently was awarded the Cumberland Contracting Company by the Maryland State Roads commission.

The item in Chatter yesterday about squirrel hunting brought a quick response from a Cumberland hunter.

An error overlooked by the proof reader allowed the word "haunts" to be used instead of "hunt," but the communication from the Cumberland man did not dwell on the typographical error as much as the scarcity of squirrels.

"As a hunter", the communication reads, (principally hunting which conforms to the printed words on the state and county licenses), "the rule you have quoted prevailed for many years in Maryland, but according to the counsel of the three squirrels (the population, more or less) of Maryland, it needs to be streamlined to the following:

"Get your hunting license (state or county) while they're hot off the press, and when the season opens, get up an hour or two before dawn (even if you do lose a few hours sleep) and get into the woods. Pick out a good clear spot and stretch out before the dawn breaks and finish your sleep.

"Awake when the sun comes up (clear weather predicted) and go on home. Under no circumstances take fire-arms with you, unless you just want to give your arms the morning exercise in carrying it to and fro, but the safe bet is to leave them at home, as you may accidentally be seen by one of the three squirrels and be taken for a nut.

"Why, just the other day, down in Washington county, the squirrels were seen conferring with a couple of game wardens endeavoring to get the conservation department to have a WPA project approved so their cousins and other relatives residing in Pennsylvania and West Virginia could hold a reunion in Maryland, without being finger (foot) printed and giving their birth dates."

Lloyd W. Dick Is Sentenced to One Year in Prison

Local Man Pleads Guilty To Violating State Motor Vehicle Law

An ex-convict was given another "stretch" to serve when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court on charges of violating the same state motor law twice Monday.

Lloyd William Dick, 29, of the Walton hotel, was sentenced to serve one year on each of two charges of "unauthorized use of a motor vehicle," but the terms are to run concurrently. He pleaded guilty to both counts.

According to authorities, Dick first took the machine owned by J. George Freeland, of McCoole, from the 100-block North Centre street and left it in the 700-block after it ran out of fuel.

Then, they said, he took another car belonging to the Frantz Oldsmobile Company and later abandoned it. He took the machines to go some place to get money, they added.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., who presided at the hearing, said Dick was sentenced to three years in the Maryland penitentiary in 1935 on a charge of larceny, and in 1932 was sent to the House of Correction for eighteen months on a similar charge.

Lions To Hold Charter Night

Frank V. Becker Will Head Committee for Affair October 24

Preliminary arrangements for the charter night dinner and dance of the Cumberland Lions' club were made yesterday with the appointment of a committee of four members to make preparations for the event which will be held Thursday, October 24.

Frank V. Becker was named chairman of the committee which consists of George Martin, Jr., Thomas Lohr Richards and John Park. This group will meet next week to select a place for holding the affair as well as naming the guest speaker of the evening.

The Lions' club received its charter ten years ago and was formerly known as the Monarch club.

At yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Lions in the Central Y. M. C. A., technicolor movies taken by Edwin Keech on his recent trip to the west coast were shown. The picture included shots of Yellowstone National Park, Seattle and many other interesting scenic spots of the Rocky Mountain area.

K. M. Watkins was inducted into membership at the meeting.

George Martin, Sr., was program chairman.

Local Man Charged With Tampering with Public Water Supply

Out of one "jam" into another was the predicament Monroe Cohen, 11 East Laing avenue, found himself in yesterday.

Cohen was arraigned in trial magistrates court on a charge of interfering and tampering with the public water supply of the City of Cumberland, but sentence was deferred.

Court attaches said Cohen's water was turned off because he owed the city a rather large amount of water rent. Cohen turned the water back on, they added.

Tuesday, Cohen was fined $10 in police court on a charge of allowing a vicious dog to run at large. He was ordered to remove the animal from the city limits.

North End Social and Athletic Club Closes Successful Membership Drive

The North End Social and Athletic Club marked the close of a month's membership campaign last night at the club-rooms, 649 North Mechanic street, with the announcement that ninety-six new members had been accepted, bringing the membership to 339. The club, which was organized and opened July 19, will continue its campaign with the goal of 500 members by the first of the year.

A prize of $10 was awarded Guy Long for bringing in the most members, forty-six. Morris Kline was runner-up with thirty-two applicants.

The speaker at last night's meeting was M. F. Prendergast who reviewed the efforts some years ago to organize a North End Taxpayers League. He used the present aims of the club as a comparison with those of the taxpayers league, and pointed out that the social and fraternal activities of the new organization will more readily attract membership while providing a much needed center of entertainment for residents of that section of town.

He warned that such a club could be taken over readily for the political ambitions of persons who would become members for no other reason than that, and declared that the club could prosper and attain its aims best by remaining aloof from any political alliances.

Attorney Simon F. Reilly, a member of the club, followed Prendergast and emphasized what he said in relation to the club being taken over as a political organization by those who would use it as such. Reilly stressed the desire that it continue as it was organized "as a neighborhood meeting place where all resident members could get together to enjoy themselves without having to listen to a lot of political haranguing."

Vice President Owen Ruppert presided in the absence of President John R. Nee who is on his vacation. James Wilt, secretary treasurer, assisted. In addition to the presiding officers the following members of the executive board were present: Guy Long, Louis Dusic, Everett True and Harold DeVault. Vice President Ruppert is the fifth member of the board.

Mrs. Mary Ganoe Is Charged with Contempt of Court

Cumberland Woman Refuses To Testify at Hearing in Ridgeley

A Cumberland woman, charged with contempt of court in Ridgeley, W. Va., yesterday was taken to the Mineral county jail at Keyser, W. Va., where her husband is serving a 60-day sentence on a charge of violating a motor vehicle law.

Mrs. Mary Ganoe, 22, wife of Thomas Ganoe, 30, of South Cumberland, was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to ten days in jail when she refused to testify at a drunken driving hearing in Ridgeley, W. Va.

Her commitment stated that she "made false statements" and "refused to answer questions on oath pertaining to a motor vehicle violation."

Magistrate C. A. Jewell, who heard the case, said the woman refused to testify whether or not John Wesley Manning, 25 Laing avenue, drove her husband's car last Thursday when he was arrested. Previously, she testified that Manning drove the car, he said Manning was acquitted of a drunken driving charge.

Ganoe was tried last week before Magistrate Jewell and was ordered to jail in default of a fine of $100 and costs on a drunken driving count. He was charged with allowing an intoxicated person to drive his car when arrested, but later the charge was changed.

Jewell revoked Ganoe's license and impounded his car for six months.

Chief of Police C. V. Barnard of Ridgeley arrested Ganoe after he noticed smoke pouring from his car. Manning fled at the time, but was apprehended Tuesday by Cumberland police.

Manning had paid a fine on a drunk charge and had been released from the local jail only forty-five minutes when Ridgeley authorities requested that he be picked up, last Thursday.

Socialist Speaker Comes Here Friday

William A. Toole Travels by Motorcycle To Make Campaign Speeches

Traveling from Baltimore to Cumberland by motorcycle and sidecar, William A. Toole, Baltimore attorney will arrive here Friday to make two speeches in the interest of the Socialist party's election campaign in Maryland.

Permission has been granted by the mayor and city council to the League for Democratic Socialism, Baltimore, for Toole to speak Friday at 7:30 p. m., on Salem street near the State armory and Saturday at 7:30 p. m., at Fifth street and Virginia avenue.

In a letter to Mayor Irvine, Toole, who is well known throughout the state, said that in his visit here he will use the same soap-boxing outfit that has been in use in Socialist party campaigns for many years. Toole will be accompanied by James G. Horah, secretary of the league.

Norman Thomas is the Socialist candidate for the presidency. Maynard Kreuger is vice-presidential nominee, and Edwin C. Abbott is the party's standard bearer for United States Senator from Maryland.

William Munro, of 1507 Frederick street, is in charge of arrangements for the meetings here.

Lieut. John C. Golden Wins Gold Medal At Camp Perry

Lieut. John C. Golden, of Company G, Maryland National Guard, has returned from the Camp Perry, Ohio, rifles matches in possession of an attractive gold medal which he won in the Coast Guard Trophy Match.

In this thirty calibre rapid fire open contest, Golden turned in scores of forty-nine out of a possible fifty points at 200 yards and forty-eight out of a possible fifty points at 300 yards.

Lieut. Golden participated in nine individual matches and four team contests with the Maryland National Guard outfit which was captained by Lieut. Col. Elmer Munshower, of Frederick.

The matches were conducted from September 1 to 23 and attracted approximated 5,000 sharpshooters from every section of the United States.

Matches are held annually at Camp Perry under the joint sponsorship of the War Department and the National Rifle association.

Three Boys Held For Juvenile Courts

Three Offutt street boys were arrested last night and released into the custody of their parents pending a hearing Saturday in juvenile court.

Detective Robert E. Flynn, who investigated and questioned the boys, said they took three flashlights, two pipes, a combination cigarette case-lighter, cigarettes and several other articles from a parked car.

Two of the boys are thirteen years old and the third one is twelve. Officer C. C. Roby assisted in the arrests.

HOSTESS TO GOP — Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, Republican national committeewoman for Maryland will be hostess to chairmen and members of six congressional district committees of the women's division of the Maryland Republican Campaign committee, at a luncheon October 10 at the Lord Baltimore hotel, Baltimore. Mrs. Powell has been in Maryland politics for twenty years. She was appointed police magistrate by former Governor Harry W. Nice and served from 1935 to 1939. More than 100 women are expected to attend the luncheon.

Allegany County Women Invited To GOP Meeting

Mrs. Powell Will Be Hostess at Luncheon October 10 in Baltimore

Allegany and Garrett counties will be represented when chairmen and members of the six Congressional District committees of the women's division of the Maryland Republican Campaign committee gather in Baltimore, Thursday, October 10, as guests of Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, national committeewoman for Maryland, at a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock in the Lord Baltimore hotel.

Executives of the Sixth Congressional district, embracing the counties of Frederick, Montgomery, Washington, Allegany and Garrett, invited to attend the luncheon, include:

County Executive Invited

Miss Grace Shaffer, of Frostburg, and Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Oakland, members of the committee and Mrs. W. W. Grant, of Oakland, members of the committee and Mrs. Lulu W. Boucher, of Barton, and Mrs. Vernie Smouse, Oakland, vice-chairman.

Miss Helena Stauffer, of Walkersville, Frederick county, is chairman of the sixth district committee.

The women's division has been functioning in all Baltimore city wards and the counties for more than a month, and probably is better organized so far than any similar organization in the United States. The women also have been working with the men executives in each city ward and county.

This luncheon is expected to be one of the largest ever held in Baltimore by the Republican women of Maryland to put over the Republican ticket from Wendell L. Willkie down to Maryland's candidates for the United States Senate and House of Representatives.

Speakers Announced

Other speakers, besides Mrs. Powell, will be Miss Helena A. Stauffer, associate chairman, of Frederick county; Mrs. William H. Chase, chairman of the State Federation of Republican Women of Maryland, of Prince George's county, and Mrs. Vera Fowler Lewis, chairman of the City Federation of Republican Women, Baltimore.

FBI Men Uncover $5,000 Interstate Shipment Theft

One Cumberland and Two Bedford County Men Are Involved

"Successful solution" of the theft of an interstate shipment of $5,000 in merchandise in which two Bedford county and one Cumberland man are involved, was announced yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation's office at Richmond, Va.

The bureau said two men, which it identified as Ben Shoemaker, 37, of Bedford, Pa., and Spencer Boor, 38, of Artemas, Pa., entered pleas of guilty before United States Commissioner Calvin W. Berry at Danville, Va., to charges of conspiracy to violate the theft from interstate shipment statute.

Douglass Arrested Here

A third man, Andrew Russell Douglass, 39, of 217 Springdale street, this city, was arrested by Maryland State Police Sunday at the request of the FBI for return to the Western Judicial District of Virginia.

Douglass waived a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett here Monday and was released under bond of $2,000 on condition that he appear at Lynchburg, Va., December 2, for action of the Federal Grand jury. Douglass, according to Federal officers here, agreed to waive extradition.

The FBI, according to information furnished by the Associated Press, said Shoemaker reported to Danville police September 21 that the truck and merchandise he was hauling, had been stolen. He said it was taken while he was eating breakfast. The truck was found that night, stripped of its cargo and abandoned near Pelham, N. C.

The truck, owned by Boor, was being operated under contract with the Wilson Freight Forwarding company of Cincinnati. Its cargo included seventy-five cases of whiskey and seven tons of cheese.

Shoemaker Reports "Theft"

FBI officials said Shoemaker admitted that Boor and Douglass met him in Lynchburg, Va., September 19 and told him to take the truck and merchandise to a warehouse operated by Douglass in connection with a meat market at 137 Virginia avenue, Cumberland, and to unload the merchandise there. He did so, the FBI said, and then returned to Lynchburg to be rejoined by Boor and Douglass. They went to Danville where Shoemaker dropped out to report the "theft." Boor continued to Pelham where the truck was abandoned and was followed by Douglass in an automobile.

Shoemaker and Boor were bound over on $2,500 each to the Federal grand jury convening at Lynchburg, December 2.

The FBI said the merchandise was recovered in Douglass's warehouse in South Cumberland.

Salesman for Local Firm Is Electrocuted In Virginia

Robert S. Miller, a salesman for the Tri-State Paper Company, was electrocuted yesterday by a live wire on the Snickersville Pike, about a half mile from Aldie, Va. His body was found beside a pole which was blown over by a heavy wind shortly before noon.

Miller, about 60, made his home at Martinsburg, W. Va., but was well known in Cumberland and vicinity by virtue of his connection with the paper company.

Sheriff Paul Alexander identified Miller by papers in his pocket. The West Virginian, who had apparently been driving alone in his car, apparently had attempted to move the pole which obstructed the highway.

Dr. John A. Gibson, county coroner, fixed electrocution as cause of death. Miller's widow in Martinsburg was notified.

"Who's Yehudi?"

Some say he's the fellow who turns off the radio when you ride under a bridge in your automobile.

Others say he's the man that makes rimless glasses with invisible lens for the little man who wasn't there so he could read between lines of the unwritten law.

Still others maintain he is the guy who holds up strapless bathing suits and evening gowns.

But George Meyers, Jr., recording secretary of Celanese Local 1874, stoutly maintained last night that "Yehudi is the unidentified man with the sack over his head" who makes bristling radio speeches for Local 1140, of the Celanese machinists union.

Apple Polisher

"Yehudi, in this case, apparently hopes to curry favor with his boss by attacking the union," Big George declared in his broadcast. "Some of the same thoughts may have entered the mind of Little Frankie."

"Little Frankie," Meyers pointed out, is the 21-year-old Celanese worker who started Cumberland tongues wagging Tuesday night when he wrote a letter to the newspaper. The letter said some very uncomplimentary things about both Union President James A. Dundon and the union.

After lecturing "Little Frankie" with the somewhat parent-like severity generally employed by Lord Hee Haw, Meyers asked that his "fellow workers be not too severe on Frankie, for after all, he is naught but a child in experience. Some day he will learn that prior to the union the workers of the
